Nasser Says U.S. Can Take Its Aid and 'Go to Hell'

By ROY ESSOYAN

CAIRO (AP) — Relations between the United States and the United Arab Republic deteriorated further today in the wake of a speech by President Gamal Abdel Nasser telling America in effect to take its aid and "go to hell."

Speaking in Port Said Wednesday, Nasser accused U.S. Ambassador Lucius Battle of trying to put economic pressure on Egypt and declared:

"Anyone who does not like our attitude can drink from the sea. And if the Mediterranean is not big enough, we will give him the Red Sea to drink, too."

To "drink from the sea" is the Egyptian slang equivalent of to "go to the devil or "go to hell."

No official U.S. comment was available immediately in Washington. U. S. officials indicated, however, that a request by Nasser for $35 million worth of surplus food would be shelved because of his aid to the Congolese rebels.

Nasser's outburst apparently was touched off by U.S. accusations that he is aiding the Congolese rebels and intimations that U. S. aid would be curtailed because of this.

Speaking to a rally celebrating the end of the 1965 Israeli-British-French invasion of the Suez, Nasser declared:

"We have sent arms to the Congolese rebels and we will continue to send arms because the rebels need them and need the support of the honest nations of the world. The U.A.R. cannot watch aggression against

Burglary Suspect Dies After Being Shot by Guard

The killing this morning of Harris Junior Orin by Glen "Hook" Preston was "definitely justifiable homicide" but the law requires that a charge of first degree murder be filed, Deputy District Attorney Herman Ratner said shortly before presstime.

It will be filed later today.

The attorney added that he would request Dist. Judge G. Russell Miller to release Preston,, a merchant policeman, immediately on a personal recognizance bond.

The bond is an agreement between the court and the defendant based on his signature. No cash is put up.

Ratner said the charge is being filed to clear Preston so he would not have a possible criminal charge "hanging over him for the rest of his life."

"It is," Ratner said, "a perfectly normal procedure when a law officer justifiably kills someone during the performance of duty. We will have a trial with a jury, and at the request of the defense the jury

Carson Man Said Stabbed By His Wife

A Fort Carson man was stabbed in the stomach this morning by his wife, according to the El Paso County Sheriff's Office. The handle of the weapon snapped off and the blade remained imbedded in the flesh.

Stanley B. Chubbs, 32, 1211 Richards St., was in surgery at press time and his condition was described by Ft. Carson Hospital authorities as "serious."

Mrs. Yoshima Chubbs told Deputy Sheriff Bob Snuggs and Police Officer E. L. McClinton that she and her husband were driving to Ft. Carson when an argument developed.

Chubbs pulled off the side of the road, and according to Mrs. Chubbs, she opened her purse, pulled out a paring knife and stabbed him in the abdomen. The wounded man then drove to St. Francis Hospital with the six-inch blade still in his stomach. Ft. Carson was called and he was immediately transferred to the Army Hospital.

Store Purchases Defunct Paper's Headquarters

Headquarters for two unsuccessful Jamestown, N.Y. newspapers was purchased by Bigelow's Department Store for sales and service expansion.

One of the papers, the Jamestown Morning Sun, was run by Edward J. Byrne, former editor and publisher of the Free Press, and Mr. and Mrs. Constantine Poulos, formerly of 1708 N. Tejon St.

The building also once housed the Jamestown Morning Star. It was sold by the Jamestown Newspaper Corporation, publishers of the evening Jamestown Post-Journal.

In December 1950 Byrne and Mr. and Mrs. Poulos purchased the majority interest in the Sun from Unitypo Inc., a subsidiary of the International Typographical Union.

Poulos was formerly managing editor of the Free Press, and Mrs. Poulos was a reporter at the union newspaper, which is operated by the ITU. She had also been on the staff of the Gazette Telegraph.

In April 1960, after Byrne had been editor-publisher of the Sun for only a few months, he resigned and Mr. and Mrs. Poulos took over his job.

The Sun, started by the ITU in April 1949 as a result of a printers' strike at the afternoon Post-Journal, folded operations June 30, 1962.

Flood Reports At a Glance

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Deluging rains have brought floods that claimed at least 28 lives and caused untold damage in five Western states.

Oregon — The death toll stands at 10. Flood waters in some rivers receded but thousands were still homeless.

California — Fourteen northern counties with a population of 588,200 and covering 37,802 square miles were declared disaster areas. One death was attributed to the storm. Hundreds joined the more than 4,000 who earlier fled their homes.

Washington — at least 15 have died in the past nine days. Highway crews were rushing to the Washington-Oregon border where 300 persons were trapped in two trains halted by mudslides.

Nevada — Reno businessmen cleared sandbags away from storefronts as rain halted. The Truckee River rushing through the center of town began to recede. One life was claimed in the storm.

Idaho —One person died. Helicopters were dispatched to rescue 50 motorists and truckers stranded in a remote mountain valley between two massive snow slides. Numerous slides and cold weather hampered rescue efforts elsewhere in the state.

52 Americans Injured In Saigon Bomb Blast

WASHINGTON (AP) — A bomb, presumably planted by the Communist Viet Cong, blasted a U.S. military officers' hotel in Saigon today, injuring 52 Americans, the Pentagon was advised today.

Two men were reported killed.

The seven-story building is in the heart of the city.

The pentagon said initial reports sent here showed that in addition to the 52 Americans injured one Australian officer and 15 Vietnamese were hurt.

Earlier, a National Broadcasting Co. correspondent, Garrick Utley, reported from Saigon that the explosion occurred in the basement of the building and fire shot up through the structure, gutting the building.

The explosion occurred just before 6 p.m.

The Viet Cong had been expected to attack in Saigon during the Christmas weekend. Intelligence sources said three Viet Cong battalions were massed in the area of the Saigon airport for a mortar attack there. Security forces were on a full alert around the airport.

Peter Kalischer of the Columbia Broadcasting System reported from Saigon that the bomb was a 100-pound device set off in a car parked under the officers' quarters, known as the Brink Hotel.

Kalischer said there were reports a second bomb had been detonated at the airport headquarters of a U.S. signal battalion.

Security precautions were tightened at the quarters of U.S. Ambassador Maxwell D. Taylor and Gen. William C. Westmoreland, the commander of U.S. forces in South Viet Nam.

U. S., Viet Nam Deadlock In New Political Dispute

By MALCOLM W. BROWNE

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — Neither the United States nor Vietnamese military leaders showed signs of yielding today in their showdown over military interference in South Viet Nam's government.

On the U.S. side, informed sources said that the United States would probably withhold important new aid expected in Saigon for the Vietnamese war effort in about a month unless the crisis is settled within a few days.

Sources on the Vietnamese side said the defiant officers were considering an anti-American campaign that might include street demonstrations. The removal of U.S. Ambassador Maxwell D. Taylor was reported to be an objective.

Lt. Gen. Nguyen Khanh, the commander of the Vietnamese armed forces, appeared to hold undisputed control over his officers. There was no indication that Khanh planned to acquiesce to U.S. demands that

7,000 Persons Are Homeless As Floods Rage Through West

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Thousands of victims in five flood-stricken Western states were homeless on this Christmas Eve, and more joined in the exodus to escape new flooding as rain pounded the afflicted areas for the third consecutive day.

Soiled Christmas trees floated among the surging debris.

The savage Pacific storm sent dozens of mountain rivers spilling into scores of cities and towns in California, Washington, Oregon, Nevada and Idaho.

At least 28 persons have died and more than 7,000 left homeless. Damage has been so great that officials have stopped estimating.

Parts of every state have been declared disaster areas. Air Force, Navy, National Guard, Red Cross, Coast Guard, and Civil Defense units were working around the clock with local officials to rescue thousands stranded by high water, slides and snow.

Rain and winds slackened briefly Wednesday but another low pressure system moved in from the Pacific and the heavy downpour resumed. The Weather Bureau forecast rain and strong winds from Northern California to Washington through Friday.

In California's rugged north country, entire communities were cut off by merciless torrents that tore out at least 15 bridges, knocked out telephone lines and washed away huge sections of highways.

Hundreds of persons were trapped, without food or medicine, clinging to rooftops or perched in islands awaiting rescue.

Every town along the Eel River in northwestern California was inundated. In the hamlet of Rio Dell city officials ordered phone and power poles toppled to convert the main street into an emergency landing strip. About 2,000 refugees waited for helicopters to rescue them.

The entire population of Willow Creek and Hoopa, in the heart of an Indian reservation, took refuge in the high school gymnasium on high ground.

Pepperwood, population 500, is gone — nothing visible but a few tree tops above the sea of water, air observers reported.

In Garberville, three pregnant women were reported in labor and in need of medical care.

Civil defense officials have written off the flood communities of South Fork, Myers Flat, Stafford and Weott, whose residents fled Tuesday.

Since 5 a.m. Wednesday the 2,500 inhabitants of Guerneville have lived on an island in the midst of the swirling Russian River. In the Little Stork Club saloon rescuers and flood victims stood knee-deep in muddy water toasting each other and making jokes about the sign reading "No Dancing Allowed."

Further north, near the coastal city of Eureka, about 1,000 refugees, including women and small children, stood on high sections of U.S. 101 waving to helicopters that rushed in with relief supplies.

California's 14 flood-stricken counties, with their total population of 558,200, cover 37,802 square miles — most of it wooded, mountainous terrain that makes rescue operations and communications almost impossible.

The Red Cross beefed up its forces in key areas to supply clothing, bedding and food.

Police from as far south as San Francisco were flown in to relieve exhausted sheriff's deputies in northwestern Humboldt County.

The aircraft carrier Bennington steamed toward Eureka today to add its 20 helicopters to those of the Coast Guard.

A large food chain ordered 40,000 pounds of canned goods and produce flown from San Francisco to Eureka and promised unlimited credit to victims.

A 20-man search party plowed through dense underbrush 20 miles north of Eureka toward the wreckage of a Coast Guard helicopter downed Tuesday.

A search plane spotted the wreckage late Wednesday, but there was no indication that the three crewmen had survived.

Only one known death has been reported in the state, and that came Tuesday when a Montana man's car plunged off a bridge into a river.

Yuba City, in the area where 38 persons drowned in the 1955 Christmas Eve flood, was at the brink of evacuation Wednesday as the Feather River rose 76 feet above its bed. But a break in the storm lessened the threat and the city's 11,000 residents stood fast although warned they might have to leave if the storm worsens.

At Yosemite National Park 800 persons prepared for an extended stay after all roads became submerged by water and logs.

In Oregon, Gov. Mark Hatfield warned that the state "still faces critical times in the next 36 to 48 hours" despite a gradual receding of most flood-swollen rivers.

At Grant's Pass the Rogue River dropped eight feet in 14 hours but new rains left nearby residents without hope of relief from flooding.

National Guard and Air Force personnel were sent to North Albany 25 miles south of Salem early today to begin evacuating some 200 families.

In the Oregon state capital the flooding Mill Creek endangered a hospital and 100 patients were among the thousands forced to higher ground.

The death toll climbed to 10 when a car plunged 140 feet off a washed-out bridge over the John Day River, 120 miles east of Portland. It carried two Rufus, Ore. iron workers to their deaths.

Near the Washington-Oregon border 300 persons were stranded for the second day aboard two trains when slides blocked the tracks. The Air Force airlifted 1,000 pounds of food to the scene. Railroad officials could

Most U.S. Military in Viet Nam Are 'Not Volunteers'

By ELTIN C. FAY

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Pentagon says the big bulk of the approximately 22,000 American military men serving in South Viet Nam are there because they were ordered there — not because they volunteered.

It adds that "no formal inducements" are being made to get volunteers to sign up for duty there.

When the United States began giving military aid to South Viet Nam four years ago, a substantial part — if not an actual majority — of the American military men who went over to help in the war against Communist guerrillas were volunteers.

In answer to a question, the Defense Department said today that now "most people of all services are assigned as individuals, with few exceptions."

These exceptions include, in addition to the individual volunteers, units which are deployed to the war zone. These include Army Special Forces outfits and crews of Marine helicopter units which are rotated on Viet Nam duty.

Th Pentagon said that when volunteers for Viet Nam duty are qualified and there is a need for military occupation specialty, the volunteers are assigned before nonvolunteers.

Presumably, there are several reasons for the emphasis on ordering men to Viet Nam and the de-emphasis on relying on volunteers.

The U. S. effort to assist the South Vietnamese government has been expanded several fold since 1961. Volunteers would be insufficient to provide the numbers and specialized skills required.

Not all of the U.S. Army, Navy, Marines and Air Force personnel in Viet Nam are eligible for the extra $55 a month combat pay. This goes to volunteers and nonvolunteers alike in both South Viet Nam and Laos.

That directive specifies that for men to qualify they must be:

"Subject to hostile fire or explosion of hostile mines or in an area in which they are in imminent danger of being exposed to hostile fire or explosion of hostile mines; and in which during

Sweepstakes Winner Dies Broke

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Four years ago a retired Pullman porter won $140,000 in the Irish sweepstakes.

Friends said Wednesday that he died broke.

With his lucky money William Tyler rented his own Pullman car in 1960 and took seven friends on an 8,000-mile nationwide railroad tour that cost him $15,000.

Thereafter he never ceased talking about the trip. But when he succumbed to a heart ailment Tuesday at 83 in a rest home, he was living on county charity, friends of the Negro said.

Two of them will pay for Tyler's funeral next Tuesday.

Carson Boundaries Could Be Changed to Save Clay

By JOHN KUGLIN
Gazette Telegraph Staff Writer

The announced boundaries of Ft. Carson's 79,500-acre expansion to the south and southwest could be altered, U. S. Army Corps of Engineers' civilian spokesman Grant Rice said in Omaha, Neb. this morning.

The government filed suit in Denver U. S. District Court Tuesday to acquire 45,131 acres of land within boundaries of the expansion.

Rice said his office, which is handling details of the expansion, received numerous requests from fire brick companies that boundaries be changed to save fire clay deposits.

"We're exploring, at Maj. Gen. A. J. Maroun's request, the possibility of changes in the expansion plan," Rice said. Maj. Gen. Maroun is commander of Ft. Carson and the 5th Infantry Division (Mech.)

The planned acquisition, under the federal government's power of eminent domain, would cut off valuable fire clay deposits used by brick manufacturers in Colorado Springs, Denver, Canon City and Pueblo.

The president of the Denver Fire Clay Co., G. W. Jensen, says they will be forced to shut their plant if the land is taken. This company employs 150 persons and has an annual payroll of over $600,000.

They have mined clay from land within the planned Ft. Carson expansion for over 40 years, according to Jensen.

He said most of the clay deposits are in Section 36, just

Soiled Christmas trees floated among the surging debris.

The savage Pacific storm sent dozens of mountain rivers spilling into scores of cities and towns in California, Washington, Oregon, Nevada and Idaho.

At least 28 persons have died and more than 7,000 left homeless. Damage has been so great that officials have stopped estimating.

Parts of every state have been declared disaster areas. Air Force, Navy, National Guard, Red Cross, Coast Guard, and Civil Defense units were working around the clock with local officials to rescue thousands stranded by high water, slides and snow.

Rain and winds slackened briefly Wednesday but another low pressure system moved in from the Pacific and the heavy downpour resumed. The Weather Bureau forecast rain and strong winds from Northern California to Washington through Friday.

In California's rugged north country, entire communities were cut off by merciless torrents that tore out at least 15 bridges, knocked out telephone lines and washed away huge sections of highways.

Hundreds of persons were trapped, without food or medicine, clinging to rooftops or perched in islands awaiting rescue.

Every town along the Eel River in northwestern California was inundated. In the hamlet of Rio Dell city officials ordered phone and power poles toppled to convert the main street into an emergency landing strip. About 2,000 refugees waited for helicopters to rescue them.

The entire population of Willow Creek and Hoopa, in the heart of an Indian reservation, took refuge in the high school gymnasium on high ground.

Pepperwood, population 500, is gone — nothing visible but a few tree tops above the sea of water, air observers reported.

In Garberville, three pregnant women were reported in labor and in need of medical care.

Civil defense officials have written off the flood communities of South Fork, Myers Flat, Stafford and Weott, whose residents fled Tuesday.

Since 5 a.m. Wednesday the 2,500 inhabitants of Guerneville have lived on an island in the midst of the swirling Russian River. In the Little Stork Club saloon rescuers and flood victims stood knee-deep in muddy water toasting each other and making jokes about the sign reading "No Dancing Allowed."

Further north, near the coastal city of Eureka, about 1,000 refugees, including women and small children, stood on high sections of U.S. 101 waving to helicopters that rushed in with relief supplies.

California's 14 flood-stricken counties, with their total population of 558,200, cover 37,802 square miles — most of it wooded, mountainous terrain that makes rescue operations and communications almost impossible.

The Red Cross beefed up its forces in key areas to supply clothing, bedding and food. Police from as far south as San Francisco were flown in to relieve exhausted sheriff's deputies in northwestern Humboldt County.

The aircraft carrier Bennington steamed toward Eureka today to add its 20 helicopters to those of the Coast Guard.

A large food chain ordered 40,000 pounds of canned goods and produce flown from San Francisco to Eureka and promised unlimited credit to victims.

A 20-man search party plowed through dense underbrush 20 miles north of Eureka toward the wreckage of a Coast Guard helicopter downed Tuesday.

A search plane spotted the wreckage late Wednesday, but there was no indication that the three crewmen had survived.

Only one known death has been reported in the state, and that came Tuesday when a Montana man's car plunged off a bridge into a river.

Yuba City, in the area where 38 persons drowned in the 1955 Christmas Eve flood, was at the brink of evacuation Wednesday as the Feather River rose 76 feet above its bed. But a break in the storm lessened the threat and the city's 11,000 residents stood fast although warned they might have to leave if the storm worsens.

At Yosemite National Park 800 persons prepared for an extended stay after all roads became submerged by water and logs.

In Oregon, Gov. Mark Hatfield warned that the state "still faces critical times in the next 36 to 48 hours" despite a gradual receding of most flood-swollen rivers.

At Grant's Pass the Rogue River dropped eight feet in 14 hours but new rains left nearby residents without hope of relief from flooding.

National Guard and Air Force personnel were sent to North Albany 25 miles south of Salem early today to begin evacuating some 200 families.

In the Oregon state capital the flooding Mill Creek endangered a hospital and 100 patients were among the thousands forced to higher ground.

The death toll climbed to 10 when a car plunged 140 feet off a washed-out bridge over the John Day River, 120 miles east of Portland. It carried two Rufus, Ore. iron workers to their deaths.

Near the Washington-Oregon border 300 persons were stranded for the second day aboard two trains when slides blocked the tracks. The Air Force airlifted 1,000 pounds of food to the scene. Railroad officials could

Most U.S. Military in Viet Nam Are 'Not Volunteers'

By ELTIN C. FAY

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Pentagon says the big bulk of the approximately 22,000 American military men serving in South Viet Nam are there because they were ordered there — not because they volunteered.

It adds that "no formal inducements" are being made to get volunteers to sign up for duty there.

When the United States began giving military aid to South Viet Nam four years ago, a substantial part — if not an actual majority — of the American military men who went over to help in the war against Communist guerrillas were volunteers.

In answer to a question, the Defense Department said today that now "most people of all services are assigned as individuals, with few exceptions."

These exceptions include, in addition to the individual volunteers, units which are deployed to the war zone. These include Army Special Forces outfits and crews of Marine helicopter units which are rotated on Viet Nam duty.

Th Pentagon said that when volunteers for Viet Nam duty are qualified and there is a need for military occupation specialty, the volunteers are assigned before nonvolunteers.

Presumably, there are several reasons for the emphasis on ordering men to Viet Nam and the de-emphasis on relying on volunteers.

The U. S. effort to assist the South Vietnamese government has been expanded several fold since 1961. Volunteers would be insufficient to provide the numbers and specialized skills required.

Not all of the U.S. Army, Navy, Marines and Air Force personnel in Viet Nam are eligible for the extra $55 a month combat pay. This goes to volunteers and nonvolunteers alike in both South Viet Nam and Laos.

That directive specifies that for men to qualify they must be:

"Subject to hostile fire or explosion of hostile mines or in an area in which they are in imminent danger of being exposed to hostile fire or explosion of hostile mines; and in which during

Sweepstakes Winner Dies Broke

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Four years ago a retired Pullman porter won $140,000 in the Irish sweepstakes.

Friends said Wednesday that he died broke.

With his lucky money William Tyler rented his own Pullman car in 1960 and took seven friends on an 8,000-mile nationwide railroad tour that cost him $15,000.

Thereafter he never ceased talking about the trip. But when he succumbed to a heart ailment Tuesday at 83 in a rest home, he was living on county charity, friends of the Negro said.

Two of them will pay for Tyler's funeral next Tuesday.

Carson Boundaries Could Be Changed to Save Clay

Gazette Telegraph Staff Writer

The announced boundaries of Ft. Carson's 79,500-acre expansion to the south and southwest could be altered, U. S. Army Corps of Engineers' civilian spokesman Grant Rice said in Omaha, Neb. this morning.

The government filed suit in Denver U. S. District Court Tuesday to acquire 45,131 acres of land within boundaries of the expansion.

Rice said his office, which is handling details of the expansion, received numerous requests from fire brick companies that boundaries be changed to save fire clay deposits.

"We're exploring, at Maj. Gen. A. J. Maroun's request, the possibility of changes in the expansion plan," Rice said. Maj. Gen. Maroun is commander of Ft. Carson and the 5th Infantry Division (Mech.)

The planned acquisition, under the federal government's power of eminent domain, would cut off valuable fire clay deposits used by brick manufacturers in Colorado Springs, Denver, Canon City and Pueblo.

The president of the Denver Fire Clay Co., G. W. Jensen, says they will be forced to shut their plant if the land is taken. This company employs 150 persons and has an annual payroll of over $600,000.

They have mined clay from land within the planned Ft. Carson expansion for over 40 years, according to Jensen.

He said most of the clay deposits are in Section 36, just

Store Purchases Defunct Paper's Headquarters

Headquarters for two unsuccessful Jamestown, N.Y. newspapers was purchased by Bigelow's Department Store for sales and service expansion.

One of the papers, the Jamestown Morning Sun, was run by Edward J. Byrne, former editor and publisher of the Free Press, and Mr. and Mrs. Constantine Poulos, formerly of 1708 N. Tejon St.

The building also once housed the Jamestown Morning Star. It was sold by the Jamestown Newspaper Corporation, publishers of the evening Jamestown Post-Journal.

In December 1950 Byrne and Mr. and Mrs. Poulos purchased the majority interest in the Sun from Unitypo Inc., a subsidiary of the International Typographical Union.

Poulos was formerly managing editor of the Free Press, and Mrs. Poulos was a reporter at the union newspaper, which is operated by the ITU. She had also been on the staff of the Gazette Telegraph.

In April 1960, after Byrne had been editor-publisher of the Sun for only a few months, he resigned and Mr. and Mrs. Poulos took over his job.

The Sun, started by the ITU in April 1949 as a result of a printers' strike at the afternoon Post-Journal, folded operations June 30, 1962.

Progress Noted in Railroad Talks

WASHINGTON (AP) — Railroads and five operating unions have made progress in discussing issues that had brought a strike threat, and the talks will continue Jan. 5.

This word came from the federal mediator, Francis A. O'Neill Jr., who said some advances had been made on job security, the major remaining question. The deadline for agreement has again been extended, O'Neill said, and there is at present no threat of a strike over job security.

These talks are apart from wage negotiations by there non-operating unions which have posed the threat of a strike after Jan. 1.

U. S. Serviceman In Viet Nam Sends Letter

EDITOR'S NOTE — This is a Christmas letter from one of the 20,000 U.S. servicemen on duty in Viet Nam. It was written from the war-torn Mekong delta by Army Capt. Don Masters to his wife Ann in Austin, Tex., and made available to The Associated Press.

CAN THO, South Viet Nam (AP) —

My Dearest,

It's the 21st of December and you can tell Christmas is drawing near. But some of the traditional atmosphere is missing. It's hot and muggy in Viet Nam's Mekong delta.

Tonight grown men stood around a wilting Christmas tree in shirt sleeves and short trousers singing carols. The tree stood on a mound of sandbags. Its base was covered by a white bed sheet.

There were a handful of American children — missionaries, dependents and children of the American civilian doctors who spend two or more years working with the Vietnamese in their hospitals. The American children stood side by side with the little brown Vietnamese children whose parents work inside the compound.

I couldn't swear that behind those little brown eyes lay a brain schooled in Christianity, or whether the gleam in their eyes saw the figurine of the Christ child or the gaily decorated packages.

But if my God is the God I know, he won't mind.

When the presents were handed out, the American children helped the timid litte hands carefully open their gifts. It seemed the smaller the child the bigger the present.

Some American children received the small less expensive presents. I asked one little 10-year-old girl how she liked her present.

"That la rat dep," she said.

I frowned.

"That means it is beautiful," an American child said.

"Oh," I said.

The little American girl leaned over and whispered, "I asked mommy to save the big ones for home. Theirs — she pointed to the Vietnamese — should be the big ones."

She left me to go over and admire their presents.

When the party was over I went back to my room. I wanted to be alone with the pictures of you and the children. I sat down at my desk and gazed at you for a long while, just dreaming.

I almost opened my Christmas present; but then I am a grown man. I guess I can wait. At least I'll try.

The music on the armed forces radio station told of chestnuts roasting over an open fire and "yet in the dark street shineth the everlasting light."

I picked up the Christmas cards I had received. . . .

There was a card from Mr. Yen, a Vietnamese combat photographer. 'Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year' written in Vietnamese, English and French. Well, you can't go wrong there. And engraved was a picture showing Yen with his camera over his shoulder wading waist deep across a stream alongside a Vietnamese rifle squad.

And a card from each one of our four little ones. And then there was the one card from you — the gal who made it all possible. The same hair, the same eyes, the same mouth.

I got to feeling pretty low. So I decided to turn in for the night.

I started getting dressed for bed when I noticed an unmarked envelope on my pillow. The houseboy must have put it there while I was at the party.

Scrawled in a halting handwriting were the words: "You have left your country and your family to come here and to stand with us in the fight for freedom. We are very grateful to you. On the occasion of Christmas and the New Year we wish you a good year, good health to your family and that our combat obtains victory."

It was signed Yung, a student of Gia Long secondary school.

I felt better. I turned out the lights and opened the curtain. I looked up into the moonlit sky. In the distance the artillery boomed in the damp, still air.

Yes, I can wait until Christmas to open my present.

Love, Don.

Huge Military Plane May Benefit Airlines Plans

By ROGER LANE

NEW YORK (AP) — A 750-passenger commercial jetliner, if an economic version ever appears, would revolutionize today's scheduled airline opera-

However, its debut is unlikely before the mid-1970s. Its most exciting possibility then: sharp fare cuts for long-hop travel, greatly stimulating coast-to-coast and overseas passenger traffic.

That, in a nutshell, was first airline reaction to a prospect raised by government plans to pour $750 million into develop a giant military-equipment and troop carrier with 250,000 pounds of pay lift.

A regular transatlantic jet handles 45 tons of cargo on a standard flight, or 120 passengers. Economy flights can take as many as 170 passengers.

The government's announcement Tuesday stirred speculation of a commercial sequel, even though Defense Secertary Robert S. McNamara said there were no thoughts along that line.

Major airlines sidestepped on-the-record comment beyond general expressions of interest, citing the many "ifs" involved on operating characteristics, operating costs and purchase price.

Selig Altschul, an aviation financial consultant, said if a commercial version met severe demands of economic operation, it probably would open the way for sizable fare cuts and result in a "great stimulation" of travel, chiefly to Europe.

"But there would be offsets to economies of size, he added. "Great improvements would be required by such a huge plane in ground handling facilities.

He mentioned extremely heavy demands on facilities for food service, baggage handling, sanitation, boarding and ticketing that today's airports are not equipped to cope with.

"How do you go about feeding a mob like that?" said a representative of Pan American World Airways.

An American Airlines official, asked about the attractiveness of a 750-ton behemoth in New York-Los Angeles service, observed that three airlines flying the route now carry roughly 1,500 persons each way spread among two dozen flights.

"You might say that would be two loads each way. What kind of frequently of service would this allow?" he asked. "Certainly not what today's air traveler has come to demand."

An Eastern Air Lines spokesman said "some limited use" could be foreseen in the 1970s for such a giant plane, assuming it could be designed for profitable operation.

At peak periods now Pan Am operates about 110 schedules a week to Europe, carrying perhaps 2,000 passengers a day in 16 flights.

Bigger capacity planes conceivably would fit into such a dense, long-distance pattern of service.

"You're talking about another revolution in air travel," one executive said. "For a 700-passenger plane to be fitted into today's service patterns would require tremendous changs up and down the line—in waiting rooms, terminals, taxiways and all the rest.

"Can you imagine 700 people disembarking from one plan on a rainy night and heading for the telephones or cab stand?"

Pope Proposes Spending to Fight Poverty

By BENNET M. BOLTON

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope Paul VI appears determined to push a campaign to encourage nations to convert arms money into a fund to ease poverty in the world.

He brought up the idea a second time in his annual Christmas message Tuesday night.

The Roman Catholic pontiff first made such an appeal early this month while in Bombay. The teeming masses of India's impoverished moved him to urge nations to spend some of their armament funds for the relief of hunger and suffering.

In his Christmas address, Pope Paul said: "We would like to see a generous-minded investigation of how — at least in part and by stages — military expenditure could be diverted to humanitarian ends."

He said advantages would come to both the contributing countries and those in need.

Since his original suggestion, the Pope apparently has decided the first step toward a world fund should be research into how the idea can be made concrete.

Pope Paul devoted several sections of his Christmas message to the needy.

"We do not hesitate," he said, "to make our own, once more, the pleas of the innumerable poor and suffering today, in need of genuine and substantial relief."

He asked that the newborn Christ comfort the poor with His love and "spur all who have the power and the means — those most of all who are responsible for the common good — to unite in a constructive effort, in an effective solidarity, to bring new means, speedy remedies and suitable plans to bear on the immense needs of the world's poor and and on their hopes which cannot continue to be disappointed."

The Pope spoke of other things as obstacles to universal brotherhood — nationalism, racism and militarism — in addition to social inequality. He urged that brotherhood be given recognition.

"This today more than ever is our program, convinced as we are that the world needs love, needs o break the bonds of selfishness within itself, needs to open out to a sincere, ever increasing, universal brotherhood," he said.

Pope Paul also stressed that the Roman Catholic Church opposes efforts to impose a religious faith by force or to "shake the foundations" of beliefs not contrary to the common good.

Those points are contained in a declaration of the Vatican Ecumenical Council which Pope Paul did not allow to come to a vote at the council session which ended early this month. The Pope apprently included them in his Christmas address in an effort to assure that the declration would not be allowed to die.

Florence Fire Truck Purchase Delayed Again

The purchase of a new fire truck, which is taking longer to resolve than the building of a new water plant, the establishment of the sanitation district, or the adoption of a city cigarette tax, was delayed again Monday night at a meeting of the Florence city council after a long and heated discussion prior to the re-opening of bids for the truck.

The debate, kicked off at the opening of the meeting by a communication from Canon City Attorney Robert Fredrickson, representing the Vendetti Chevrolet company, lasted the better part of the meeting.

Frederickson, in representing Vendetti Chevrolet company, stated in his letter to the council that he felt the first fire truch bid submitted by Vendetti should have been accepted by the council since it was the only valid bid offered at the Nov. 16 session.

City Attorney Erick Roberts reminded the council that it acted legally by rejecting any and all bids, which the council did at its last meeting. The attorney also explained that the council was within its legal rights to draw up new specifications and call for new bids, which he also pointed out the council could accept or reject.

Still displeased over the action of the council at its last meeting, Councilman Dom Vento flatly stated that he did not believe the council could reject bids.

Meanwhile, Councilman Roy Palmer, chairman of the fire committee who publicly was assuming much of the blame for the delay in getting the fire truck hassle out of proportion, reversed his stand of Dec. 7 and stated he believed the first bid should have gone to Vendetti Chevrolet company on the basis of specifications submitted.

Councilman Leonard Lloyd then waged a verbal battle with both Palmer and Vento over the initial bid fiasco and remarked that the initial specifications were so drawn as to eliminate Luke's Motor company, local Ford agency, from competing with Vendetti Chevrolet.

When the general discussion on the bids became bogged down in technicalities, Councilman Gale Decker made a motion that the new bids be called to the table and opened. He further suggested that the new bids be read, copies made of same and distributed to the fire chief, fire department, members of the fire committee and other city councilmen for study. He added to his motion that a final discussion and decision be postponed until a recommendation was made by the fire department, the fire committe and then approved or overruled by the council.

Decker asked that not only highly technical aspects of the two trucks be studied, but also price be considered as a factor. His motion failed to receive a second and died on the floor.

Council member Bonney Lopez then made a motion to open the new bids. Palmer made a second to this motion and the council voted 6-1 to open the bids. Councilman Vento opposed the new bid opening.

The bids were read with Vendetti Chevrolet company bidding $4,925.90 and Luke's Motor company submitting the low bid of $4,761.30.

The council then started to study the specifications and make comparisons. However, Councilman Lloyd stated that the whole meeting would soon become snarled on items which councilmen were unfamiliar with and suggested a return to Decker's study plan. Decker re-submitted his earlier motion and Lloyd seconded this motion. The council voted for the study plan by a count of 5-2. Palmer and Vento voted against the study.

Turning to routine items of business, the council heard a report of City Manager Frank Carochi, who announced that reservoir No. 1-2 has 18 feet of water with ½ inch coming in from Newlin Creek. He also reported that 200 water meters have turned up damaged and must be replaced in the spring. He further reported that work on the sprinkling system at Pioneer Park is being concluded the week with the installation of pipe around the bandstand and other buildings in the park area.

Carochi announced there is a need for a new malicious mischief ordinance, which the council agreed will be presented for discussion at its next meeting. The council has also agreed to make certain minor changes in the water ordinance regarding rates, which is currently under discussion by the water committee.

The manager also announced that the state health department is disturbed over the growing rodent problem that the city dump and has asked for city help in this area.

A representative from the Stearns Brothers spoke briefly to the council and reported that by a proposed legal transaction the firm can save the council a total of $17,441.77 on its current refunding program, which the Denver firm is handling. The council agreed to work out details of this transaction with the firm.

Mayor Charles Cristelli asked the city manager for a report on the franchise agreement currently being negotiated between the city of Florence and the Southern Colorado Power company. Carochi stated that negotiations are under way and broke down the city's power bill, listed at $17,000 annually. Biggest single item is the street lighting which costs Florence $9,690 a year. The water plant costs $2,628 in power outlay, while the city hall uses $519 per year.

At a previous meeting, the city manager indicated that he would attempt to seek a lower power rate for the city as a municipal corporation. He noted that the franchise will be up for council discussion sometime in January.

The only light note during the meeting was injected by members of the Florence High School chorus, who were out on the town singing Christmas carols. The choir's director, Louis Means, stopped by the council chambers and asked the mayor permission for the choir to sing a couple of numbers. Mayor Cristelli, about to plunge into the business of the fire truck bids, gladly called a brief recess to let in a glimmer of "peace on earth, good will toward men," before reopening the biggest Pandora's box since the issue of 2-hour parking on Main Street.

May the glad tidings of this joyous Season bring lasting peace to every heart.

Progress Noted in Railroad Talks

WASHINGTON (AP) — Railroads and five operating unions have made progress in discussing issues that had brought a strike threat, and the talks will continue Jan. 5.

This word came from the federal mediator, Francis A. O'Neill Jr., who said some advances had been made on job security, the major remaining question. The deadline for agreement has again been extended, O'Neill said, and there is at present no threat of a strike over job security.

These talks are apart from wage negotiations by there non-operating unions which have posed the threat of a strike after Jan. 1.

U. S. Serviceman In Viet Nam Sends Letter

EDITOR'S NOTE — This is a Christmas letter from one of the 20,000 U.S. servicemen on duty in Viet Nam. It was written from the war-torn Mekong delta by Army Capt. Don Masters to his wife Ann in Austin, Tex., and made available to The Associated Press.

CAN THO, South Viet Nam (AP) —

My Dearest,

It's the 21st of December and you can tell Christmas is drawing near. But some of the traditional atmosphere is missing It's hot and muggy in Viet Nam's Mekong delta.

Tonight grown men stood around a wilting Christmas tree in shirt sleeves and short trousers singing carols. The tree stood on a mound of sandbags. Its base was covered by a white bed sheet.

There were a handful of American children — missionaries, dependents and children of the American civilian doctors who spend two or more years working with the Vietnamese in their hospitals. The American children stood side by side with the little brown Vietnamese children whose parents work inside the compound.

I couldn't swear that behind those little brown eyes lay a brain schooled in Christianity, or whether the gleam in their eyes saw the figurine of the Christ child or the gaily decorated packages.

But if my God is the God I know, he won't mind.

When the presents were handed out, the American children helped the timid litte hands carefully open their gifts. It seemed the smaller the child the bigger the present.

Some American children received the small less expensive presents. I asked one little 10-year-old girl how she liked her present.

"That la rat dep," she said.

I frowned.

"That means it is beautiful," an American child said.

"Oh," I said.

The little American girl leaned over and whispered, "I asked mommy to save the big ones for home. Theirs — she pointed to the Vietnamese — should be the big ones."

She left me to go over and admire their presents.

When the party was over I went back to my room. I wanted to be alone with the pictures of you and the children. I sat down at my desk and gazed at you for a long while, just dreaming.

I almost opened my Christmas present; but then I am a grown man. I guess I can wait. At least I'll try.

The music on the armed forces radio station told of chestnuts roasting over an open fire and "yet in the dark street shineth the everlasting light."

I picked up the Christmas cards I had received. . . .

There was a card from Mr. Yen, a Vietnamese combat photographer. 'Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year' written in Vietnamese, English and French. Well, you can't go wrong there. And engraved was a picture showing Yen with his camera over his shoulder wading waist deep across a stream alongside a Vietnamese rifle squad.

And a card from each one of our four little ones. And then there was the one card from you — the gal who made it all possible. The same hair, the same eyes, the same mouth.

I got to feeling pretty low. So I decided to turn in for the night.

I started getting dressed for bed when I noticed an unmarked envelope on my pillow. The houseboy must have put it there while I was at the party.

Scrawled in a halting handwriting were the words: "You have left your country and your family to come here and to stand with us in the fight for freedom. We are very grateful to you. On the occasion of Christmas and the New Year we wish you a good year, good health to your family and that our combat obtains victory."

It was signed Yung, a student of Gia Long secondary school.

I felt better. I turned out the lights and opened the curtain. I looked up into the moonlit sky. In the distance the artillery boomed in the damp, still air.

Yes, I can wait until Christmas to open my present.

Love, Don.

Huge Military Plane May Benefit Airlines Plans

By ROGER LANE

NEW YORK (AP) — A 750-passenger commercial jetliner, if an economic version ever appears, would revolutionize today's scheduled airline opera-

However, its debut is unlikely before the mid-1970s. Its most exciting possibility then: sharp fare cuts for long-hop travel, greatly stimulating coast-to-coast and overseas passenger traffic.

That, in a nutshell, was first airline reaction to a prospect raised by government plans to pour $750 million into develop a giant military-equipment and troop carrier with 250,000 pounds of pay lift.

A regular transatlantic jet handles 45 tons of cargo on a standard flight, or 120 passengers. Economy flights can take as many as 170 passengers.

The government's announcement Tuesday stirred speculation of a commercial sequel, even though Defense Secertary Robert S. McNamara said there were no thoughts along that line.

Major airlines sidestepped on-the-record comment beyond general expressions of interest, citing the many "ifs" involved on operating characteristics, operating costs and purchase price.

Selig Altschul, an aviation financial consultant, said if a commercial version met severe demands of economic operation, it probably would open the way for sizable fare cuts and result in a "great stimulation" of travel, chiefly to Europe.

"But there would be offsets to economies of size, he added. "Great improvements would be required by such a huge plane in ground handling facilities.

He mentioned extremely heavy demands on facilities for food service, baggage handling, sanitation, boarding and ticketing that today's airports are not equipped to cope with.

"How do you go about feeding a mob like that?" said a representative of Pan American World Airways.

An American Airlines official, asked about the attractiveness of a 750-ton behemoth in New York-Los Angeles service, observed that three airlines flying the route now carry roughly 1,500 persons each way spread among two dozen flights.

"You might say that would be two loads each way. What kind of frequently of service would this allow?" he asked. "Certainly not what today's air traveler has come to demand."

An Eastern Air Lines spokesman said "some limited use" could be foreseen in the 1970s for such a giant plane, assuming it could be designed for profitable operation.

At peak periods now Pan Am operates about 110 schedules a week to Europe, carrying perhaps 2,000 passengers a day in 16 flights.

Bigger capacity planes conceivably would fit into such a dense, long-distance pattern of service.

"You're talking about another revolution in air travel," one executive said. "For a 700-passenger plane to be fitted into today's service patterns would require tremendous changs up and down the line—in waiting rooms, terminals, taxiways and all the rest.

"Can you imagine 700 people disembarking from one plan on a rainy night and heading for the telephones or cab stand?"

Pope Proposes Spending to Fight Poverty

By BENNET M. BOLTON

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope Paul VI appears determined to push a campaign to encourage nations to convert arms money into a fund to ease poverty in the world.

He brought up the idea a second time in his annual Christmas message Tuesday night.

The Roman Catholic pontiff first made such an appeal early this month while in Bombay. The teeming masses of India's impoverished moved him to urge nations to spend some of their armament funds for the relief of hunger and suffering.

In his Christmas address, Pope Paul said: "We would like to see a generous-minded investigation of how — at least in part and by stages — military expenditure could be diverted to humanitarian ends."

He said advantages would come to both the contributing countries and those in need.

Since his original suggestion, the Pope apparently has decided the first step toward a world fund should be research into how the idea can be made concrete.

Pope Paul devoted several sections of his Christmas message to the needy.

"We do not hesitate," he said, "to make our own, once more, the pleas of the innumerable poor and suffering today, in need of genuine and substantial relief."

He asked that the newborn Christ comfort the poor with His love and "spur all who have the power and the means — those most of all who are responsible for the common good — to unite in a constructive effort, in an effective solidarity, to bring new means, speedy remedies and suitable plans to bear on the immense needs of the world's poor and and on their hopes which cannot continue to be disappointed."

The Pope spoke of other things as obstacles to universal brotherhood — nationalism, racism and militarism — in addition to social inequality. He urged that brotherhood be given recognition.

"This today more than ever is our program, convinced as we are that the world needs love, needs o break the bonds of selfishness within itself, needs to open out to a sincere, ever increasing, universal brotherhood," he said.

Pope Paul also stressed that the Roman Catholic Church opposes efforts to impose a religious faith by force or to "shake the foundations" of beliefs not contrary to the common good.

Those points are contained in a declaration of the Vatican Ecumenical Council which Pope Paul did not allow to come to a vote at the council session which ended early this month. The Pope apprently included them in his Christmas address in an effort to assure that the declration would not be allowed to die.

Florence Fire Truck Purchase Delayed Again

The purchase of a new fire truck, which is taking longer to resolve than the building of a new water plant, the establishment of the sanitation district, or the adoption of a city cigarette tax, was delayed again Monday night at a meeting of the Florence city council after a long and heated discussion prior to the re-opening of bids for the truck.

The debate, kicked off at the opening of the meeting by a communication from Canon City Attorney Robert Fredrickson, representing the Vendetti Chevrolet company, lasted the better part of the meeting.

Frederickson, in representing Vendetti Chevrolet company, stated in his letter to the council that he felt the first fire truch bid submitted by Vendetti should have been accepted by the council since it was the only valid bid offered at the Nov. 16 session.

City Attorney Erick Roberts reminded the council that it acted legally by rejecting any and all bids, which the council did at its last meeting. The attorney also explained that the council was within its legal rights to draw up new specifications and call for new bids, which he also pointed out the council could accept or reject.

Still displeased over the action of the council at its last meeting, Councilman Dom Vento flatly stated that he did not believe the council could reject bids.

Meanwhile, Councilman Roy Palmer, chairman of the fire committee who publicly was assuming much of the blame for the delay in getting the fire truck hassle out of proportion, reversed his stand of Dec. 7 and stated he believed the first bid should have gone to Vendetti Chevrolet company on the basis of specifications submitted.

Councilman Leonard Lloyd then waged a verbal battle with both Palmer and Vento over the initial bid fiasco and remarked that the initial specifications were so drawn as to eliminate Luke's Motor company, local Ford agency, from competing with Vendetti Chevrolet.

When the general discussion on the bids became bogged down in technicalities, Councilman Gale Decker made a motion that the new bids be called to the table and opened. He further suggested that the new bids be read, copies made of same and distributed to the fire chief, fire department, members of the fire committee and other city councilmen for study. He added to his motion that a final discussion and decision be postponed until a recommendation was made by the fire department, the fire committe and then approved or overruled by the council.

Decker asked that not only highly technical aspects of the two trucks be studied, but also price be considered as a factor. His motion failed to receive a second and died on the floor.

Council member Bonney Lopez then made a motion to open the new bids. Palmer made a second to this motion and the council voted 6-1 to open the bids. Councilman Vento opposed the new bid opening.

The bids were read with Vendetti Chevrolet company bidding $4,925.90 and Luke's Motor company submitting the low bid of $4,761.30.

The council then started to study the specifications and make comparisons. However, Councilman Lloyd stated that the whole meeting would soon become snarled on items which councilmen were unfamiliar with and suggested a return to Decker's study plan. Decker re-submitted his earlier motion and Lloyd seconded this motion. The council voted for the study plan by a count of 5-2. Palmer and Vento voted against the study.

Turning to routine items of business, the council heard a report of City Manager Frank Carochi, who announced that reservoir No. 1-2 has 18 feet of water with ½ inch coming in from Newlin Creek. He also reported that 200 water meters have turned up damaged and must be replaced in the spring. He further reported that work on the sprinkling system at Pioneer Park is being concluded the week with the installation of pipe around the bandstand and other buildings in the park area.

Carochi announced there is a need for a new malicious mischief ordinance, which the council agreed will be presented for discussion at its next meeting. The council has also agreed to make certain minor changes in the water ordinance regarding rates, which is currently under discussion by the water committee.

The manager also announced that the state health department is disturbed over the growing rodent problem that the city dump and has asked for city help in this area.

A representative from the Stearns Brothers spoke briefly to the council and reported that by a proposed legal transaction the firm can save the council a total of $17,441.77 on its current refunding program, which the Denver firm is handling. The council agreed to work out details of this transaction with the firm.

Mayor Charles Cristelli asked the city manager for a report on the franchise agreement currently being negotiated between the city of Florence and the Southern Colorado Power company. Carochi stated that negotiations are under way and broke down the city's power bill, listed at $17,000 annually. Biggest single item is the street lighting which costs Florence $9,690 a year. The water plant costs $2,628 in power outlay, while the city hall uses $519 per year.

At a previous meeting, the city manager indicated that he would attempt to seek a lower power rate for the city as a municipal corporation. He noted that the franchise will be up for council discussion sometime in January.

The only light note during the meeting was injected by members of the Florence High School chorus, who were out on the town singing Christmas carols. The choir's director, Louis Means, stopped by the council chambers and asked the mayor permission for the choir to sing a couple of numbers. Mayor Cristelli, about to plunge into the business of the fire truck bids, gladly called a brief recess to let in a glimmer of "peace on earth, good will toward men," before reopening the biggest Pandora's box since the issue of 2-hour parking on Main Street.

May the glad tidings of this joyous Season bring lasting peace to every heart.

Child Will Not Lose Other Eye To Cancer

IVANHOE, Calif. (AP) — A happier Christmas is in store golden-haired, blue-eyed child, had just lost her left eye to cancer and physicians were pessimistic about her chances of keeping the other eye.

Nationwide press and broadcasting coverage, along with the Christmas spirit, resulted in thousands of letters containing best wishes and money.

Local students from Tulare County schools united to stage a "Little Miss Snow's Benefit Hootenany" and collected $2,000 for medical expenses.

Some students gave up trips to the Rose Bowl football game to help Margaret.

Christmas Day 1964 finds Margaret, now 3½, happy and healthy. She didn't lose her right eye and Dr. Max Goldstein says the chance of the malignancy spreading grows less every day.

And, if the illness appears again, the Snows have saved more than $2,400 from last Christmas.

The family was one of the 18 temporarily down-and-out households whose Christmas was brightened by gifts of food, clothing, toys, and holiday decorations, and, as in this case, appliances. Home Appliance Co., which contributed and installed the washer free of charge, was among several Colorado Springs merchants which assisted ARADCOM in bringing cheer to the adopted families.

Court Takes Swipe At Credit Card

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — The U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals has taken a swipe at the credit card.

The court at New Orleans said credit cards have value only to the company, as a device for making invoices, and cannot be classed as a security.

The court overthrew the conviction of a Jacksonville man who is serving four years for interstate transportation of a stolen credit card.

Christmas Comes to America in Many Ways

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Christmas 1964 comes to America in many ways.

It comes in the appeal of a child—

Bobby Panichelle, 5-year-old Philadelphia boy, heeded the plea of his brother, Stephen, 7, to give up his favorite stuffed poodle for a collection for the poor. Bobby agreed, but got in the last word, as shown in this letter Stephen placed with their toys:

"These are my toys and they are old but they are in good condishin so I would like you to have these toys and I hope you injoy them and I hope you have as much fun with them as I did.

"I know your not as forchanit as I am because I will be getting new toys for Christmas I hope...

"P.S. My little brother said that when you are done with the poodle dog please give it back to him because he loves it."

Christmas comes with happy shoppers; and with the joy an old man found late in life—

James A. Fitton, 82, a pensioner in New Orleans, was orphaned in England and said he was so poor he never got a present as a youngster.

"I never was happy in my whole life," he said. "Then one day I hit on the Santa Claus idea. I became the happiest man in the world."

That's why Fitton, who has a real beard, walks around town in a ragged Santa Claus suit, to share his joy with children.

Christmas comes in the heart of Danny Doyle, the New York City bartender who collects money from his customers all year round to throw one big party for underprivileged city kids.

It comes in the smile of a 4-year-old Mandan, N.D. boy who got a new pair of legs, and in the gratitude of Frank Bolek of Hamtramck, Mich.

Bolek saved for weeks to accumulate $330 for Christmas for his family. He hid the money in the toe of an old shoe. His wife threw it out with rubbish.

Seven Hamtramck garbage collectors sifted through 40,000 pounds of trash before they found the shoe — and the money.

"To them, I can only offer heartfelt thanks and the prayers of myself, my wife and my four children, because we will have a merry Christmas due to their unselfishness," Bolek wrote to the mayor.

Christmas comes in the words of Mary Anne Murray, 11, leaving a Philadelphia hospital:

"I don't care about getting any presents because being home is the greatest gift anybody could receive."

She was badly burned Sept. 20 when she re-entered her blazing home in the mistaken belief that her uncle was still inside Doctors told her she could leave the hospital Thursday and spend the holidays with him.

Christmas comes with the love of the boy who darted out of a group of 150 children from settlement houses at a White House party and threw his arms around President Johnson's legs in a tight hug.

It comes with the pleasure Marie Plant Roth of Utica, N.Y., will get from setting the oven controls for the Christmas dinner. She can see the numerals, for the first time.

Her sight so poor as to be officially classed as blind, Mrs. Roth was given vision by a newly developed type of glasses. She viewed her gain as an opportunity to serve: "When I can help myself, I have more time to help someone else."

Christmas comes, too, with bittersweetness to the John Lietz family in Berkeley, Mo. Last year there were presents for two children, Kevin and Susan, both afflicted with the rare Nieman-pick disease, a fatal degeneration of the nervous system.

Kevin died at 3. Susan, now 3, has reached the point of confinement to chair or bed.

"We tried to treat Kevin and Susan like any other children," Mrs. Lietz said. "If they needed a little spanking, we gave it to them. A spoiled child tends to weep and we always wanted to keep Susan and Kevin as cheerful as we could."

Then she added: "I suppose we've wound up spoiling them a little — particularly near the end."

Hanover News

By MRS. RUTH CHISMAN

Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Reble, Virginia and Timmy and Fannie's mother, Mrs. Maude Patterson, had dinner Saturday Dec. 12 with Mr. and Mrs. Billy Reble and boys. In the afternoon they went shopping.

Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Reble, Virginia and Timmy and Mr. and Mrs. Roy Chisman attended church Sunday evening, Dec. 13 at Immanuel Baptist Church in Security. They visited a short while at the McGuire home before the service.

The Baker family relatives had their Christmas family get-together at the Henry Hammer home. Most of the relatives attended but Mr. and Mrs. Everett Ball and family, Wanda and husband and Virgil Lessenden. There are over 70 in the family now, so they have quite a time a get-together when they all assemble.

The Christmas program held at the Hanover Community Church was well attended and the boys and girls presented their parts well in portraying Christ's birth, and the ones who had worked so hard deserve much credit for the success.

Mrs. Dorothy Owen is in a Colorado Springs hospital. She will undergo surgery Monday, Dec. 21. Our hopes and prayers are that it will be successful and that she will come home soon.

Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Reble, Virginia and Timmy attended the dedication service of Lawrence and Frances' baby girl Saturday, Dec. 19, at the Seventh Day Adventist Church in Colorado Springs.

Some clothing and cookies were collected and sent to the Brockhurst Boys Ranch Monday. These Boy Ranchers are certainly doing a commendable work, as there are many of our youth who need help.

Word was received that Charles Chisman would be able to start home Dec. 28 on his leave to visit his folks in Texas. He also wants to visit relatives in Colorado, if possible. He arrived in Long Beach Wednesday afternoon at 3:30 from Japan-Viet-Nam area.

Little Dwight Million had the misfortune to get a nut hull down into his lungs, so had to undergo surgery Saturday, Dec. 19. He is at home now, but still has to have extra care.

As families get together at Christmas may the peace of Christ dwell in their hearts, when we dwell in a troubled world, which has no peace but peace which Christ the Savior brings in hearts of men.

Good wishes are expressed to our faithful mail carrier and family who serve us six days a week. May we not forget those who are laboring day by day to help make this a better America.

IVANHOE, Calif. (AP) — A happier Christmas is in store golden-haired, blue-eyed child, had just lost her left eye to cancer and physicians were pessimistic about her chances of keeping the other eye.

Nationwide press and broadcasting coverage, along with the Christmas spirit, resulted in thousands of letters containing best wishes and money.

Local students from Tulare County schools united to stage a "Little Miss Snow's Benefit Hootenany" and collected $2,000 for medical expenses.

Some students gave up trips to the Rose Bowl football game to help Margaret.

Christmas Eve, neighbors and appeared at the Snow's door dragging a huge cotton sack. The sack contained special presents for Margaret directly from Santa Claus.

Christmas Day 1964 finds Margaret, now 3½, happy and healthy. She didn't lose her right eye and Dr. Max Goldstein says the chance of the malignancy spreading grows less every day.

And, if the illness appears again, the Snows have saved more than $2,400 from last Christmas.

NEEDY FAMILY GETS WASHER — Sgt. 1.C. Bernard J. Reinhart (left) representing the Army Air Defense Command, and Hal Turner, salesman, of the Home Appliance Co., make a final check after installing a washing machine in the home of a needy family "adopted" by ARADCOM for Christmas. The family was one of the 18 temporarily down-and-out households whose Christmas was brightened by gifts of food, clothing, toys, and holiday decorations, and, as in this case, appliances. Home Appliance Co., which contributed and installed the washer free of charge, was among several Colorado Springs merchants which assisted ARADCOM in bringing cheer to the adopted families.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — The U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals has taken a swipe at the credit card.

The court at New Orleans said credit cards have value only to the company, as a device for making invoices, and cannot be classed as a security.

The court overthrew the conviction of a Jacksonville man who is serving four years for interstate transportation of a stolen credit card.

Christmas Comes to America in Many Ways

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Christmas 1964 comes to America in many ways.

It comes in the appeal of a child—

Bobby Panichelle, 5-year-old Philadelphia boy, heeded the plea of his brother, Stephen, 7, to give up his favorite stuffed poodle for a collection for the poor. Bobby agreed, but got in the last word, as shown in this letter Stephen placed with their toys:

"These are my toys and they are old but they are in good condishin so I would like you to have these toys and I hope you injoy them and I hope you have as much fun with them as I did.

"I know your not as forchanit as I am because I will be getting new toys for Christmas I hope...

"P.S. My little brother said that when you are done with the poodle dog please give it back to him because he loves it."

Christmas comes with happy shoppers; and with the joy an old man found late in life—

James A. Fitton, 82, a pensioner in New Orleans, was orphaned in England and said he was so poor he never got a present as a youngster.

"I never was happy in my whole life," he said. "Then one day I hit on the Santa Claus idea. I became the happiest man in the world."

That's why Fitton, who has a real beard, walks around town in a ragged Santa Claus suit, to share his joy with children.

Christmas comes in the heart of Danny Doyle, the New York City bartender who collects money from his customers all year round to throw one big party for underprivileged city kids.

It comes in the smile of a 4-year-old Mandan, N.D. boy who got a new pair of legs, and in the gratitude of Frank Bolek of Hamtramck, Mich.

Bolek saved for weeks to accumulate $330 for Christmas for his family. He hid the money in the toe of an old shoe. His wife threw it out with rubbish.

Seven Hamtramck garbage collectors sifted through 40,000 pounds of trash before they found the shoe — and the money.

"To them, I can only offer heartfelt thanks and the prayers of myself, my wife and my four children, because we will have a merry Christmas due to their unselfishness," Bolek wrote to the mayor.

Christmas comes in the words of Mary Anne Murray, 11, leaving a Philadelphia hospital:

"I don't care about getting any presents because being home is the greatest gift anybody could receive."

She was badly burned Sept. 20 when she re-entered her blazing home in the mistaken belief that her uncle was still inside Doctors told her she could leave the hospital Thursday and spend the holidays with him.

Christmas comes with the love of the boy who darted out of a group of 150 children from settlement houses at a White House party and threw his arms around President Johnson's legs in a tight hug.

It comes with the pleasure Marie Plant Roth of Utica, N.Y., will get from setting the oven controls for the Christmas dinner. She can see the numerals, for the first time.

Her sight so poor as to be officially classed as blind, Mrs. Roth was given vision by a newly developed type of glasses. She viewed her gain as an opportunity to serve: "When I can help myself, I have more time to help someone else."

Christmas comes, too, with bittersweetness to the John Lietz family in Berkeley, Mo. Last year there were presents for two children, Kevin and Susan, both afflicted with the rare Nieman-pick disease, a fatal degeneration of the nervous system.

Kevin died at 3. Susan, now 3, has reached the point of confinement to chair or bed.

"We tried to treat Kevin and Susan like any other children," Mrs. Lietz said. "If they needed a little spanking, we gave it to them. A spoiled child tends to weep and we always wanted to keep Susan and Kevin as cheerful as we could."

Then she added: "I suppose we've wound up spoiling them a little — particularly near the end."

Hanover News

By MRS. RUTH CHISMAN

Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Reble, Virginia and Timmy and Fannie's mother, Mrs. Maude Patterson, had dinner Saturday Dec. 12 with Mr. and Mrs. Billy Reble and boys. In the afternoon they went shopping.

Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Reble, Virginia and Timmy and Mr. and Mrs. Roy Chisman attended church Sunday evening, Dec. 13 at Immanuel Baptist Church in Security. They visited a short while at the McGuire home before the service.

The Baker family relatives had their Christmas family get-together at the Henry Hammer home. Most of the relatives attended but Mr. and Mrs. Everett Ball and family, Wanda and husband and Virgil Lessenden. There are over 70 in the family now, so they have quite a time a get-together when they all assemble.

The Christmas program held at the Hanover Community Church was well attended and the boys and girls presented their parts well in portraying Christ's birth, and the ones who had worked so hard deserve much credit for the success.

Mrs. Dorothy Owen is in a Colorado Springs hospital. She will undergo surgery Monday, Dec. 21. Our hopes and prayers are that it will be successful and that she will come home soon.

Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Reble, Virginia and Timmy attended the dedication service of Lawrence and Frances' baby girl Saturday, Dec. 19, at the Seventh Day Adventist Church in Colorado Springs.

Some clothing and cookies were collected and sent to the Brockhurst Boys Ranch Monday. These Boy Ranchers are certainly doing a commendable work, as there are many of our youth who need help.

Word was received that Charles Chisman would be able to start home Dec. 28 on his leave to visit his folks in Texas. He also wants to visit relatives in Colorado, if possible. He arrived in Long Beach Wednesday afternoon at 3:30 from Japan-Viet-Nam area.

Little Dwight Million had the misfortune to get a nut hull down into his lungs, so had to undergo surgery Saturday, Dec. 19. He is at home now, but still has to have extra care.

As families get together at Christmas may the peace of Christ dwell in their hearts, when we dwell in a troubled world, which has no peace but peace which Christ the Savior brings in hearts of men.

Good wishes are expressed to our faithful mail carrier and family who serve us six days a week. May we not forget those who are laboring day by day to help make this a better America.

Loony Larceny Noted In Nation's Reports

By MEADER G. PATTINGTON

NEW YORK (NEA) — Well, 1964 kept up the tradition. An enterprising theif stole the kitchen sink from a residence in Dundee, N.Y.

Weighty subjects were in the news. In Miami a robber took a 125-pound barbell from a country club and escaped by tossing it easily over a fence. And in Geneseo, N.Y., thieves really stretched things out, they got away with 48 miles of copper wire, stolen from the railroad. Another stout fellow in Stafford, England, carted an entire house away, a piece at a time.

Thieves in Tulsa, Okla., apparently liked the four new air compressors they took from a construction job. They returned the next night and took four more.

In Cambridge, Mass., two men tried to steal a two-car train. A porter, seeing warning lights flash, took after the would-be thieves; they got away but he recovered the train.

Some people stole the queerest things. In Montreal, a coffin was stolen from an undertaker supplier's truck. And in Jacksonville, Fla., a housewife discovered that someone had stolen the concrete steps at the back door. Three manhole covers were stolen by a thief in Pittsford, N.Y.

Cemeteries came in for their share of trouble. In Salzburg, Austria, a large cross was stolen. And a three-foot angel was stolen from a family monument at Geneva, N.Y.

In Phoenix, a skeleton was taken from the medical dispensary of the National Guard. And bookstore owners in Miami reported that items most frequently taken by shoplifters are copies of the Bible. Some even bring them back and try to exchange them for cash.

Police came in for attention in 1964. Rochester, N.Y., police reported the theft of a new filing cabinet from their Command Office. The mayor's car was stolen from the front of the town hall in Bedford, England, as he was attending a meeting on means of preventing auto thefts. Someone rolled off with all the billiard balls from the police department's recreation room in Huntington, W. Va.

Explosions did funny things. A blown safe in Sydney, Australia, knocked the telephone off the hook, thereby warning police headquarters.

Some burglars had rough going. As robbers were trying to escape from a bank in Bergamo, Italy, a grenade backfired and the two would-bes were badly injured.

The meanest men title should go to two men who picked the pocket of a badly injured man pinned under his car, then walked off and left their victim.

The only item taken from a home in Kannapolis, N.C., was the watchdog.

Youth made the news. A 10-year-old boy in Rochester, N.Y., had his crime spree halted. He had stolen: a hunting knife, two cigars, a suit, three rabbits, pair of shoes, head of lettuce (probably to feed the rabbits), a bicycle, two bars of soap, a bag of balloons.

A very calm bank robber in San Francisco relieved a teller of $1,400, and then walked slowly out of the bank, counting his money, probably to be sure he hadn't been short-changed.

Thieves in London broke into a garage. They left behind a medallion inscribed, "Thou Shalt Not Steal." And a shrunken head was stolen from a tavern in Port Moresby, New Guinea. The owner remarked that it was going to be difficult to get another one.

The carver of a stolen Indian doll in Bracebridge, Ont., explained that the thief had stolen a "Whammy Doll" and should beware. Eight money bags were stolen from a Phoenix, Ariz., bookkeeper. All were empty.

Some bandits fell on hard times. A Fort Worth, Tex., woman clerk yelled "Turn the machine gun on him . . ." and the young gunman fled with no money. "Only thing I could think of," she explained.

The unluckiest bandit was a mail thief in London who walked into the middle of the annual meeting of Britain's private detectives. He was recognized, the exits were sealed and Britain's private eyes caught the thief.

Two men were arrested on a Chicago subway for shoving and swearing at each other. At police headquarters it was learned that they were professional dips and that they had tried simultaneously to pick each other's pockets. Some crooks have no professional ethics at all.

But the easiest identification of the year was made with the co-operation of a safecracker who left—not a fingerprint—but the whole finger on the job. The safe he was cracking toppled over and cut it off. Police in Hopkins, Minn. had no problem making the identification.

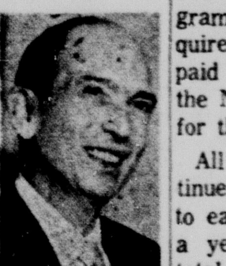
By STEVE TILLMAN



WASHINGTON (Special to the Gazette Telegraph) So far the Army has not given any indication as to the future of the more than 1200 civilians employed in the Army Reserve program as technicians. They are administrative assistants to the unit commanders and perform their military duty over week-ends. When the air merger is ready there will be some 5,000 civilian technicians involved in it.

Three high ranking Civil Service career employes in the Office of he Defense Secretary have been indicted by a Federal Court here on charges of theft of Government funds totaling $57,000.

Each of the three had a salary income in the neighborhood of $20,000 year. One of the three, the former head of the Budget and Finance Branch, was charged with stealing $40,000 of the funds. This is the first that high ranking civilian officials of the Department have been involved in stealing funds.

The word here is that when the Air Force considers its Reserve - National Guard revampment there will be a "switch." Rather than an Air National Guard it will be the Air Reserve. By giving the States strongly re-enforced ground troops there is to be created an immediate policing force available for local disturbances if needed.

President Johnson is expected to turn thumbs down on the proposal to give Federal employes both Civil Service retirement and Social Security system coverage. The study now under way on all Federal retirement systems is expected to recommend that Reserve officers not be given retired pay for military active duty as a Reservist and at the same time receive credit for this same period of active duty as Federal employe.

The reorganization of the Army Reserve and National Guard begins July 1, 1965, and should be completed by the end of the fiscal year. The program had advanced approval of the Senate and House leadership.

The only existing requirement needed to get the show rolling is approval by Congress to amend the existing budget program so as to eliminate the requirement for end of fiscal year paid drill spaces of 4000,000 for the National Guard and 300,000 for the Army Reserve.

All Reserve officers will continue to have the opportunity to earn their 35 training points a year. This will call for a total of 76 hours per year devoted to Reserve participation. Many will no longer receive drill pay for the 35 points.

For a Reserve Lt. Col. with 22 years service this comes to $30.24 per drill night or $1,451.52 per year. This is in addition to the annual 15 days training with pay and allowances. Reservists may also be attached to National Guard and Reserve units to take training without pay.

One of the earliest bills scheduled for introduction in the new congress will call for liberalization of Civil Service retired pay.

This is expected to be a 10 per cent increase on the first $2,400 of the annuity and a change in the annual automatic consideration of an increase from the present three per cent increase in the cost of living index to a two per cent increase. The White House is expected to support the proposals.

The Secretary of Defense is taking a dim view of the proposal to turn the Navy's Observatory Hill reservation here in Washington into an official residence for the Vice President. His views are equally negative with respect to turning a set of senior officer's quarters at Ft. McNair into the same use. Vice President and Mrs. Hubert Humphrey have intimated to friend that they have no desire to move from their present personally owned home to any official quarters.

Members of the Reserve Officers Association have been asked by the organization to write individual letters to their Senators and Congressmen protesting the change in the Army Reserve-National Guard make-up.

The directive from national headquarters of ROA contains this rather interesting reference to the Guard. "The National Guard represents a relatively small and very specialized element of the military Reserve Forces. Their leaders are political appointees of the various governors and their roots and organization are politically related." Both the National Guard Association and the Reserve Officers Association are registered with Congress as lobbyists.

Priest Was Not Given Permit For Ceremony

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (AP) — The Roman Catholic bishop of Jefferson City, Mo. says he did not give permission for a priest in his diocese to take part in the ordination of an Episcopal Priest at Palmyra, Mo. last Saturday.

It was disclosed Wednesday that the Most Rev. Joseph M. Marling, bishop of Jefferson City, also says that the priest, the Rev. John Schultz, committed a serious infraction of the church's canon law.

Father Schultz said the litany for the ordination of the Rev Richard H. Baker, vicar of St. Paul's Episcopal church in Palmyra. Schultz, assistant pastor at St. Pius X parish at Moberly, Mo., and Baker are good friends.

Assembly of God, Southern Baptist, Disciples of Christ, Methodist, Presbyterian and Roman Catholic clergymen marched in the procession which opened the ordination service.

Bishop Marling said in a letter addressed to priests in his charge: "It is my judgment that the act in question was a serious infraction of Canon 1258," which prohibits Roman Catholics from assisting in non-Roman Catholic services.

The Bishop said he had not been asked for permission to allow Father Schultz to take part in the service: "And had my permission been sought, it would have been refused."

Father Schultz said he had spoken with a member of the chancery staff and understood he had permission.

Father Schultz and a spokesman for the diocese said there had been no disciplinary action.

The Rt. Rev. George L. Cadigan, Episcopal bishop of Missouri, presided at the ordination and described the service as an example of "the ecumenical movement in the world."

They are administrative assistants to the unit commanders and perform their military duty over week-ends. When the air merger is ready there will be some 5,000 civilian technicians involved in it.

Three high ranking Civil Service career employes in the Office of he Defense Secretary have been indicted by a Federal Court here on charges of theft of Government funds totaling $57,000.

Each of the three had a salary income in the neighborhood of $20,000 year. One of the three, the former head of the Budget and Finance Branch, was charged with stealing $40,000 of the funds. This is the first that high ranking civilian officials of the Department have been involved in stealing funds.

The word here is that when the Air Force considers its Reserve - National Guard revampment there will be a "switch." Rather than an Air National Guard it will be the Air Reserve. By giving the States strongly re-enforced ground troops there is to be created an immediate policing force available for local disturbances if needed.

President Johnson is expected to turn thumbs down on the proposal to give Federal employes both Civil Service retirement and Social Security system coverage. The study now under way on all Federal retirement systems is expected to recommend that Reserve officers not be given retired pay for military active duty as a Reservist and at the same time receive credit for this same period of active duty as Federal employe.

The reorganization of the Army Reserve and National Guard begins July 1, 1965, and should be completed by the end of the fiscal year. The program had advanced approval of the Senate and House leadership.

The only existing requirement needed to get the show rolling is approval by Congress to amend the existing budget program so as to eliminate the requirement for end of fiscal year paid drill spaces of 4000,000 for the National Guard and 300,000 for the Army Reserve.

All Reserve officers will continue to have the opportunity to earn their 35 training points a year. This will call for a total of 76 hours per year devoted to Reserve participation. Many will no longer receive drill pay for the 35 points.

For a Reserve Lt. Col. with 22 years service this comes to $30.24 per drill night or $1,451.52 per year. This is in addition to the annual 15 days training with pay and allowances. Reservists may also be attached to National Guard and Reserve units to take training without pay.

One of the earliest bills scheduled for introduction in the new congress will call for liberalization of Civil Service retired pay.

This is expected to be a 10 per cent increase on the first $2,400 of the annuity and a change in the annual automatic consideration of an increase from the present three per cent increase in the cost of living index to a two per cent increase. The White House is expected to support the proposals.

The Secretary of Defense is taking a dim view of the proposal to turn the Navy's Observatory Hill reservation here in Washington into an official residence for the Vice President. His views are equally negative with respect to turning a set of senior officer's quarters at Ft. McNair into the same use. Vice President and Mrs. Hubert Humphrey have intimated to friend that they have no desire to move from their present personally owned home to any official quarters.

Members of the Reserve Officers Association have been asked by the organization to write individual letters to their Senators and Congressmen protesting the change in the Army Reserve-National Guard make-up.

The directive from national headquarters of ROA contains this rather interesting reference to the Guard. "The National Guard represents a relatively small and very specialized element of the military Reserve Forces. Their leaders are political appointees of the various governors and their roots and organization are politically related." Both the National Guard Association and the Reserve Officers Association are registered with Congress as lobbyists.

Killers of Priest Sentenced to Death

DACCA, East Pakistan (AP) — The Dacca high court sentenced five persons to death today for killing an American Catholic priest during a Hindu-Moslem riot.

The priest, Father Richard Novak, 28, of Johnstown, Pa., taught at Notre Dame College in Dacca. He was attacked last Jan. 16.

The District court had sentenced one of the killers to death and the other four to life imprisonment. The high court judge overruled the district court and said all five deserved death for "a coldblooded murder."

The five men can appeal to the Supreme Court within 30 days, but their lawyer said they have no money.

Dear Ele and Walt: I need some gift suggestion for my girl friend's 22-year-old brother. Every morning he drives his sister and me to the bus line ner school. What can I give him to thank him? — No Idea

Dear No: We suggest you give your thank-you gift in January. If you give the boy a Christmas gift, he may think you're giving it out of affection and feel forced to give you a present in return. If you give your gift at no special season, he will understand clearly that it's a simple thank-you present, and won't feel obligated to repay the gift.

At the proper time you might bake him a cake, buy a gift appropriate to his hobbies, or give his car a good wash and polish. — Ele and Walt

Dear DATE-LINE: I want your opinion on whether a car lowers your grades or not. My family is discussing this a lot. — Car Owner

Dear Owner: Apparently your grades are down. Why? If the car is a recent addition to your life, it's no wonder your family suspects that's the reason for your sagging studies.

Nothing we might say would convince them otherwise. Best bet for you is to really hit the books over the holidays and try to get caught up. Then when you return to school, go all out to prove to them that gas and high grades can mix! — Ele and Walt

Dear Ele and Walt: I'm so very absent-minded, it's pitiful. Say I'm going to town to get something. Before I get there I'll forget what I'm going for! Sometimes at home I'll put a book down on a chair, and I'll look all over the house before I find it.

I also forget to bring along things I'm supposed to, like money, notices, etc. It's by pure luck and rich friends that I haven't gotten into trouble yet. Do you think I should see a psychiatrist or something? — Mr. Absent-Minded.

Dear Mr. Absent-Minded: Forgetfulness is a common disease, so relax. Here's our prescription for you: (1) Before you embark on errands, jot down all the things you have to accomplish. Then check them off the list as you do them. Don't rely on your neglectful memory.

(2) Last minute preparations cause a lot of forgetfulness. So start getting ready earlier, and save time for a last minute survey of your pockets before you exit.

(3) Tag every sweater, jacket or book with your name, address and phone number. Then there's a chance they'll be returned if you mislay them.

Blind Child's Yule Tree Is Put on Card

By HARRY F. ROSENTHAL

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — The Christmas tree drawn by Vickie Ailor was her first experiment with colored crayons. The result was so good it was published as a Christmas card.

"How do you know what a Christmas tree looks like," asked Vickie's mother.

"I just know, that's all," was Vickie's somewhat impatient reply.

Vickie, 6 years old last week, has been blind more than half her life.

The tree, carefully drawn on paper placed over a raised wire screen — so the children can feel the traces—was published has a Delta Gamma alumnae project fund on behalf of Vickie's school — the Pre - school for the Visually Handicapped.

"Vickie is one of our star pupils," says Gwen Speyer, director of the school. "She is very capable and very bright. She has almost a one-track mind and when she starts something she sticks with it and finishes it. She will do very well when she enters the first grade in public school next fall."

Vickie is one of three children of Mr. and Mrs. James Ailor of Odessa, Mo. Her eyes were removed because of malignant tumors. Her 16-month-old brother, Ronnie, lost an eye from the same condition at the age of 2½ months and get regular check-ups of a developing tumor in the other eye.

"It is called an infant's disease because 99 per cent of those who contract it to so before age 5," says Mrs. Ailor. "We feel grateful that our 7-year-old child, Carla, did not develop it."

Vickie, says her mother, is happier than most sighted children.

"She never complains, even when she's sick. She's always happy and smiling.

"Her birthday was on the 17th and now she is getting real anxious. She said she can hardly wait for Christmas."

Santa Claus came Tuesday to the school which has 44 children in nursery and kindergarten classes — 17 of them with sight.

"He looked just like I thought," Vickie said.

"She's the most self-reliant child I know," says her mother. "She's on the telephone a lot, talking with relatives and friends and always answers the phone for me. She washes dishes and helps me in the kitchen. She's very good at taking care of her brother."

Mrs. Ailor drives Vickie to school daily — a round trip of more than 40 miles.

Thursday night she'll get a Christmas present Vickie made — a glass ash tray with colored scraps of paper pasted on the bottom.

"It's very pretty," Vickie said.

Nasser Says U.S. Can Take Its Aid, Go to Hell

the Congo and stand handcuffed.

"We do not accept any words against us and we will cut off the tongue of anyone who uses them. We do not need their money."

Relations between the United States and the U.A.R. worsened when a mob sacked the U.S. Information agency library in Cairo last month in protest against the American-Belgian mission in the Congo. Last week an American oil company's plane was shot down by he Egyptian air force as it was flying from Jordan to Libya, and the two crewmen were killed.

The United States has been supplying the U.A.R. about $140 million a year in food under a three-year agreement that expires next June 30. Nasser's government had asked for an additional $35 million worth for the coming year to ease a serious shortage.

Nasser said Ambassador Battle, in a call on the U.A.R. minister of supplies Tuesday, "stayed only two minutes" and "said he could not possibly speak about (supplies) because the conduct of the Egyptians was not good."

"If the Americans want to give us aid as the price of dominating our policy," Nasser told the cheering crowd, "I say we are sorry. We are ready to cut our rations and minimize our daily consumption to keep our independence."

He called the U.S.-Belgian rescue operation in the Congo "aggression similar to the 1956 attack on Suez" and said his government cannot recognize Congolese Premier Moise Tshombe as "the legitimate representative of the Congolese people."

Soviet Deputy Premier Alexander Shelepin was beside Nasser as he told the crowd: "The Soviet people will always stand by your side under all conditions, and let everybody rest assured of this."

48 Motorists Rescued in Wilderness

KOOSKIA, Idaho (AP) — A combined bulldozer-helicopter rescue operation brought 48 motorists and truckers to safety Wednesday night after the party had been stranded for 24 hours by slides in an Idaho wilderness canyon.

Bulldozers punched through snow, rock, mud slides and a helicopter pilot threaded his way around fog-shrouded mountains in the dusk to bring out the 48 — including an expectant mother and nine children.

None of the stranded was hurt, but a rescuer — operating a bulldozer trying to open an escape route — lost his life when a fresh slide swept his rig into the Loch River. The victim was John Nock, 37, of Grangeville, Idaho.

Two huge slides bottled up the party along U.S. Highway 12, about 60 miles east of here. The biggest was 30 or 40 feet deep and 200 feet across the highway and into the river, route of the Lewis and Clark expedition across Idaho.

The highway department lodged 36 of those rescued in its Bald Mountain maintenance station. The others were taken by helicopter to the Powell ranger station near the Idaho-Montana border. Later, ranger Gene Kalkoski, his expectant wife and 10 women and children were again airlifted to Kooskia.

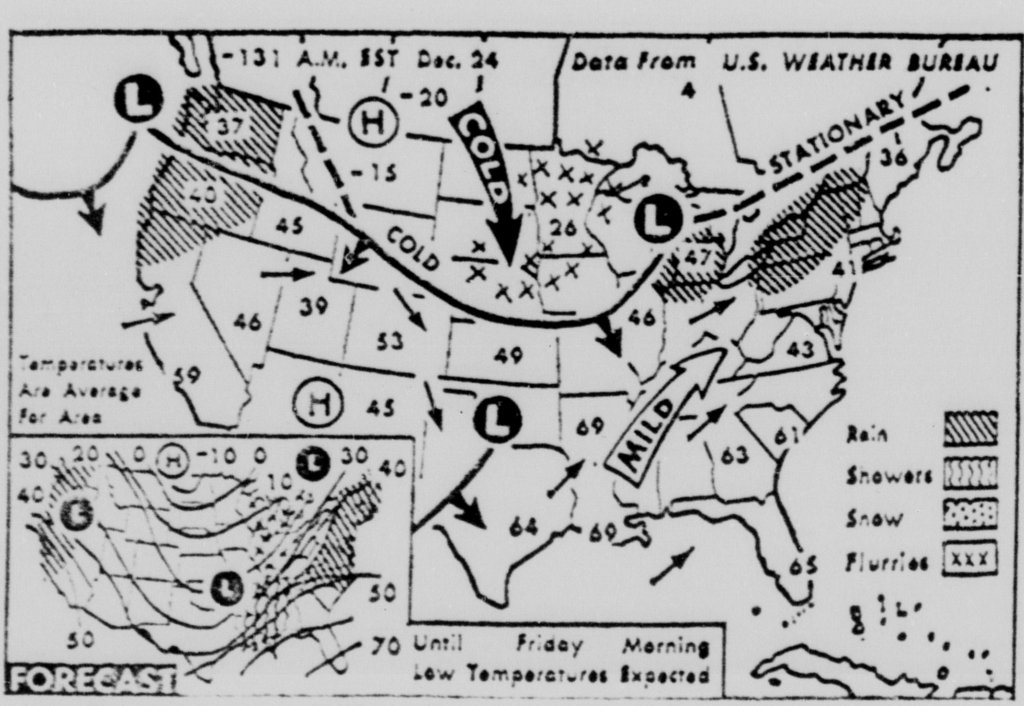
The department said 20 vehicles were still stuck between the two slides — including a livestock van carrying 25 horses.

Kalkoski said the stranded motorists reported rocks and debris had been falling on the roadway since Tuesday from the sheer walls of the canyon reaching up 2,000 feet from the Lochsa.

Crews had been trying to reach the group since Tuesday night.

It rained the first night, said Kalkoski, "so everybody spent the night in their cars and trucks. There was nothing else we could do."

A record December snowfall in the wilderness area was washed down the steep canyons by heavy rains and spring-like temperatures this week. The mushy hillsides gave way sending snow, rocks, mud and debris, cascading across the highway, into the Lochsa.



WEATHER BUREAU FORECAST — Rain is due tonight in Pacific northwest, southern Mississippi valley and along mid and north Atlantic coast. Rain mixed with snow will fall in parts of Plateau, with snow showers from parts of Mississippi valley through parts of Ohio valley. It will be milder along mid and north Atlantic coast, Great Basin and southern Plateau and colder in Plains eastward into Ohio valley.

DeWitt T. Bowen Died Here Wednesday

DeWitt T. Bowen, 319 E. Bijou St., last surviving member of "Fiddlers Three," a popular Colorado Springs musical group of the 1930's, died Wednesday at a local hospital, at the age of 75. He was the one of the trio who played the banjo and guitar. The two other members of the group were the late Chet Bright, violinist and singer, and the late Johnny Hiltbrand, bass violin.

Mr. Bowen worked at the Bates drugstore and other drugstores in Colorado Springs. He was a member of Pikes Peak Musicians Association No. 154.

Mr. Bowen was born in Jackson, Miss., April 29, 1889. He had been a resident of Colorado Springs for 40 years. He was a retired musician at the time of his death. Billy Announces World Evangelism Conference

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Rev. Dr. Billy Graham announced today that a world conference on evangelism will be held in West Berlin in the autumn of 1966.

The meeting is planned Oct. 26 to Nov. 4 as an effort to bring together some 1,200 church leaders, educators and evangelists to discuss evangelism in "a whole new day" in church affairs.

Graham was introduced at a news conference as "Mr. Evangelism of this Generation" by Dr. Carl F. H. Henry, editor of Christianity Today. The interdenominational biweekly magazine plans to sponsor the evangelism congress of which Graham will be honorary chairman.

Graham said Christianity is losing ground statistically, partly because of a "lack of emphasis on evangelism."

"Some people say we don't need evangelism anymore and soul winning is pa se. Some say we don't need missionaries anymore," he said.

Graham said people asked to attend the congress would be invited as individuals and not as representatives of denominations.

Henry said it was not decided yet whether any Roman Catholics would be invited.

southwest of Teller Reservoir and on the southern boundary of the acquisition — not far from Penrose and Stone City.

Rice said the Army Engineers were exploring all landowners' requests for boundary changes, not just the problems of fire brick companies.

Some of the clay deposits mined by the brick companies are on acreage owned by the State Land Board. When asked if the government would consider payment for the value of a ruined lease, Rice said, "We deal only with landowners."

Precise boundaries of the expansion were announced to landowners Nov. 21 at a meeting at Ft. Carson.

At that time June 30, 1965 was set as the target date for completing necessary land acquisition. The government will probably not require possession of any land before April 1965.

The federal government says the expansion is needed from the present 60,000 acres of Ft. Carson to "properly train" the 5th Infantry Division (Mech.).

Seven Car Radiators Taken From Shop

Seven car radiators valued at a total of $100 were taken from a repair shop between 1 a.m. and 7:30 a.m. Wednesday, police reported.

Joseph Potts, owner of Joe's Radiator Shop, 1818 E. Willamette Ave., told police thieves apparently picked open a lock to gain entrance to the building, and then had taken seven radiators. The padlock to the door which was open was missing, police said.

The radiators ranged in age from eight to 16 years, and were in various stages of repair, three of them being termed by Potts as "junk."

She came to Colorado Springs in 1890 for her health, largely regained her health and was active in various interests along educational lines. She had been a teacher in Boston Latin School and later was a private tutor. Here she was active in the Reviewers Club and was secretary of the Womens Educational Society in its early years.

Miss Crawford was born in Cohasset, Mass., Jan. 1, 1871. Her father came to Colorado Springs from Boston and built her home at 110 E. San Miguel St., where she lived until her death. She is survived by cousins, Mrs. Hames N. Best, of Colorado Springs, and Mrs. G. W. Shafer, Federal Way, Washington, D.C.

Funeral services will be held at 11 a.m. Tuesday at the Law Drawing Room. Burial will be in the family lot in Boston, Mass.

Orin, 44, 608 Bonfoy Ave. died this morning in St. Francis Hospital from two gunshot wounds he received after he attacked and injured Preston, Route 4, Black Forest. The officer has only one arm. According to a sheriff's report, Preston was checking Orin out at approximately 3 this morning as he had been acting in a suspicious manner in the vicinity of the Gulf filling station, Prairie Road and Platte Ave.

When the officer walked across to Orin's car, he was immediately struck with a pair of large pliers and knocked to the ground. A woman parked in a nearby car witnessed the entire incident.

Preston fired his gun and the bullet hit the pavement. Orin then attacked him again and Preston fired his gun low, hitting the pavement low. Orin was still beating the officer and this time he fired point-blank.

After running across the road and speaking to the woman in the car, Orin took off in his vehicle, but she managed to get his number and gave it to Deputy Sheriffs Lee Quein and Dave Sturgeon when they arrived at the scene.

Police Officer Kenny Beery found it a short time later on North Union Avenue. Orin was seated in the car with his head thrown back and jerking spasmodically.

The officer looked at the door and found the seat soaked with blood. An ambulance was called and Orin was taken to St. Francis Hospital. According to Deputy Sheriff W. Littrell, items were found in the dead man's possessionp which were believed stolen from the filling station.

U.S., Viet Nam Still Deadlocked on Policy

the military end interference in the civilian government.

U.S. policy makers in Saigon reportedly feel that Khanh should step down because they feel renewed cooperation with him probably is impossible.

Khanh was clearly working to achieve Taylor's recall.

Taylor was known to believe that while the crisis should be settled as quickly as possible, the United States must make a firm and determined stand against military interference in the civilian government. U.S. officials contend that the generals have been unwilling to ask me the responsibilities of government but insist on the right to overturn the government when things do not go as they wish.

In Washington, sources in President Johnson's administration voiced hope that the semi-coup by Khanh's young generals would turn out to be only a temporary setback in the long search for an effective government in South Viet Nam.

The Washington sources said it probably would be some time before the snarl in Saigon was worked out, and that Taylor had a broad mandate from Johnson to work for a South Vietnamese government with wide support.

The United States appeared to be pinning slender hopes on action by civilian Premier Tran Van Huong, whom the young generals left in office when they arrested most of the legislative council and other politicians last Sunday.

Three courses appeared to be open to Huong:

1. He could condemn the military purge and its decrees as illegal and threaten to resign if the military did not retreat;

2. He could act as if the purge hadn't happened and quietly reestablish the High National Council, as the legislature is called;

3. He could try to muddle through, making his peace with the military somehow.

So far he appeared to be following the last course, which U.S. officials said was basically unacceptable to the United States.

There were indications of trouble from other quarters in Saigon.

Talks between workers of a Saigon transport union and their employers collapsed and the military reportedly planned to step in and take over the transport organization. Labor observers feared this would spark a general strike and rioting.

By LEWIS GULICK

WASHINGTON (AP) — Administration sources voiced hope today that the semi-coup by Saigon generals will turn out to be only a temporary setback in the long pull for an effective government in South Viet Nam.

They said they think it will be some time yet before a way is worked out of the political snarl caused by Sunday's military purge of the civilian High National Council.

Ambassador Maxwell D. Taylor was said to have a broad mandate from President Johnson to push for a government with the wide support necessary to win an antiguerrilla war. Details in the behind-the-scenes discussions in Saigon were being handled by the U.S. envoy there.

Meanwhile U.S. policy makers were not ready to freeze the massive U.S. aid flow to South Viet Nam which is a mainstay of the campaign against the Viet Cong guerrillas.

Secretary of State Dean Rusk Wednesday backed Taylor against criticism from South Vietnamese commander in chief Nguyen Khanh, urged that Khanh's young generals set aside personal rivalries for the sake of the common cause, and said unity would be worth "many, many divisions" against the Reds.

Other U.S. sources said there are important limits on the amount of political leverage the United States can exert with its aid, because cutting it down would open the way for gains by the Communist insurgents.

As seen by U.S. officials here: Progress in building stable, broadly based political institutions needed for victory in South Viet Nam has had its ups and downs since the ouster of the Diem dictatorship in 1963, but has been especially encouraging over the past few months.

Khanh yielded his premiership last August in favor of the High National Council, which was to serve as an interim civilian ruling body. Then last Sunday the young generals, while professing patriotic motives, dealt a heavy blow by abolishing the council.

There has been some tendency here to discount the anti-American tone of Khanh's statements during the current controversy as a maneuver by the general to gain support from various elements in Saigon. Some of his criticism of Taylor, it was said, may be due to a friction of personalities.

White Civil Rights Worker Marries Negro

DENVER (UPI) —A white civil rights worker, once accused of fomenting insurrection in Georgia, was married Wednesday to a young Negro girl from that state.

The wedding ceremony uniting John Perdew, 22, of Denver and Amanda Bowen, 19, of Americus, Ga., was performed by the Rev. R. S. Williams in the Denver Inner City Protestant parish before about 30 guests.

Perdew a Harvard University student who has been active in civil rights campaigns in the South for more than 18 months, said he and his wife would return to Georgia after the holidays despite a law there against interracial marriage.

He shrugged off questions about possible problems in Georgia resulting from his marriage.

"They already hate me, and they'll probably just hate me more now," he said.

Perdew is the son of Dr. and Mrs. Philip W. Perdew. His father is an education professor at Denver University.

FIRE PRONE

LEADVILLE (UPI)—Fire has dampened the joy of the Christmas season for the second straight year for Mr. and Mrs. Larry Savard of West Park subdivision in Leadville. A blaze Wednesday demolished the couple's garage, destroyed a truck parked inside and killed the family pets—a cat and a $200 dog. On Christmas Eve of last year, a fire demolished the couple's trailer home.

Christmas Song Gift May Be Quite Costly

By DAVE SMITH

LOS ANGELES (AP) — If you have more money than ideas left over from Christmas shopping and still can't find something for someone who has everything, try gathering complete props for the carol "The Twelve Days of Christmas."

Don't rush in blindly, because this gift costs to the tune of five figures. But you could be the only one on your block to bestow such a remembrance.

Forthwith, then, the instructions:

"On the first day of Christmas, my true love gave to me, a partridge in a pear tree," goes the first verse.

In Los Angeles, the going price for an evergreen pear tree big enough for a partridge perch is $300. Live partidges go for $10 a pair but you only need one.

After getting the basic prop, the pear tree, you need:

Two turtledoves. Authentic European turtledoves can be had for $25 a pair. If your neighborhood bird importer is fresh out, add $1,000-$1,500 for the cost of the trip to get them.

Three French hens. See 2.

Four colly birds. Historically, the term "colly bird" refers to the European blackbird, so you can pick these up along with the turtledoves and French hens, unless you want to take poetic license and settle for plain old crows.

Five gold rings. You can lay out quite a pile for these, but you aren't far along the list, so settle for the five-and-dime variety.

Six geese a-laying. On this item, timing is very important. Intermittent laying — an egg here, an egg there — has ruined this gift more than once.

Seven swans a-swimming. Black swans are $300 a pair, white ones $200. If you need a pool, add $2,000.

Here you have a problem. There are few milkmaid rental agencies left. As for eight cows, those sell for $200 or so each.

Nine drummers drumming. The musicians union will provide these for $360 for three and a half hours.

Ten pipers piping. See 9.

Eleven ladies dancing. These can be had through the American Guild of Variety Artists, prices varying according to whether you prefer tap, modern or classical ballet.

Twelve lords a-leaping. Here again, a problem. Lords are generally pretty strong on dignity. A few act as tour guides for their English estates, and a few will even do a buck-wing for a couple extra quid — but 12? Well, it's worth a try.

If all fails, or you run out of time, buy a necktie.

not say when the passengers might be rescued.

Eastern Washington continued to bear the brunt of the flooding. At Asotin on the Washington-Idaho border where Asotin Creek overflowed 100 persons were evacuated. Walla Walla County commissioners declared that a disaster area.

In Idaho, some 50 motorists and truckers remained stranded between two massive snow slides and helicopters flew to the scene to fly them out as temperatures dropped below freezing.

The Idaho National Guard stood by ready to evacuate Declo, a community of 300 as Marsh Creek flowed over its banks.

Reno, Nev. escaped what residents feared would be its most disastrous flood when rain halted early in the day and the Truckee River's rush through the city slowed somewhat.

"It looks like we're going to squeeze our way through," said a Civil Defense worker.

Trouble Plagues World During Christmas Time

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Christians around the world prepared today to celebrate the joy of Christmas but in many areas troubled by controversy and fighting, joy remained only a hope.

Men were fighting and dying in the jungles of the Congo and Viet Nam in the Christmas of 1964. Yet most parts of the Christian world were at peace, however uneasy as it might be.

"We must prepare ourselves well for Christmas, rekindling in our hearts the desire, the thirst, the anxiety for the living God and the blessed certainty of finding Christ, the God-made man," said Pope Paul VI in an audience at Vatican City.

From Washington, President Johnson sent "warmest Christmas greetings" to the 22,000 U.S. servicemen who are spending the holiday in Viet Nam fighting a war against communism.

"You are in Viet Nam, far from the places and people you love, because the forces that have given our nation strength and wealth have also placed upon it the burden of defending freedom — even in remote and distant villages," said the President.

Most of the men there will eat a sumptuous Christmas dinner despite the war, but for others in the field Friday will be just another day of war.

Comedian Bob Hope evoked a wildly enthusiastic welcome with a surprise visit to an air base in Viet Nam. The troops were told Hope would arrive only a few hours before he entertained them.

"This is the fifth time I've seen Bob Hope overseas at Christmas," said one delighted soldier.

More fortunate American servicemen elsewhere in the world were not engaged in open warfare.

In South Korea, another divided nation, U.S. servicemen will light a 20-foot cross on a hill overlooking Communist positions across the demilitarized zone.

"Christmas or New Year makes no difference. The patrol duty will go on," said a soldier of the U.S. 1st Cavalry Division.

In West Germany, Lt. Gen. William W. Quinn of the U.S. 7th Army urged his men to pause and "reflect upon the ancient Christian message of peace on earth and good will toward our fellow man."

The U.S. Army's Berlin brigade is playing host to more than 2,000 needy persons in West Berlin. In return, more than 200 American soldiers have been invited to share traditional roast goose in Berlin homes.

Thousands of West Berliners passed through the Berlin wall to spend the holiday with relatives in the Communist sector of the divided city. The Communists permit the crossing by special agreement with the West Berlin government.

In the holy city of Jerusalem, the wall between Jordan and Israel opened today to let Christian Arabs from Israel join their families in Jordan for Christmas. As dawn broke, a small nun — the first visitor — walked through the Mandelbaum Gate. Some 4,500 are expected to cross in all.

There was no sign of tension at the gate despite a new clash Wednesday between Jordanians and Israelis.

Max Conrad, 61, America's flying grandfather, expected a lonely Christmas Day flying over the Atlantic Ocean. He took off today from South Africa in an attempt to break his own world record for light planes by flying nonstop to New Orleans. He is due in Louisiana Saturday.

Merchandise Taken From Local Store

More than $100 in merchandise was taken from the Bon Hardware during the noon hour Tuesday, police reported.

An employe of the store, located at 2304 N. Wahsatch St., told police thieves took several items of merchandise which he had left outside the rear of the store when he had gone to lunch. He said he was gone from 12 p.m. to 12:30 p.m. Tuesday.

Among the missing articles were two fireplace brushes, two brass match holders, three fireplace bellows, and a canvas-lined wood basket. Total value of the goods is $101.73, according to the report.

Windsors Spend Christmas in Houston, Tex.

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — The Duke of Windsor, with three exotic Christmas trees of varying size, is spending Christmas Eve reading, walking and resting.

He also is checking a number of an estimated 3,000 Christmas cards and greetings received from friends and strangers around the world.

Methodist Hospital spokesman said the former British king, now 70, is making an excellent recovery from a Dec. 16 operation for removal of an aneurysm from an abdominal artery.

Hospital spokesmen said Wednesday the duke now is sitting up as much as four hours a day and is spending much of his time reading books on various phases of Texas history.

Hospital officials were silent on Christmas Day plans but there was no indication either the duke or duchess will leave their six-room fourth-floor suite.

There were unconfirmed reports the couple may move next weekend to a nearby hotel for one or two weeks.

Thre also were unconfirmed reports the duchess, pleased with her husband's rapid recovery had slipped out of the hospital Monday night to attend a private dinner party at the home of a friend.

The duchess had said upon arrival Dec. 14 she had brought one party dress with her but did not plan to leave the hospital until she was certain he duke was well on the road to recovery.

The couple has a number of Houston friends. They were honor guests at several dinner parties when they visited here 14 years ago.

There also was a report a bottle of the duke's favorite scotch had been sent to him at the hospital.

Maxine Messenger, cafe society columnist for the Houston Chronicle, said the scotch was a gift from a Lebanese liquor dealer the duke, then the Prince of Wales, had met with visiting Fort Sudan on the Red Sea.

Letters, cards and telegrams have been coming in daily.

"It's unbelievable, the mail, just fantastic," a hospital spokesman said.

One letter was signed by all 35 pupils of a class at a local elementary school.

Valuable Rugs Taken From Home

Four Pakara Oriental Rugs, valued at $1,200, were taken from the back porch of a local residence when the owner left them there after shaking them, police reported.

Duane M. Eyre, 1524 N. Weber St., said he took the rugs out on the back porch at 8 a.m. Tuesday and shook them, then left them on a porch swing overnight. He discovered they were missing at 10 a.m. Wednesday, police said.

Eyre said that two of the rugs are reddish in color, one is brown, and the last is yellow.

the Congo and stand handcuffed.

"We do not accept any words against us and we will cut off the tongue of anyone who uses them. We do not need their money."

Relations between the United States and the U.A.R. worsened when a mob sacked the U.S. Information agency library in Cairo last month in protest against the American-Belgian mission in the Congo. Last week an American oil company's plane was shot down by the Egyptian air force as it was flying from Jordan to Libya, and the two crewmen were killed.

The United States has been supplying the U.A.R. about $140 million a year in food under a three-year agreement that expires next June 30. Nasser's government had asked for an additional $35 million worth for the coming year to ease a serious shortage.

Nasser said Ambassador Battle, in a call on the U.A.R. minister of supplies Tuesday, "stayed only two minutes" and "said he could not possibly speak about (supplies) because the conduct of the Egyptians was not good."

"If the Americans want to give us aid at the price of dominating our policy," Nasser told the cheering crowd, "I say we are sorry. We are ready to cut our rations and minimize our daily consumption to keep our independence."

He called the U.S.-Belgian rescue operation in the Congo "aggression similar to the 1956 attack on Suez" and said his government cannot recognize Congolese Premier Moise Tshombe as "the legitimate representative of the Congolese people."

Soviet Deputy Premier Alexander Shelepin was beside Nasser as he told the crowd: "The Soviet people will always stand by your side under all conditions, and let everybody rest assured of this."

48 Motorists Rescued in Wilderness

KOOSKIA, Idaho (AP) — A combined bulldozer-helicopter rescue operation brought 48 motorists and truckers to safety Wednesday night after the party had been stranded for 24 hours by slides in an Idaho wilderness canyon.

Bulldozers punched through snow, rock, mud slides and a helicopter pilot threaded his way around fog-shrouded mountains in the dusk to bring out the 48 — including an expectant mother and nine children.

None of the stranded was hurt, but a rescuer — operating a bulldozer trying to open an escape route — lost his life when a fresh slide swept his rig into the Loch River. The victim was John Nock, 37, of Grangeville, Idaho.

Two huge slides bottled up the party along U.S. Highway 12, about 60 miles east of here. The biggest was 30 or 40 feet deep and 200 feet across the highway and into the river, route of the Lewis and Clark expedition across Idaho.

The highway department lodged 36 of those rescued in its Bald Mountain maintenance station. The others were taken by helicopter to the Powell ranger station near the Idaho-Montana border. Later, ranger Gene Kalkoski, his expectant wife and 10 women and children were again airlifted to Kooskia.

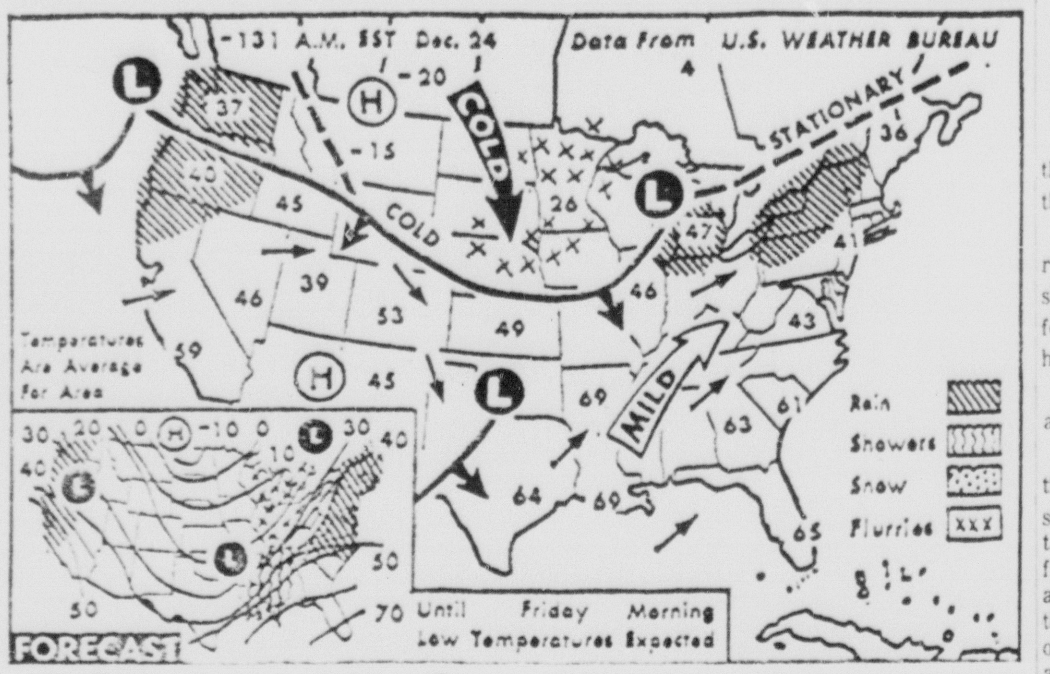
The department said 20 vehicles were still stuck between the two slides — including a livestock van carrying 25 horses.

Kalkoski said the stranded motorists reported rocks and debris had been falling on the roadway since Tuesday from the sheer walls of the canyon reaching up 2,000 feet from the Lochsa.

Crews had been trying to reach the group since Tuesday night.

It rained the first night, said Kalkoski, "so everybody spent the night in their cars and trucks. There was nothing else we could do."

A record December snowfall in the wilderness area was washed down the steep canyons by heavy rains and spring-like temperatures this week. The mushy hillsides gave way sending snow, rocks, mud and debris, cascading across the highway, into the Lochsa.



WEATHER BUREAU FORECAST — Rain is due tonight in Pacific northwest, southern Mississippi valley and along mid and north Atlantic coast. Rain mixed with snow will fall in parts of Plateau, with snow showers from parts of Mississippi valley through parts of Ohio valley. It will be milder along mid and north Atlantic coast, Great Basin and southern Plateau and colder in Plains eastward into Ohio valley.

Billy Announces World Evangelism Conference

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Rev. Dr. Billy Graham announced today that a world conference on evangelism will be held in West Berlin in the autumn of 1966.

The meeting is planned Oct. 26 to Nov. 4 as an effort to bring together some 1,200 church leaders, educators and evangelists to discuss evangelism in "a whole new day" in church affairs.

Graham was introduced at a news conference as "Mr. Evangelism of this Generation" by Dr. Carl F. H. Henry, editor of Christianity Today. The interdenominational biweekly magazine plans to sponsor the evangelism congress of which Graham will be honorary chairman.

Graham said Christianity is losing ground statistically, partly because of a "lack of emphasis on evangelism."

"Some people say we don't need evangelism anymore and soul winning is pa se. Some say we don't need missionaries anymore," he said.

Graham said people asked to attend the congress would be invited as individuals and not as representatives of denominations.

Henry said it was not decided yet whether any Roman Catholics would be invited.

southwest of Teller Reservoir and on the southern boundary of the acquisition — not far from Penrose and Stone City.

Rice said the Army Engineers were exploring all landowners' requests for boundary changes, not just the problems of fire brick companies.

Some of the clay deposits mined by the brick companies are on acreage owned by the State Land Board. When asked if the government would consider payment for the value of a ruined lease, Rice said, "We deal only with landowners."

Precise boundaries of the expansion were announced to landowners Nov. 21 at a meeting at Ft. Carson.

At that time June 30, 1965 was set as the target date for completing necessary land acquisition. The government will probably not require possession of any land before April 1965.

The federal government says the expansion is needed from the present 60,000 acres of Ft. Carson to "properly train" the 5th Infantry Division (Mech.).

Seven Car Radiators Taken From Shop

Seven car radiators valued at a total of $100 were taken from a repair shop between 1 a.m. and 7:30 a.m. Wednesday, police reported.

The radiators ranged in age from eight to 16 years, and were in various stages of repair, three of them being termed by Potts as "junk."

They said they think it will be some time yet before a way is worked out of the political snarl caused by Sunday's military purge of the civilian High National Council.

Ambassador Maxwell D. Taylor was said to have a broad mandate from President Johnson to push for a government with the wide support necessary to win an antiguerrilla war. Details in the behind-the-scenes discussions in Saigon were being handled by the U.S. envoy there.

Meanwhile U.S. policy makers were not ready to freeze the massive U.S. aid flow to South Viet Nam which is a mainstay of the campaign against the Viet Cong guerrillas.

Secretary of State Dean Rusk Wednesday backed Taylor against criticism from South Vietnamese commander in chief Nguyen Khanh, urged that Khanh's young generals set aside personal rivalries for the sake of the common cause, and said unity would be worth "many, many divisions" against the Reds.

Other U.S. sources said there are important limits on the amount of political leverage the United States can exert with its aid, because cutting it down would open the way for gains by the Communist insurgents.

As seen by U.S. officials here: Progress in building stable, broadly based political institutions needed for victory in South Viet Nam has had its ups and downs since the ouster of the Diem dictatorship in 1963, but has been especially encouraging over the past few months.

Khanh yielded his premiership last August in favor of the High National Council, which was to serve as an interim civilian ruling body. Then last Sunday the young generals, while professing patriotic motives, dealt a heavy blow by abolishing the council.

There has been some tendency here to discount the anti-American tone of Khanh's statements during the current controversy as a maneuver by the general to gain support from various elements in Saigon. Some of his criticism of Taylor, it was said, may be due to a friction of personalities.

White Civil Rights Worker Marries Negro

DENVER (UPI) —A white civil rights worker, once accused of fomenting insurrection in Georgia, was married Wednesday to a young Negro girl from that state.

The wedding ceremony uniting John Perdew, 22, of Denver and Amanda Bowen, 19, of Americus, Ga., was performed by the Rev. R. S. Williams in the Denver Inner City Protestant parish before about 30 guests.

Perdew a Harvard University student who has been active in civil rights campaigns in the South for more than 18 months, said he and his wife would return to Georgia after the holidays despite a law there against interracial marriage.

He shrugged off questions about possible problems in Georgia resulting from his marriage.

"They already hate me, and they'll probably just hate me more now," he said.

Perdew is the son of Dr. and Mrs. Philip W. Perdew. His father is an education professor at Denver University.

FIRE PRONE

LEADVILLE (UPI)—Fire has dampened the joy of the Christmas season for the second straight year for Mr. and Mrs. Larry Savard of West Park subdivision in Leadville. A blaze Wednesday demolished the couple's garage, destroyed a truck parked inside and killed the family pets—a cat and a $200 dog. On Christmas Eve of last year, a fire demolished the couple's trailer home.

Christmas Song Gift May Be Quite Costly

By DAVE SMITH

LOS ANGELES (AP) — If you have more money than ideas left over from Christmas shopping and still can't find something for someone who has everything, try gathering complete props for the carol "The Twelve Days of Christmas."

Don't rush in blindly, because this gift costs to the tune of five figures. But you could be the only one on your block to bestow such a remembrance.

Forthwith, then, the instructions:

"On the first day of Christmas, my true love gave to me, a partridge in a pear tree," goes the first verse.

In Los Angeles, the going price for an evergreen pear tree big enough for a partridge perch is $300. Live partidges go for $10 a pair but you only need one.

After getting the basic prop, the pear tree, you need:

Two turtledoves. Authentic European turtledoves can be had for $25 a pair. If your neighborhood bird importer is fresh out, add $1,000-$1,500 for the cost of the trip to get them.

Three French hens. See 2.

Four colly birds. Historically, the term "colly bird" refers to the European blackbird, so you can pick these up along with the turtledoves and French hens, unless you want to take poetic license and settle for plain old crows.

Five gold rings. You can lay out quite a pile for these, but you aren't far along the list, so settle for the five-and-dime variety.

Six geese a-laying. On this item, timing is very important. Intermittent laying — an egg here, an egg there — has ruined this gift more than once.

Seven swans a-swimming. Black swans are $300 a pair, white ones $200. If you need a pool, add $2,000.

Here you have a problem. There are few milkmaid rental agencies left. As for eight cows, those sell for $200 or so each.

Nine drummers drumming. The musicians union will provide these for $360 for three and a half hours.

Ten pipers piping. See 9.

Eleven ladies dancing. These can be had through the American Guild of Variety Artists, prices varying according to whether you prefer tap, modern or classical ballet.

Twelve lords a-leaping. Here again, a problem. Lords are generally pretty strong on dignity. A few act as tour guides for their English estates, and a few will even do a buck-wing for a couple extra quid — but 12? Well, it's worth a try.

If all fails, or you run out of time, buy a necktie.

7,000 Persons Homeless In West Coast Floods

not say when the passengers might be rescued.

Eastern Washington continued to bear the brunt of the flooding. At Asotin on the Washington-Idaho border where Asotin Creek overflowed 100 persons were evacuated. Walla Walla County commissioners declared that a disaster area.

In Idaho, some 50 motorists and truckers remained stranded between two massive snow slides and helicopters flew to the scene to fly them out as temperatures dropped below freezing.

The Idaho National Guard stood by ready to evacuate Declo, a community of 300 as Marsh Creek flowed over its banks.

Reno, Nev. escaped what residents feared would be its most disastrous flood when rain halted early in the day and the Truckee River's rush through the city slowed somewhat.

"It looks like we're going to squeeze our way through," said a Civil Defense worker.

Trouble Plagues World During Christmas Time

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Christians around the world prepared today to celebrate the joy of Christmas but in many areas troubled by controversy and fighting, joy remained only a hope.

Men were fighting and dying in the jungles of the Congo and Viet Nam in the Christmas of 1964. Yet most parts of the Christian world were at peace, however uneasy as it might be.

"We must prepare ourselves well for Christmas, rekindling in our hearts the desire, the thirst, the anxiety for the living God and the blessed certainty of finding Christ, the God-made man," said Pope Paul VI in an audience at Vatican City.

From Washington, President Johnson sent "warmest Christmas greetings" to the 22,000 U.S. servicemen who are spending the holiday in Viet Nam fighting a war against communism.

"You are in Viet Nam, far from the places and people you love, because the forces that have given our nation strength and wealth have also placed upon it the burden of defending freedom — even in remote and distant villages," said the President.

Most of the men there will eat a sumptuous Christmas dinner despite the war, but for others in the field Friday will be just another day of war.

Comedian Bob Hope evoked a wildly enthusiastic welcome with a surprise visit to an air base in Viet Nam. The troops were told Hope would arrive only a few hours before he entertained them.

"This is the fifth time I've seen Bob Hope overseas at Christmas," said one delighted soldier.

More fortunate American servicemen elsewhere in the world were not engaged in open warfare.

In South Korea, another divided nation, U.S. servicemen will light a 20-foot cross on a hill overlooking Communist positions across the demilitarized zone.

"Christmas or New Year makes no difference. The patrol duty will go on," said a soldier of the U.S. 1st Cavalry Division.

In West Germany, Lt. Gen. William W. Quinn of the U.S. 7th Army urged his men to pause and "reflect upon the ancient Christian message of peace on earth and good will toward our fellow man."

The U.S. Army's Berlin brigade is playing host to more than 2,000 needy persons in West Berlin. In return, more than 200 American soldiers have been invited to share traditional roast goose in Berlin homes.

Thousands of West Berliners passed through the Berlin wall to spend the holiday with relatives in the Communist sector of the divided city. The Communists permit the crossing by special agreement with the West Berlin government.

In the holy city of Jerusalem, the wall between Jordan and Israel opened today to let Christian Arabs from Israel join their families in Jordan for Christmas. As dawn broke, a small nun — the first visitor — walked through the Mandelbaum Gate. Some 4,500 are expected to cross in all.

There was no sign of tension at the gate despite a new clash Wednesday between Jordanians and Israelis.

Max Conrad, 61, America's flying grandfather, expected a lonely Christmas Day flying over the Atlantic Ocean. He took off today from South Africa in an attempt to break his own world record for light planes by flying nonstop to New Orleans. He is due in Louisiana Saturday.

Merchandise Taken From Local Store

More than $100 in merchandise was taken from the Bon Hardware during the noon hour Tuesday, police reported.

An employe of the store, located at 2304 N. Wahsatch St., told police thieves took several items of merchandise which he had left outside the rear of the store when he had gone to lunch. He said he was gone from 12 p.m. to 12:30 p.m. Tuesday.

Among the missing articles were two fireplace brushes, two brass match holders, three fireplace bellows, and a canvas-lined wood basket. Total value of the goods is $101.73, according to the report.

Windsors Spend Christmas in Houston, Tex.

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — The Duke of Windsor, with three exotic Christmas trees of varying size, is spending Christmas Eve reading, walking and resting.

He also is checking a number of an estimated 3,000 Christmas cards and greetings received from friends and strangers around the world.

Methodist Hospital spokesman said the former British king, now 70, is making an excellent recovery from a Dec. 16 operation for removal of an aneurysm from an abdominal artery.

Hospital spokesmen said Wednesday the duke now is sitting up as much as four hours a day and is spending much of his time reading books on various phases of Texas history.

Hospital officials were silent on Christmas Day plans but there was no indication either the duke or duchess will leave their six-room fourth-floor suite.

There were unconfirmed reports the couple may move next weekend to a nearby hotel for one or two weeks.

Thre also were unconfirmed reports the duchess, pleased with her husband's rapid recovery had slipped out of the hospital Monday night to attend a private dinner party at the home of a friend.

The duchess had said upon arrival Dec. 14 she had brought one party dress with her but did not plan to leave the hospital until she was certain he duke was well on the road to recovery.

The couple has a number of Houston friends. They were honor guests at several dinner parties when they visited here 14 years ago.

There also was a report a bottle of the duke's favorite scotch had been sent to him at the hospital.

Maxine Messenger, cafe society columnist for the Houston Chronicle, said the scotch was a gift from a Lebanese liquor dealer the duke, then the Prince of Wales, had met with visiting Fort Sudan on the Red Sea.

Letters, cards and telegrams have been coming in daily.

"It's unbelievable, the mail, just fantastic," a hospital spokesman said.

One letter was signed by all 35 pupils of a class at a local elementary school.

Valuable Rugs Taken From Home

Four Pakara Oriental Rugs, valued at $1,200, were taken from the back porch of a local residence when the owner left them there after shaking them, police reported.

Duane M. Eyre, 1524 N. Weber St., said he took the rugs out on the back porch at 8 a.m. Tuesday and shook them, then left them on a porch swing overnight. He discovered they were missing at 10 a.m. Wednesday, police said.

Eyre said that two of the rugs are reddish in color, one is brown, and the last is yellow.

COLORADO SPRINGS
GAZETTE TELEGRAPH
Your Freedom Newspaper
Ever striving for the Pikes Peak Region to be an even better place to live

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. Only when man is free to control himself and all he produces, can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government. Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is self-control, no more, no less. It must be consistent with the truths expressed in such great moral guides as the Golden Rule and the Declaration of Independence.

The Vitality of Freedom

"Freedom is an ideal that can never be surrendered, so long as our impulses remain vital. . .The authoritarian acts as though order could only be effected by force; imposed on recalcitrant material. The libertarian believes that it can be effected by reason, by enlightenment, by the cultivation of right habits. The authoritarian believes in discipline as a means; the libertarian in discipline as an end, as a state of mind. The authoritarian issues instructions; the libertarian encourages self-education. The one tolerates a subjective anarchy below the smooth surface of his rule; the other has no need of rule because he has achieved a subjective harmony reflected in personal integrity and social unity."

These words from the pen of Herbert Read, written a decade ago, do much to contrast the mood and spirit of those who believe in a social structure formed by violence and one formed on a pattern derived from voluntaryism.

To love liberty does not require that the individual reject society and retreat into isolated solitude. On the contrary, it requires only that the lover of liberty control himself and live in such a fashion that he does not infringe upon the liberty of others.

Those who cannot seem to understand this, invariably revert to authoritarianism at some point in their reasoning process. They may eschew the application of force at the outset; but they will quickly adopt it should the end appear to be something other than what they desire.

The contest between socialism and individualism is a contest between those who would employ violence upon their fellows and those who would not. It is not a contest between those who would work with their fellows and those who would not. Those who cannot work with others are foredoomed.

The argument should not be permitted to descend to the level of contrasting social structures with non-social structures. It is an examination of the means to be used for maximizing human usefulness and human happiness, not of the end to be gained.

That men will organize social structures is understood. How they will organize them is a matter not yet determined.

In a sense, the contest lies between those who are patient, and who love liberty too much to thwart its magnificent unfoldment; and those who are impatient, and who seek to have their own way irrespective of the means employed.

The authoritarian is impatient of any delay. He wants what he wants when he wants it. He will use persuasion, of course, for it is not costly. But when it fails, he invokes maximum power and force, and compels the outpicturing of his plan, whatever it may be.

The libertarian, in spite of temptations which beset him, will not lose his patience. He knows that he must wait for the spontaneity of internal direction and self - education. He knows that if he forces the issue, he will end using force to sustain whatever he invokes. Rather, he offers incentives and reason, and turns sadly aside when they are insufficient in any case.

And it is true that social structures, created by violence, must rely upon violence for their maintenance. Such structures are only as durable as the willingness of their instigators to continue to use violence.

But a structure founded wholly upon voluntary efforts will never require violence for its perpetuation. Indeed, violence will render it useless. It must exist in a climate of peace and understanding, not in a state of war and readiness for further war.

But as Herbert Read reminds us, freedom is an ideal that will never be surrendered so long as vitality remains. Violence is the surrogate of authoritarian vitality. Authoritarianism is not really vital, it is merely frightened and impatient.

The free man is the vital man. He is also the moral man. He does not require the blare of trumpets and the rumbling of drums to stimulate the flow of his juices. His is the calmness of assurance that comes with reason and truth. His is the patience of reliance upon moral judgment. His vitality is the joy of construction, the exultation of building and devising.

Freedom is vital. Only authoritarianism relies on the stimulant of violence.

Character

Winston Churchill once observed that courage is the first of human qualities because it is the quality which guarantees all others. But it should be specified that courage, correctly understood, is a moral and not a physical quality. Physical courage lacking moral overtones can be the hallmark of the bully. It is the strength of our moral convictions which reveals the real character and quality of any man.

All in 'Moderation'

"Moderately Yours," according to Life Lines, a Washington commentary, is a new game in which one imagines what America's pioneers would have said had they not been so hardy and such "extremists." Life Lines recently printed a series by Robert L. Pierce of Signal Mountain, Tenn. Some of Mr. Pierce's imaginary comments were:

Thomas Jefferson:

"And for the support of this Declaration, with a moderate reliance on the protection of Divine Providence, we mutually pledge to each other one hour a week of our lives, $5 a month of our fortunes and a little of our sacred honor, provided it doesn't hurt business."

John Paul Jones:

"Sir, I have not yet begun to fight and, considering the complexities of the situation, it probably would be unwise for me to do so."

Thomas Paine:

"These are the times that try men's sympathetic understanding of their adversaries' problems."

Robert Fulton:

"Most of them say it won't navigate upstream, and I have the utmost respect for majority opinion."

Texans in 1846:

"Remember the Alamo was just an isolated outpost and our people really had no business being there in the first place."

Eli Whitney:

"This cottonpickin' thing will never work."

Abraham Lincoln:

"Fourscore and seven years ago our fathers, misled by a climate of hate brought forth upon this continent by right-wing extremists, made a terrible mistake."

Alexander Graham Bell:

"I'd never have a chance to use it anyway, with three teenagers in the family."

Americans in 1898:

"Remember, the Maine was undoubtedly blown up by some maladjusted person who was influenced by the climate of hate in our own country. All Americans must share the guilt for this tragic deed."

Henry Ford:

"With all the improvements that have been made in buggies recently, I can not see risking any money on this contraption."

Orville Wright:

"Wilbur, you say we should quite the bicycle business and do what?!?"

Babe Ruth:

"Why should I swing for the fences when I can fatten my average by hitting bloopers over the infield?"

Charles A. Lindbergh:

"You will never catch me flying in anything with less than four engines. Besides, it's much more restful to go by boat."

CONSTRUCTIVE

To the Editor:

Mrs. L. T. Kircher Jr., president, Colorado Springs League of Women Voters (letter December 13) says that the City of Colorado Springs is in "desperate need of money" and that the "bare bones budget won't cover any capital improvements." She is most hopeful that a "constructive" way to procure additional money will be found. She then lists seven suggested alternatives for obtaining these funds—all seven of which are coercive. It might be interesting to find out how Mrs. Kircher defines the word "constructive." I rather imagine that her definition—if any—would be of the "we have to break eggs to make an omelette" variety.

However—that is just a minor side issue. Mrs. Kircher somehow failed to mention the one moral, proper, just and immediate way for the city in question to obtain the funds Mrs. Kircher wants it to have—namely, via a donation or gift from Mrs. Kircher. Or, to put it in language that Mrs. Kircher uses, perhaps it could be arranged to have the present president of the Colorado Springs League of Women Voters taxed the appropriate amount. How can Mrs. Kircher object to this? On what grounds? And is it then too much to expect that Mrs. Kircher will be consistent in applying the same grounds to her original suggestions as she does to my suggestion? It is.

There are two—and only two—ways in which human beings can deal with one another: 1) coercively, and 2) voluntarily. And strangely enough, the coercivists and the voluntaryists have one thing in common: neither likes being coerced. The coercivist only calls coercion evil when he, himself, is being coerced; coercion is "good" when he is using it on others. The voluntaryist is not so inconsistent.

LIBERTY AMENDMENT

To the Editor:

Mr. Frank Seiler says (December 16 Gazette Telegraph) that the editor is always yakking about the need for freedom but he has never yet put forth a way of obtaining it, legally.

Before any specific steps can be taken toward regaining our lost liberties, we must first have some understanding of what freedom is, why it is desirable, and what actions will have the results we are seeking. Careful study of Mr. LeFevre's editorials can greatly enhance the reader's knowledge in this area.

I heartily agree with Mr. Seiler on the merits of the Liberty Amendment. However, rather than criticize Mr. LeFevre for his superb writings, it would seem preferable for those of us who are sold on the Liberty Amendment to take advantage of his generous Open Parliament policy and tell others about it ourselves. In fact, it was through a letter in the Gazette Telegraph several years ago that I first learned about the Liberty Amendment and where to write for more information.

I think many people would be interested to know, for example, that the Liberty Amendment was first conceived as a means of getting the federal government out of enterprises it is operating in violation of the Constitution. It was only after many years of research in government records that it became evident that the savings effected thereby would equal more than the amount of money collected in taxes on personal incomes, estates, and gifts. That is when the income tax repeal section was added to the proposed amendment.

Anyone who wants to know more about the Liberty Amendment can contact the Colorado chairman who is a very charming little lady right there in Colorado Springs, Mrs. Polly King Ruhtenberg, 69 Marland Road, or write directly to the Liberty Amendment Committee of the U.S.A., 6413 Franklin Avenue, Los Angeles 28, California.

Now it's your turn, Mr. Seiler.

COMMUNICATION

To the Editor:

Arguments, like overwork and worry, lead nowhere but to regrets—but lack of arguments based on "personal experiences" could lead to disaster.

Divorce, a personal tragedy, has been proved to be created by a lack of communication between men and women.

If we fail to make use of all types of communication available to us, publications, letters and any other method of expressing ourselves, we are solely responsible for our problems.

I have been complimented, and condemned, for my letters, but from personal experience, I know that I am right in asking, no, demanding that we ALL do something to control the head-long rush by the administration to do as they please.

It might be a paradox, but if we are going to be a "socialist" government, for our own sake, let it be contained in our own country. Let's stop trying to be "social" with other countries, they don't like us anyway!

I might seem to be repeating myself, but I feel deeply that we must make it clear that we should "take care of our own."

We are too late, apparently, to govern, not be governed, but I stand on my grounds and state we can use the money for a better use here in our country for police, fire, and medical care as well as education and welfare.

A fine example is here in Colorado Springs. The fire chief stated that there are not enough fire stations to take care of our own city—and if you don't think he has a good argument, based on his personal experience, just wait until your home is on fire and it takes the fire truck "too long" to arrive to save YOUR HOME!

God knows I hope it doesn't happen to you, but it could, if you don't want to listen, and then SPEAK UP.

ADMONITION

To the Editor:

For one to elevate themselves they must read something higher than themselves, else they are on the decline. When one devotes most of their time to a frivolous useless hobby, they are in a trench. The dictionary says a trench is narrow, and it requires some digging into God's word, the pearl of great price, to get out of it. The way to obtain wisdom is by taking the right course and keeping with it. Read God's holy word, meditate upon it, give thought to it. It can do you more good than any hobby you can acquire, if you will follow its course, not be sidetracked, led astray by some human wind of doctrine that he writers of the book of God's word forewarned us of, in saying that many would appear saying, "This is the way." We have over a hundred of the winds of doctrine, but we are admonished not to give them our attention; not to look on either side, either to the right or to the left, but put our faith in Jesus and keep our eyes centered on Him, "for He is the author and finisher of our faith."

When one is physically sick and goes to an M.D., they usually put their faith in him to the extent that he can help them. They don't tell him that they think a magician can do them more good. But that seems to be the attitude of most people towards Christ. One is not saved by some human performance. St. Paul said in Eph. 2.8-9 that we are saved by the grace of God through faith in His gift, His Son, Christ. We learn we are to do good.

Seems I can hear someone say, "They were just humans who wrote the Bible." "Look at Peter, for instance, denied Christ at the crucial time." That is true, but just remember that Peter was not yet established. He was just a baby in Christ. He had not yet, at that time, consecrated his life to Christ. Read his record after he completely without reserve consecrated himself and received the Holy Ghost that gave him power. His faith was so solid, so firm, that it was likened unto a rock, and Christ built the church upon Peter's faith.

Anyone who is sincere and diligent in searching the scriptures for spiritual truth and life, if they ask God for the understanding of the same, he will give liberty and they will no longer put the writers thereof down on the level with themselves but believe by faith.

We are told in the book that an adulterous generation seek for a sign. They are not people of faith in Christ and do not have the fruits of faith. Sign seekers do not have the power to witness for Christ. They get Satan's substitutes and are sidetracked. The word says, "You who have not the spirit of Christ, are none of His." God's people's faith is in Him. They are not sign seekers. They have no other motive, only to keep His commandments and glorify Him. Without God's permission, we can't do anything.

Before salvation was completed, in Christ's sacrifice for us, all they had was the part of the old ceremonial law and they were justified by keeping those ceremonies that were just a shadow, a teacher to prepare the people to put their faith in Christ, the author and finisher of our faith, when he appeared.

If and when one applies themselves to reading of the scriptures, they can clearly see that Moses and the Prophets all had seen God's plan of the fulfillment and completion of salvation in Christ. And that which was in part is done away.

Instead of commercializing Christ's birth, you should make it a time of reading the scriptures, if you start from the Book of Psalms and ask God for an understanding, you will see that David tells about Christ. Isaiah explains him fully, and the New Testament gives his completion of the meaning of Christmas.

LOCAL POLITICS

To the Editor:

There was a lot of change in the last election. Let us have a change in the city government. Let us have a mayor form of government. A mayor would be elected and paid as well as the city councilmen. It is not human nature for men to work for nothing. The present council does not listen to anyone but the Chamber of Commerce. There are other people in Colorado Springs beside the Chamber of Commerce. Look at the boner the council pulled on the sales tax.

These Days

The Whisperers At the U. N.

By JOHN CHAMBERLAIN

By any rational test the U.S., in showing sufficient spunk to combine with the Belgians and the British to rescue the Stanleyville hostages, scored its first Cold War victory in a long time. But the whisperers in the corridors at the U.N. are now doing their best to turn the whole business into a defeat.

The argument of the defeatists goes this way: We were wrong to put our money on Tshombe, a man who, in the rest of Africa, is associated with "colonialism." We should, so the defeatists say, have chosen to back a different horse.

This is the old familiar counsel of despair. We heard it in Chungking in 1944 and 1945, when we were being urged to desert Chiang Kai-shek in favor of getting along with Mao Tsetung. We heard it in Saigon, when we were told that we should help get rid of Diem in order to make peace with the Buddhists. We heard it in Havana that if we helped to topple Batista, we would get a free and democratic Cuba. Well, we did connive to deprive Chiang of the arms he needed to wage his war against Mao, we did help grease the skids under the Diem regime, and we did withdraw our support of the Batista government. But did any of this make us popular with the leftists whom we befriended? Not so anyone can notice.

The truth is that we are damned if we do and damned if we don't, and the least we can do in common decency is to make a fight for freedom of the individual in hopes that a few acts of courage will keep an honorable cause alive. No great hopes for our immediate success can be held out, however. The propaganda machine of the big Afro-Asian bloc in the U.N. seems to have uncommon powers of intimidation. It gets its view across in spite of the facts.

TWIST

Thus, the world is informed by the Congolese rebel, Christophe Gbenye, that no foreigners were being held as hostages when the Belgian paratroopers were dropped on Stanleyville. His implication is that we brought the Paulis and Stanleyville massacres on ourselves. As a matter of statistical count, more than twenty hostages had already been killed before the paratroopers had even been assembled at Ascension Island in the Atlantic; and the threats to the missionary, Dr. Paul Carlson, had been printed in every paper in America. Yet by turning the propaganda volume on and staging incendiary attacks on U.S. embassies and libraries in Moscow, Cairo, and Indonesia, our enemies have succeeded in forcing a "crisis" in our foreign policy. We wonder how far we should go in the business of rescuing missionaries. We wonder if we really should be backing Tshombe.

What beats this columnist is the sheer brazenness of our enemies. They nourish themselves twice over by biting the hand that feeds them. A 27,000-book U.S. Information Service library is wrecked in Jakarta, yet we continue to send money through the Agency for International Development to pay for the training of "counter-insurgency" elements inside Indonesia.

The John F. Kennedy Memorial Library is gutted in Cairo, yet the U.S. is busy helping the Egyptians install new systems of flight control at their airfields. Ben Bella of Algeria sends Russian arms to the Congo rebels, but he can't feed his own countrymen without taking economic aid from both the U.S. and France.

COUNTER-PUNCH

The dreadful irony about it all is that we have been so meek in the face of everything. The big offensive guns at the U.N. are visitors such as Russia's Gromyko and Cuba's Che Guevara. Our own posture has been defensive. When Adlai Stevenson, in the best speech of his life, fired back at those who were encouraging black racism, it represented a new and very welcome note in our counter-punching. But it was still counter-punching for all that.

What we need is a continuous expression of righteousness that will transcend the normal politeness of our information services. We have a big victory within our grasp if we could only muster the courage to be brazen on our own behalf. The Holden Roberto effort to use Tshombe's part of the Congo as a base for undermining Portuguese Angola hasn't been going well. Ben Bella has a completely disorganized economy on his hands in Algeria, and if the Western nations were to cease shipping food to Algerians a third of them would quickly die of hunger. In the Congo a corporal's guard of so-called "white mercenaries" has been sufficient to help Tshombe route his enemies. It is quite obvious to any rational being that we hold big cards.

Why, then, in heaven's name, don't we play an ace or two? If our enemies intend to kill us no matter what turn we take, why not get up off our knees and respond like men?

To The Point

The 'New Class' in Hungary

By RUSSELL KIRK

Communist Hungary being hungry for the hard currency of Western visitors, it is now possible to travel to Budapest: almost anyone in the West can obtain a visa. And though the great capital is sufficiently dreary nowadays, bearing the terrible scars of Russian repression of the patriotic rising, the modes of existence one sees there are interesting.

One phenomenon is the emergence of a new prosperous class, somewhat comparable to the "new class" which Milovan Djilas denounced in Yugoslavia, or to the "nepmen" of the early years of Soviet Russia. These Hungarian "nouveau riche", however, are neither governmental officials nor (primarily) small merchants. Rather, they are skilled craftsmen—shoemakers, carpenters, tailors, and the like. They carry on their trades privately, and they prosper nowadays. This new "aristocracy" it is which owns what private automobiles exist in Hungary, and which is accumulating capital under a Communist regime.

The source of their prosperity is the hopeless inefficiency of the Communist economic structure. Total "socialist planning" simply does not work in Hungary. Goods produced in state factories are shoddy and short-lived; worse still, such goods are always in short supply, and one may have to wait months to buy, at a state department store, an article one needs urgently.

So if a Hungarian wants a well-made pair of boots, or a solid chair, or a decent suit of clothes—and wants them "now" —he turns, perforce, to a small private producer, either licensed by the Communist officials or else winked at by the regime. A private seller's prices may be quadruple the state's prices for similar goods; but quality and availability find a market, even in impoverished Hungary. Badly made shoes from a state factory may cost the equivalent of five dollars—and be slow in coming; shoes from a private shoemaker may cost ten dollars, but they fit, and they can be got.

The Communist masters of Budapest tolerate this competition from small entrepreneurs for two reasons: first, the state industries simply do not turn out the requisite production, and goods must be made available somehow; second, the licensing or indulgence of private operators puts bribes into Communist officials' pockets. Political corruption in "capitalist" countries is the shadow of a shade compared with the venality of Communist bureaucrats at every level. A principal reason why the immense structure of economic regulation in Hungary remains unsimplified is this: Communist functionaries make their living by granting official or "de facto" exemptions in favor of private applicants to conduct small manufacturing and trading. Were there not a multitude of oppressive regulations, the reason for bribery of officials would vanish.

The comparatively affluent craftsmen of the "new aristocracy" profess themselves to be dogmatic Communists—because only a party member in good standing is likely to be granted a license, or to have his operations winked at. Whether they will remain sincere Communists, once they have accumulated considerable property and power, remains in doubt. The Communist military despotism has benefitted these craftsmen by eliminating the landed classes and the old middle class—so that the artisans emerge as the only people of substance and fair prospects. Yet, like the pigs in Orwell's "1984", the private craftsmen of Hungary now proclaim, "All citizens are equal—but some are more equal than others." There are logical difficulties in remaining a Communist zealot, under such circumstances.

"It was cruel of you not to do a better job of hiding those packages!"

Logic Is Not Magic

By GEORGE BOARDMAN

Logic is a science dealing with the canons and criteria of validity of inference and demonstration. It wasn't really a hundred years ago when I discussed logic for so many hours with my scholarly friend, a Chinese, it only seems that way. With a dozen examples he cautioned me about the dangers inherent in inference. For instance, I have been told of a large, red wagon, drawn by two mules which travels on a narrow road from Tibet. There are no intersecting roads. Unless the wagon stops and never resumes its journey, or turns around on the road or runs off the road and down the mountain, this large, red wagon drawn by two mules will eventually arrive at the crossroad where we await its arrival. This is logic, at work.

We wait, you and I, day after day and no red wagon arrives. We now decide the wagon stopped, turned around and went the other way or was lost down the side of the mountain. But, none of these things happened. We watched a wagon drawn by two mules pass us. It was a blue wagon. The man who told us about the red wagon is color blind. Our reasoning was not at fault. The information was not accurate; the basic premise was invalid. We find that the application of logic, then, when applied to invalid premises, will result in inaccurate conclusions.

Regular readers of this column have spent a lot of time with me as we have examined the actions and reactions of individual human beings. To the best of my ability, I have attempted to move, logically, from cause to effect. To avoid less than accurate conclusions, I have consistently challenged basic premises which have been demonstrably inaccurate.

I have regularly challenged the theory that all humans are by instinct communal and gregarious. Some theorists state that human beings will always escape from work, by instinct, if they can achieve a livelihood without exertion or by working as little as possible. I have and will continue to challenge this statement on the basis of demonstrable evidence to the contrary.

It has been said, thousands of times, that human beings are basically evil and irrational unless other basically evil and irrational humans exert control over the other evil and irrational people. This theory is so obviously false as to require no other attention.

One theorist claims that ownership of property is a more powerful goal of achievement than the mating instinct. Others reverse the order and arrive at an opposing conclusion.

From each basic premise, each theorist arrives at conclusions by logical reasoning but logic is not magic. Human beings continue to refuse to cooperate according to plan and this condition will prevail until theorists recognize the unalterable fact that human beings are, individually, human beings — different even in their finger prints.

If and when an educator or student of human nature finally understands that human beings continually refuse to conform to theories in a totally inconsistent manner, the shock has a long-lasting effect. A proposed textbook is forgotten, an idea for slide-rule formula is discarded and the educator or student faces problems.

He or she can go right ahead and apply logic cleverly to a false premise, because hundreds or thousands of others have done the same thing. He or she can deliberately ignore every example which disproves the original theory. A very few, however, will recognize a few generalities for what they are and from that point on will study individualism, instead of mankind collectively, recognizing too that mankind is not a collective but millions of individuals. From such a beginning, continuing efforts devoted to the study of the philosophy of freedom will make important progress.

Good luck and good health to you, in Freedom.

COLORADO SPRINGS
GAZETTE TELEGRAPH
Your Freedom Newspaper
Ever striving for the Pikes Peak Region to be an even better place to live

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. Only when man is free to control himself and all he produces, can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government. Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is self-control, no more, no less. It must be consistent with the truths expressed in such great moral guides as the Golden Rule and the Declaration of Independence.

The Vitality of Freedom

"Freedom is an ideal that can never be surrendered, so long as our impulses remain vital. . .The authoritarian acts as though order could only be effected by force; imposed on recalcitrant material. The libertarian believes that it can be effected by reason, by enlightenment, by the cultivation of right habits. The authoritarian believes in discipline as a means; the libertarian in discipline as an end, as a state of mind. The authoritarian issues instructions; the libertarian encourages self-education. The one tolerates a subjective anarchy below the smooth surface of his rule; the other has no need of rule because he has achieved a subjective harmony reflected in personal integrity and social unity."

These words from the pen of Herbert Read, written a decade ago, do much to contrast the mood and spirit of those who believe in a social structure formed by violence and one formed on a pattern derived from voluntaryism.

To love liberty does not require that the individual reject society and retreat into isolated solitude. On the contrary, it requires only that the lover of liberty control himself and live in such a fashion that he does not infringe upon the liberty of others.

Those who cannot seem to understand this, invariably revert to authoritarianism at some point in their reasoning process. They may eschew the application of force at the outset; but they will quickly adopt it should the end appear to be something other than what they desire.

The contest between socialism and individualism is a contest between those who would employ violence upon their fellows and those who would not. It is not a contest between those who would work with their fellows and those who would not. Those who cannot work with others are foredoomed.

The argument should not be permitted to descend to the level of contrasting social structures with non-social structures. It is an examination of the means to be used for maximizing human usefulness and human happiness, not of the end to be gained.

That men will organize social structures is understood. How they will organize them is a matter not yet determined.

In a sense, the contest lies between those who are patient, and who love liberty too much to thwart its magnificent unfoldment; and those who are impatient, and who seek to have their own way irrespective of the means employed.

The authoritarian is impatient of any delay. He wants what he wants when he wants it. He will use persuasion, of course, for it is not costly. But when it fails, he invokes maximum power and force, and compels the outpicturing of his plan, whatever it may be.

The libertarian, in spite of temptations which beset him, will not lose his patience. He knows that he must wait for the spontaneity of internal direction and self - education. He knows that if he forces the issue, he will end using force to sustain whatever he invokes. Rather, he offers incentives and reason, and turns sadly aside when they are insufficient in any case.

And it is true that social structures, created by violence, must rely upon violence for their maintenance. Such structures are only as durable as the willingness of their instigators to continue to use violence.

But a structure founded wholly upon voluntary efforts will never require violence for its perpetuation. Indeed, violence will render it useless. It must exist in a climate of peace and understanding, not in a state of war and readiness for further war.

But as Herbert Read reminds us, freedom is an ideal that will never be surrendered so long as vitality remains. Violence is the surrogate of authoritarian vitality. Authoritarianism is not really vital, it is merely frightened and impatient.

The free man is the vital man. He is also the moral man. He does not require the blare of trumpets and the rumbling of drums to stimulate the flow of his juices. His is the calmness of assurance that comes with reason and truth. His is the patience of reliance upon moral judgment. His vitality is the joy of construction, the exultation of building and devising.

Freedom is vital. Only authoritarianism relies on the stimulant of violence.

Character

Winston Churchill once observed that courage is the first of human qualities because it is the quality which guarantees all others. But it should be specified that courage, correctly understood, is a moral and not a physical quality. Physical courage lacking moral overtones can be the hallmark of the bully. It is the strength of our moral convictions which reveals the real character and quality of any man.

All in 'Moderation'

"Moderately Yours," according to Life Lines, a Washington commentary, is a new game in which one imagines what America's pioneers would have said had they not been so hardy and such "extremists." Life Lines recently printed a series by Robert L. Pierce of Signal Mountain, Tenn. Some of Mr. Pierce's imaginary comments were:

Thomas Jefferson:

"And for the support of this Declaration, with a moderate reliance on the protection of Divine Providence, we mutually pledge to each other one hour a week of our lives, $5 a month of our fortunes and a little of our sacred honor, provided it doesn't hurt business."

John Paul Jones:

"Sir, I have not yet begun to fight and, considering the complexities of the situation, it probably would be unwise for me to do so."

Thomas Paine:

Robert Fulton:

"Most of them say it won't navigate upstream, and I have the utmost respect for majority opinion."

Texans in 1846:

"Remember the Alamo was just an isolated outpost and our people really had no business being there in the first place."

Eli Whitney:

"This cottonpickin' thing will never work."

Abraham Lincoln:

"Fourscore and seven years ago our fathers, misled by a climate of hate brought forth upon this continent by right-wing extremists, made a terrible mistake."

Alexander Graham Bell:

"I'd never have a chance to use it anyway, with three teenagers in the family."

Americans in 1898:

"Remember, the Maine was undoubtedly blown up by some maladjusted person who was influenced by the climate of hate in our own country. All Americans must share the guilt for this tragic deed."

Henry Ford:

"With all the improvements that have been made in buggies recently, I can not see risking any money on this contraption."

Orville Wright:

"Wilbur, you say we should quite the bicycle business and do what?!?"

Babe Ruth:

"Why should I swing for the fences when I can fatten my average by hitting bloopers over the infield?"

Charles A. Lindbergh:

"You will never catch me flying in anything with less than four engines. Besides, it's much more restful to go by boat."

CONSTRUCTIVE

To the Editor:

Mrs. L. T. Kircher Jr., president, Colorado Springs League of Women Voters (letter December 13) says that the City of Colorado Springs is in "desperate need of money" and that the "bare bones budget won't cover any capital improvements." She is most hopeful that a "constructive" way to procure additional money will be found. She then lists seven suggested alternatives for obtaining these funds—all seven of which are coercive. It might be interesting to find out how Mrs. Kircher defines the word "constructive." I rather imagine that her definition—if any—would be of the "we have to break eggs to make an omelette" variety.

However—that is just a minor side issue. Mrs. Kircher somehow failed to mention the one moral, proper, just and immediate way for the city in question to obtain the funds Mrs. Kircher wants it to have—namely, via a donation or gift from Mrs. Kircher. Or, to put it in language that Mrs. Kircher uses, perhaps it could be arranged to have the present president of the Colorado Springs League of Women Voters taxed the appropriate amount. How can Mrs. Kircher object to this? On what grounds? And is it then too much to expect that Mrs. Kircher will be consistent in applying the same grounds to her original suggestions as she does to my suggestion? It is.

There are two—and only two—ways in which human beings can deal with one another: 1) coercively, and 2) voluntarily. And strangely enough, the coercivists and the voluntaryists have one thing in common: neither likes being coerced. The coercivist only calls coercion evil when he, himself, is being coerced; coercion is "good" when he is using it on others. The voluntaryist is not so inconsistent.

LIBERTY AMENDMENT

To the Editor:

Mr. Frank Seiler says (December 16 Gazette Telegraph) that the editor is always yakking about the need for freedom but he has never yet put forth a way of obtaining it, legally.

Before any specific steps can be taken toward regaining our lost liberties, we must first have some understanding of what freedom is, why it is desirable, and what actions will have the results we are seeking. Careful study of Mr. LeFevre's editorials can greatly enhance the reader's knowledge in this area.

I heartily agree with Mr. Seiler on the merits of the Liberty Amendment. However, rather than criticize Mr. LeFevre for his superb writings, it would seem preferable for those of us who are sold on the Liberty Amendment to take advantage of his generous Open Parliament policy and tell others about it ourselves. In fact, it was through a letter in the Gazette Telegraph several years ago that I first learned about the Liberty Amendment and where to write for more information.

I think many people would be interested to know, for example, that the Liberty Amendment was first conceived as a means of getting the federal government out of enterprises it is operating in violation of the Constitution. It was only after many years of research in government records that it became evident that the savings effected thereby would equal more than the amount of money collected in taxes on personal incomes, estates, and gifts. That is when the income tax repeal section was added to the proposed amendment.

Anyone who wants to know more about the Liberty Amendment can contact the Colorado chairman who is a very charming little lady right there in Colorado Springs, Mrs. Polly King Ruhtenberg, 69 Marland Road, or write directly to the Liberty Amendment Committee of the U.S.A., 6413 Franklin Avenue, Los Angeles 28, California.

Now it's your turn, Mr. Seiler.

COMMUNICATION

To the Editor:

Arguments, like overwork and worry, lead nowhere but to regrets—but lack of arguments based on "personal experiences" could lead to disaster.

Divorce, a personal tragedy, has been proved to be created by a lack of communication between men and women.

If we fail to make use of all types of communication available to us, publications, letters and any other method of expressing ourselves, we are solely responsible for our problems.

I have been complimented, and condemned, for my letters, but from personal experience, I know that I am right in asking, no, demanding that we ALL do something to control the head-long rush by the administration to do as they please.

It might be a paradox, but if we are going to be a "socialist" government, for our own sake, let it be contained in our own country. Let's stop trying to be "social" with other countries, they don't like us anyway!

I might seem to be repeating myself, but I feel deeply that we must make it clear that we should "take care of our own."

We are too late, apparently, to govern, not be governed, but I stand on my grounds and state we can use the money for a better use here in our country for police, fire, and medical care as well as education and welfare.

A fine example is here in Colorado Springs. The fire chief stated that there are not enough fire stations to take care of our own city—and if you don't think he has a good argument, based on his personal experience, just wait until your home is on fire and it takes the fire truck "too long" to arrive to save YOUR HOME!

God knows I hope it doesn't happen to you, but it could, if you don't want to listen, and then SPEAK UP.

ADMONITION

To the Editor:

For one to elevate themselves they must read something higher than themselves, else they are on the decline. When one devotes most of their time to a frivolous useless hobby, they are in a trench. The dictionary says a trench is narrow, and it requires some digging into God's word, the pearl of great price, to get out of it. The way to obtain wisdom is by taking the right course and keeping with it. Read God's holy word, meditate upon it, give thought to it. It can do you more good than any hobby you can acquire, if you will follow its course, not be sidetracked, led astray by some human wind of doctrine that he writers of the book of God's word forewarned us of, in saying that many would appear saying, "This is the way." We have over a hundred of the winds of doctrine, but we are admonished not to give them our attention; not to look on either side, either to the right or to the left, but put our faith in Jesus and keep our eyes centered on Him, "for He is the author and finisher of our faith."

When one is physically sick and goes to an M.D., they usually put their faith in him to the extent that he can help them. They don't tell him that they think a magician can do them more good. But that seems to be the attitude of most people towards Christ. One is not saved by some human performance. St. Paul said in Eph. 2.8-9 that we are saved by the grace of God through faith in His gift, His Son, Christ. We learn we are to do good.

Seems I can hear someone say, "They were just humans who wrote the Bible." "Look at Peter, for instance, denied Christ at the crucial time." That is true, but just remember that Peter was not yet established. He was just a baby in Christ. He had not yet, at that time, consecrated his life to Christ. Read his record after he completely without reserve consecrated himself and received the Holy Ghost that gave him power. His faith was so solid, so firm, that it was likened unto a rock, and Christ built the church upon Peter's faith.

Anyone who is sincere and diligent in searching the scriptures for spiritual truth and life, if they ask God for the understanding of the same, he will give liberty and they will no longer put the writers thereof down on the level with themselves but believe by faith.

We are told in the book that an adulterous generation seek for a sign. They are not people of faith in Christ and do not have the fruits of faith. Sign seekers do not have the power to witness for Christ. They get Satan's substitutes and are sidetracked. The word says, "You who have not the spirit of Christ, are none of His." God's people's faith is in Him. They are not sign seekers. They have no other motive, only to keep His commandments and glorify Him. Without God's permission, we can't do anything.

Before salvation was completed, in Christ's sacrifice for us, all they had was the part of the old ceremonial law and they were justified by keeping those ceremonies that were just a shadow, a teacher to prepare the people to put their faith in Christ, the author and finisher of our faith, when he appeared.

If and when one applies themselves to reading of the scriptures, they can clearly see that Moses and the Prophets all had seen God's plan of the fulfillment and completion of salvation in Christ. And that which was in part is done away.

Instead of commercializing Christ's birth, you should make it a time of reading the scriptures, if you start from the Book of Psalms and ask God for an understanding, you will see that David tells about Christ. Isaiah explains him fully, and the New Testament gives his completion of the meaning of Christmas.

LOCAL POLITICS

To the Editor:

There was a lot of change in the last election. Let us have a change in the city government. Let us have a mayor form of government. A mayor would be elected and paid as well as the city councilmen. It is not human nature for men to work for nothing. The present council does not listen to anyone but the Chamber of Commerce. There are other people in Colorado Springs beside the Chamber of Commerce. Look at the boner the council pulled on the sales tax.

These Days

The Whisperers At the U. N.

By JOHN CHAMBERLAIN

By any rational test the U.S., in showing sufficient spunk to combine with the Belgians and the British to rescue the Stanleyville hostages, scored its first Cold War victory in a long time. But the whisperers in the corridors at the U.N. are now doing their best to turn the whole business into a defeat.

The argument of the defeatists goes this way: We were wrong to put our money on Tshombe, a man who, in the rest of Africa, is associated with "colonialism." We should, so the defeatists say, have chosen to back a different horse.

This is the old familiar counsel of despair. We heard it in Chungking in 1944 and 1945, when we were being urged to desert Chiang Kai-shek in favor of getting along with Mao Tse-tung. We heard it in Saigon, when we were told that we should help get rid of Diem in order to make peace with the Buddhists. We heard it in Havana that if we helped to topple Batista, we would get a free and democratic Cuba. Well, we did connive to deprive Chiang of the arms he needed to wage his war against Mao, we did help grease the skids under the Diem regime, and we did withdraw our support of the Batista government. But did any of this make us popular with the leftists whom we befriended? Not so anyone can notice.

The truth is that we are damned if we do and damned if we don't, and the least we can do in common decency is to make a fight for freedom of the individual in hopes that a few acts of courage will keep an honorable cause alive. No great hopes for our immediate success can be held out, however. The propaganda machine of the big Afro-Asian bloc in the U.N. seems to have uncommon powers of intimidation. It gets its view across in spite of the facts.

TWIST

Thus, the world is informed by the Congolese rebel, Christophe Gbenye, that no foreigners were being held as hostages when the Belgian paratroopers were dropped on Stanleyville. His implication is that we brought the Paulis and Stanleyville massacres on ourselves. As a matter of statistical count, more than twenty hostages had already been killed before the paratroopers had even been assembled at Ascension Island in the Atlantic; and the threats to the missionary, Dr. Paul Carlson, had been printed in every paper in America. Yet by turning the propaganda volume on and staging incendiary attacks on U.S. embassies and libraries in Moscow, Cairo, and Indonesia, our enemies have succeeded in forcing a "crisis" in our foreign policy. We wonder how far we should go in the business of rescuing missionaries. We wonder if we really should be backing Tshombe.

What beats this columnist is the sheer brazenness of our enemies. They nourish themselves twice over by biting the hand that feeds them. A 27,000-book U.S. Information Service library is wrecked in Jakarta, yet we continue to send money through the Agency for International Development to pay for the training of "counter-insurgency" elements inside Indonesia.

The John F. Kennedy Memorial Library is gutted in Cairo, yet the U.S. is busy helping the Egyptians install new systems of flight control at their airfields. Ben Bella of Algeria sends Russian arms to the Congo rebels, but he can't feed his own countrymen without taking economic aid from both the U.S. and France.

COUNTER-PUNCH

The dreadful irony about it all is that we have been so meek in the face of everything. The big offensive guns at the U.N. are visitors such as Russia's Gromyko and Cuba's Che Guevara. Our own posture has been defensive. When Adlai Stevenson, in the best speech of his life, fired back at those who were encouraging black racism, it represented a new and very welcome note in our counter-punching. But it was still counter-punching for all that.

What we need is a continuous expression of righteousness that will transcend the normal politeness of our information services. We have a big victory within our grasp if we could only muster the courage to be brazen on our own behalf. The Holden Roberto effort to use Tshombe's part of the Congo as a base for undermining Portuguese Angola hasn't been going well. Ben Bella has a completely disorganized economy on his hands in Algeria, and if the Western nations were to cease shipping food to Algerians a third of them would quickly die of hunger. In the Congo a corporal's guard of so-called "white mercenaries" has been sufficient to help Tshombe route his enemies. It is quite obvious to any rational being that we hold big cards.

Why, then, in heaven's name, don't we play an ace or two? If our enemies intend to kill us no matter what turn we take, why not get up off our knees and respond like men?

To The Point

The 'New Class' in Hungary

By RUSSELL KIRK

Communist Hungary being hungry for the hard currency of Western visitors, it is now possible to travel to Budapest: almost anyone in the West can obtain a visa. And though the great capital is sufficiently dreary nowadays, bearing the terrible scars of Russian repression of the patriotic rising, the modes of existence one sees there are interesting.

One phenomenon is the emergence of a new prosperous class, somewhat comparable to the "new class" which Milovan Djilas denounced in Yugoslavia, or to the "nepmen" of the early years of Soviet Russia. These Hungarian "nouveau riche", however, are neither governmental officials nor (primarily) small merchants. Rather, they are skilled craftsmen—shoemakers, carpenters, tailors, and the like. They carry on their trades privately, and they prosper nowadays. This new "aristocracy" it is which owns what private automobiles exist in Hungary, and which is accumulating capital under a Communist regime.

The source of their prosperity is the hopeless inefficiency of the Communist economic structure. Total "socialist planning" simply does not work in Hungary. Goods produced in state factories are shoddy and short-lived; worse still, such goods are always in short supply, and one may have to wait months to buy, at a state department store, an article one needs urgently.

So if a Hungarian wants a well-made pair of boots, or a solid chair, or a decent suit of clothes—and wants them "now"—he turns, perforce, to a small private producer, either licensed by the Communist officials or else winked at by the regime. A private seller's prices may be quadruple the state's prices for similar goods; but quality and availability find a market, even in impoverished Hungary. Badly made shoes from a state factory may cost the equivalent of five dollars—and be slow in coming; shoes from a private shoemaker may cost ten dollars, but they fit, and they can be got.

The Communist masters of Budapest tolerate this competition from small entrepreneurs for two reasons: first, the state industries simply do not turn out the requisite production, and goods must be made available somehow; second, the licensing or indulgence of private operators puts bribes into Communist officials' pockets. Political corruption in "capitalist" countries is the shadow of a shade compared with the venality of Communist bureaucrats at every level. A principal reason why the immense structure of economic regulation in Hungary remains unsimplified is this: Communist functionaries make their living by granting official or "de facto" exemptions in favor of private applicants to conduct small manufacturing and trading. Were there not a multitude of oppressive regulations, the reason for bribery of officials would vanish.

The comparatively affluent craftsmen of the "new aristocracy" profess themselves to be dogmatic Communists—because only a party member in good standing is likely to be granted a license, or to have his operations winked at. Whether they will remain sincere Communists, once they have accumulated considerable property and power, remains in doubt. The Communist military despotism has benefitted these craftsmen by eliminating the landed classes and the old middle class—so that the artisans emerge as the only people of substance and fair prospects. Yet, like the pigs in Orwell's "1984", the private craftsmen of Hungary now proclaim, "All citizens are equal—but some are more equal than others." There are logical difficulties in remaining a Communist zealot, under such circumstances.

"It was cruel of you not to do a better job of hiding those packages!"

By GEORGE BOARDMAN

Logic is a science dealing with the canons and criteria of validity of inference and demonstration. It wasn't really a hundred years ago when I discussed logic for so many hours with my scholarly friend, a Chinese, it only seems that way. With a dozen examples he cautioned me about the dangers inherent in inference. For instance, I have been told of a large, red wagon, drawn by two mules which travels on a narrow road from Tibet. There are no intersecting roads. Unless the wagon stops and never resumes its journey, or turns around on the road or runs off the road and down the mountain, this large, red wagon drawn by two mules will eventually arrive at the crossroad where we await its arrival. This is logic, at work.

We wait, you and I, day after day and no red wagon arrives. We now decide the wagon stopped, turned around and went the other way or was lost down the side of the mountain. But, none of these things happened. We watched a wagon drawn by two mules pass us. It was a blue wagon. The man who told us about the red wagon is color blind. Our reasoning was not at fault. The information was not accurate; the basic premise was invalid. We find that the application of logic, then, when applied to invalid premises, will result in inaccurate conclusions.

Regular readers of this column have spent a lot of time with me as we have examined the actions and reactions of individual human beings. To the best of my ability, I have attempted to move, logically, from cause to effect. To avoid less than accurate conclusions, I have consistently challenged basic premises which have been demonstrably inaccurate.

I have regularly challenged the theory that all humans are by instinct communal and gregarious. Some theorists state that human beings will always escape from work, by instinct, if they can achieve a livelihood without exertion or by working as little as possible. I have and will continue to challenge this statement on the basis of demonstrable evidence to the contrary.

It has been said, thousands of times, that human beings are basically evil and irrational unless other basically evil and irrational humans exert control over the other evil and irrational people. This theory is so obviously false as to require no other attention.

One theorist claims that ownership of property is a more powerful goal of achievement than the mating instinct. Others reverse the order and arrive at an opposing conclusion.

From each basic premise, each theorist arrives at conclusions by logical reasoning but logic is not magic. Human beings continue to refuse to cooperate according to plan and this condition will prevail until theorists recognize the unalterable fact that human beings are, individually, human beings — different even in their finger prints.

If and when an educator or student of human nature finally understands that human beings continually refuse to conform to theories in a totally inconsistent manner, the shock has a long-lasting effect. A proposed textbook is forgotten, an idea for slide-rule formula is discarded and the educator or student faces problems.

He or she can go right ahead and apply logic cleverly to a false premise, because hundreds or thousands of others have done the same thing. He or she can deliberately ignore every example which disproves the original theory. A very few, however, will recognize a few generalities for what they are and from that point on will study individualism, instead of mankind collectively, recognizing too that mankind is not a collective but millions of individuals. From such a beginning, continuing efforts devoted to the study of the philosophy of freedom will make important progress.

Good luck and good health to you, in Freedom.

Fur-Reaching Plans Seen In Fashions

By WALTER LOGAN

NEW YORK (UPI) — As a loyal New York Giants football fan we can only say "wait 'til Paul Goebel's fur-looking stadium parkas and other outerwear stadium coats, some reversible.

There already are pile-lined on the market, and there are lesser wares which resemble ocelots, zebras, tigers, etc. Goebel scornfully dismisses these as female furs and adds mink, caracul and persian lamb.

Goebel, 35, recently displayed some of his fur-looking creations at the National Outerwear and Sportswear Association Exhibit for Fall '65 in New York and currently (Nov. 27-Dec. 4) is in Frankfurt, Germany, trying to pick up some loose change from the European Common Market.

He designs for Borg Textiles among others and hopes to interest the Common Market in the fur-look since the company will be opening a plant in Brussels. He also designs for five sportswear manufacturers and seven other textile mills and is widely consulted.

"I started a lot of trends in the past years," he said. "I began with pile linings and made one reversible coat with a nylon taffeta shell. On a hot day you would wear the fur on the outside and on a cold day you would wear it on the inside.

"That led into trying to develop fake furs that look masculine, whereas otter, leopard, caracul, mink, Persian lamb look like female furs. The first breakthrough in the so-called masculine fur was raccoon.

"Then we made fur that we will have to call nondescript in that it resembles no living fur, not even teddy bear. Borg this year has brought out a golden shade for fall that is called 'whisky' since it looks more like whisky than an animal.

"When manufacturers actually saw the fur coats they decided they looked like men's coats and the industry got excited. It was really the only new look the manufacturers thought they could get behind."

Goebel said only two such fabrics were available last year, at from $10 to $12 a yard. This year about 60 are available with prices running as low as $3 a yard. Prices of finished garments will run from $30 to $100 because of the tremendous diversification.

Among the "masculine fake furs" are wolf, raccoon, unborn seal (which looks like pony) and Borgala. Borgala is a pile "I cannot associate directly with an animal," Goebel says. There also is a "wet look" pile which sparkles like the morning dew instead of looking messily wet.

Some individual creations include a wet look pile parka, a ski parka with a military stand-up collar that conceals a hood; a ski parka in Borgla (vaguely wolf-like) which reverses to a black textured nylon taffeta called "cracked ice."

More classic is a 32-inch suede jacket with the fur look inside but without bulk. A "coonskin TM stadium coat" is a 38-inch (just above the knees) hooded coat in an ombre stripe long hair fabric that might look like raccoon or buffalo or something. The one that created perhaps the most comment at the New York showing was a non-animal "whisky" colored ski parka. It was wild and wooly without looking like anything alive and has zipper ski pockets, drawstring hood and bottom. For wet days it reverses to a wet look nylon (shiny coated nylon.).

They Get to Use Handwarmer, Too

SEATTLE, Wash. (AP) — The kids who cross the guarded corner near the Schmitz Park School can't help wondering what William J. Lanksbury is going to get for Christmas.

Wednesday, they presented Lanksbury, who supervises the intersection, $14 they had raised for his present. Last year they gave him a full piggy bank and he promptly bought a hand warmer.

"It's a neat handwarmer," one of the youngsters said. "He let's us use it all the time."

Wall Street Report

NEW YORK (AP)—A rally by steels perked up a mixed and dull pre-Christmas stock market early Thursday afternoon.

Steels came to life on news that U.S. Steel had raised prices for galvanized sheet products and is revising some other charges.

U.S. Steel advanced a full point. Lukens Steel rose more than 2.

A highlight was a 4 - point spurt by Merck which raced to a new high on a published report that it had received federal approval to market an anticancer drug to hospitals.

The drug, an antibiotic named "actino-Mycin-'D' ", has long been used in cancer research.

Another feature was a 3-point rise by DuPont.

Changes were small and the general pattern was irregular elsewhere in the list.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was off .1 at 322.4 with industrials off .1, at 322.4 with industrials of .1 rails off .3 and utilities up .3.

The Dow Jones industrial average at noon was up 1.67 at 869.69.

All securities and commodities exchanges will be closed for the three-day Christmas weekend. Most commodity exchanges closed early today.

Prices were generally higher in moderate trading on the American Stock Exchange.

Corporate bonds were mixed and dealings in U.S. government bonds were at a minimum.

Grain Market

CHICAGO (AP) — Short-lived rallies in soybean and wheat futures marked an otherwise dull session on the Chicago Board of Trade today which left prices little changed.

For a time, soybeans were up as much as a cent.

There was little news to encourage pre-holiday buying aggressiveness.

Wheat ran into liquidation, corn was unable to achieve gains and scattered selling gave oats an easier tone. There was little business in rye.

Estimated carlot receipts were wheat 1, corn 117, oats 3, barley 31, soybeans 14 and rye none.

Fur-Reaching Plans Seen In Fashions

By WALTER LOGAN

NEW YORK (UPI) — As a loyal New York Giants football fan we can only say "wait 'til Paul Goebel's fur-looking stadium parkas and other outerwear stadium coats, some reversible.

There already are pile-lined on the market, and there are lesser wares which resemble ocelots, zebras, tigers, etc. Goebel scornfully dismisses these as female furs and adds mink, caracul and persian lamb.

Goebel, 35, recently displayed some of his fur-looking creations at the National Outerwear and Sportswear Association Exhibit for Fall '65 in New York and currently (Nov. 27-Dec. 4) is in Frankfurt, Germany, trying to pick up some loose change from the European Common Market.

He designs for Borg Textiles among others and hopes to interest the Common Market in the fur-look since the company will be opening a plant in Brussels. He also designs for five sportswear manufacturers and seven other textile mills and is widely consulted.

"I started a lot of trends in the past years," he said. "I began with pile linings and made one reversible coat with a nylon taffeta shell. On a hot day you would wear the fur on the outside and on a cold day you would wear it on the inside.

"That led into trying to develop fake furs that look masculine, whereas otter, leopard, caracul, mink, Persian lamb look like female furs. The first breakthrough in the so-called masculine fur was raccoon.

"Then we made fur that we will have to call nondescript in that it resembles no living fur, not even teddy bear. Borg this year has brought out a golden shade for fall that is called 'whisky' since it looks more like whisky than an animal.

"When manufacturers actually saw the fur coats they decided they looked like men's coats and the industry got excited. It was really the only new look the manufacturers thought they could get behind."

Goebel said only two such fabrics were available last year, at from $10 to $12 a yard. This year about 60 are available with prices running as low as $3 a yard. Prices of finished garments will run from $30 to $100 because of the tremendous diversification.

Among the "masculine fake furs" are wolf, raccoon, unborn seal (which looks like pony) and Borgala. Borgala is a pile "I cannot associate directly with an animal," Goebel says. There also is a "wet look" pile which sparkles like the morning dew instead of looking messily wet.

Some individual creations include a wet look pile parka, a ski parka with a military stand-up collar that conceals a hood; a ski parka in Borgla (vaguely wolf-like) which reverses to a black textured nylon taffeta called "cracked ice."

More classic is a 32-inch suede jacket with the fur look inside but without bulk. A "coonskin TM stadium coat" is a 38-inch (just above the knees) hooded coat in an ombre stripe long hair fabric that might look like raccoon or buffalo or something. The one that created perhaps the most comment at the New York showing was a non-animal "whisky" colored ski parka. It was wild and wooly without looking like anything alive and has zipper ski pockets, drawstring hood and bottom. For wet days it reverses to a wet look nylon (shiny coated nylon.).

They Get to Use Handwarmer, Too

SEATTLE, Wash. (AP) — The kids who cross the guarded corner near the Schmitz Park School can't help wondering what William J. Lanksbury is going to get for Christmas.

Wednesday, they presented Lanksbury, who supervises the intersection, $14 they had raised for his present. Last year they gave him a full piggy bank and he promptly bought a hand warmer.

"It's a neat handwarmer," one of the youngsters said. "He let's us use it all the time."

Wall Street Report

NEW YORK (AP)—A rally by steels perked up a mixed and dull pre-Christmas stock market early Thursday afternoon.

Steels came to life on news that U.S. Steel had raised prices for galvanized sheet products and is revising some other charges.

U.S. Steel advanced a full point. Lukens Steel rose more than 2.

A highlight was a 4 - point spurt by Merck which raced to a new high on a published report that it had received federal approval to market an anti-cancer drug to hospitals.

The drug, an antibiotic named "actino-Mycin-'D' ", has long been used in cancer research.

Another feature was a 3-point rise by DuPont.

Changes were small and the general pattern was irregular elsewhere in the list.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was off .1 at 322.4 with industrials off .1, at 322.4 with industrials of .1 rails off .3 and utilities up .3.

The Dow Jones industrial average at noon was up 1.67 at 869.69.

All securities and commodities exchanges will be closed for the three-day Christmas weekend. Most commodity exchanges closed early today.

Prices were generally higher in moderate trading on the American Stock Exchange.

Corporate bonds were mixed and dealings in U.S. government bonds were at a minimum.

Grain Market

CHICAGO (AP) — Short-lived rallies in soybean and wheat futures marked an otherwise dull session on the Chicago Board of Trade today which left prices little changed.

For a time, soybeans were up as much as a cent.

There was little news to encourage pre-holiday buying aggressiveness.

Wheat ran into liquidation, corn was unable to achieve gains and scattered selling gave oats an easier tone. There was little business in rye.

Estimated carlot receipts were wheat 1, corn 117, oats 3, barley 31, soybeans 14 and rye none.

Pinball Machines May Be Outlawed

ROME (AP) — The Italian government has asked Parliament to outlaw pinball machines both in public operation and in private clubs.

The government's request followed police seizure of machines in a Rome "social club" early this month after a young married man complained of losing his wife, home and job because he had lost thousands of dollars playing the machines.

Yule Contest Ends in Sizeable Check

Christmas season is said to be "the time for giving"; but, as evidenced by the receipt of a sizeable check, as shown above, it is also the time for competing.

Recently, the home office of Silver State Savings and Loan Association opened a Christmas decorating contest among it's five branch offices. The decorating contest was started on Dec. 10th with a competent board of judges evaluating the various office decorations between Friday and Wednesday.

Competition for the cash prize was quite keen and certainly illustrates a knack and proficiency by the Silver State personnel for fields of endeavor other than the savings and loan business.

Arthur W. "Pete" Barr, the local branch manager for Silver State Savings and Loan Association, 430 N. Tejon St., is shown above as he accepts the well-deserved check in the name of his personnel and office from the all-time famed provider of gracious gifts and good tidings, Santa Claus himself.

"Barr and his personnel invite all to come by their office in the Finance Center, 430 N. Tejon St., to see their award-winning decorations and also to see their most modern office.

The office decorations as well as the building itself are night lighted with the multi-colored electric lights supplying additional holiday effects. Silver State Savings says "Merry Christmas to all and best wishes for a very successful New Year."

COMSAT Will Pay $3.5 Million For Launching

By STERLING F. GREEN

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Communications Satellite Corp. — Comsat — announced today it will pay the government about $3.5 million to launch its "Early Bird" commercial satellite as soon as possible after March 1.

The contract, signed by Comsat and the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, commits NASA to perform similar launchings at Comsat's option after July 1. Ultimately, the earth will be circled with satellites for a permanent system of telephone, message and television transmission.

The Early Bird will be placed in synchronous orbit — that is, "standing" at 22,300 miles altitude above a fixed spot in the Atlantic — with NASA providing the launch vehicle and services, telemetry and tracking data.

Once successfully in orbit, the satellite will be turned over to Comsat. If tests are successful, commercial service should start about two months after the launching. The target date for permanent, full-scale commercial service is 1967.

The contract calls for Comsat to reimburse NASA for "actual governmental costs incurred for launches, whether or not successful," the corporation said, and the payment per launch "is on the order of $3.5 million."

"NASA will also provide a backup launch in the event 'Early Bird' is unsuccessful," the announcement said.

Technically, three satellites of the high-altitude, synchronous type would suffice for global communications service — one each over the Atlantic, Pacific and Indian oceans. Comsat has indicated it would also need three standby satellites, to be launched in case an orbiting satellite fails.

However, the corporation — manager of the system for communications agencies in 19 countries — also plans to test out a medium-altitude system. This would require more satellites, since each one would "see" a smaller area of the earth.

THE HAGUE — Mineral exploration rights in North Holland will be sold privately.

$200 Million Retail Business Listed in County

El Paso County's 1,293 retailers did a $212.3 million business in 1963 — an increase of 32 per cent from 1958 — reports the U. S. Census Bureau.

Retail trade in the county meant jobs for 7,618 persons, not including owners, and a yearly payroll of $25.8 million.

For all of Colorado, retail sales increased 26 per cent from 1958. The state's 17,294 retail establishments had $2,648.6 million in sales during 1963.

In volume of business, the county food stores had sales of $42.9 million, an increase of 32 per cent from 1958.

Other retailers did the following volume of business: eating and drinking places, $15.9 million; service stations, $19.8 million; auto and related businesses, $40.6; general merchandise stors, $23.5 million; and lumber, building materials, hardware and farm equipment dealers, $15.4 million.

The Census Bureau has just tabulated data gathered in the 1963 Census of Business. The last census conducted by the bureau was in 1963.

Census reports issued during the next few months will give state and county figures on wholesale and service business, manufacturing and mineral industries.

Appalachian Yule Season Shown on TV

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — Television's warmest Christmas story this season comes from the viewers.

On Monday night, CBS News, in a half-hour program, showed what Christmas — and every other day — is like in the bleak Appalachian region, where people are desperately poor and many are almost without hope.

The response to the program was immediate. CBS affiliate stations all over the country were flooded with calls from sympathetic people who wanted to know what they could do to help and where they could send help.

Neither the network nor its affiliates are equipped to handle such a situation. CBS quickly made arrangements with the Salvation Army, through its national headquarters in New York City — 120 West 14th Street — to set up a special "Appalachia Fund. "The Salvation Army will see that the contributions help to brighten the lives of those unfortunate families and their children.

Most interesting mystery of Tuesday night's network schedule was how on earth could Red Skelton in his tramp role of Freddie the Freeloader possibly insert the very elegant and glamorous Greer Garson into the show.

It was a cinch for both Red and Greer — and they manged to toss in a lot of other things as well: "The Hillcrest Drive Elementary School Choir — the credits gave no further identification of the delightful children — singing Christmas songs; Miss Garson as an elderly Covent Garden flower girl; Miss Garson in gorgeous evening gown reading the "Dear Virginia" letter about Santa Claus, to mention only a few.

Skelton is a wonderful, ingratiating clown. He also is television's iron man and his average of good shows ia amazingly high after 14 years of weekly shows.

Over on NBC's "That Was the Week That Was," however, it turned out to be the show that wasn't — so good, that is. The sketches lay there as if embalmed, even the old standbys of kidding the commercials and Madison Avenue. The one-line gags sounded more like wiseguy slams in a high school paper than shrewd comment.

Finally, the group took off on the assorted children's "war games" now on the market. Alan King was much funnier — and infinitely more caustic — on the same subject in an Ed Sullivan show 10 days ago.

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) — Singer Nat (King) Cole is reported making excellent progress at St. John's Hospital in Santa Monica, Calif., where he has been receiving cobalt treatments for a lung tumor since Dec. 8.

Cole asked his doctors if he could spend Christmas with his family, but they said Wednesday they don't know yet when he will be released.

Profit Sharing Shows Continued Growth in '64

Profit sharing continued to grow at its spectacular pace in 1964, according to Council of Profit Sharing Industries. Two thousand four hundred and fourteen new deferred plans were qualified the first six months in 1964, bringing the total to 40,963 in this country. From all indications, close to 5,000 will again be qualified by I.R.S. this year. Only five years ago, the nation had as few as 20,000 deferred profit sharing plans.

"Profit sharing helps the economy, and more and more executives are learning that fact," said Council President Stanley D. Noble, in announcing the new growth figures. "Studies have consistently shown that companies with profit sharing plans have a healthier profit picture than their competitors without plans.

Profit sharing can help reduce labor strife, increase productivity and improve profits. Profit sharing is, therefore, a bulward to our Amefican system of competitive capitalism."

Council of Profit Sharing Industries, a non-profit organization, is the recognized "voice of profit sharing" in the United States.

Noble also pointed to a major trend discernible from the Council's 8th annual survey of its members. Nearly half of those reporting now have employe contributions as a part of their plan, whereas 10 years ago fewer than 20 per cent used employe contributions.

"Apparently our members feel that having the employe contribute gets him even more involved in the plan and the company's interest in profits," Noble said. "More and more employes seem to believe that when part of the money in a profit sharing trust is the employe's own, he often is more interested in growth of the fund than if all the money comes from the employer's contribution."

Other major trends, as estimated by the Council:

Employers contributed $1 2-3 billion to profit sharing in 1964, up several hundred million dollars from the amount contributed in 1963. This brings to $14 billion the estimated amount now in American profit sharing trusts.

Fifteen years ago, better than three-quarters of the Council's members had cast profit sharing plans only. Today, only 14 per cent of members have cash plans only.

In 1949, only 5 per cent of member companies had combination cash-deferred profit sharing plans. Today nearly 25 per cent have combination plans.

In the 35 years from 1929 to 1964, deferred plans have increased at a rate 15 times faster than the growth of pension plans.

In 1964 alone, employes of Council of Profit Sharing Industries members contributed some $91 million to deferred funds.

But profit sharing, Noble emphasized, is much more than a system for stimulating economic growth. "It has a human side," he said, "and that side is equally important."

He spoke of the major electric welding company that this year, in cash profit sharing, paid an average of nearly $10,000 per employe in profit sharing.

And he spoke of the long-service employee of a major mercantile company who retired and whose dividends from the profit sharing trust were higher than her salary had been.

"This is what profit sharing is all about," he concluded. "It's economic security and retirement security. It's our citizens being provided with the opportunity, through profit sharing, to help themselves, to provide for their own economic growth.

"It's our American free enterprise system in action."

LBJ May Seek Civil Service, Postal Pay Hike

By KARL R. BAUMAN

JOHNSON CITY, Tex. (AP) — President Johnson has decided to ask Congress for higher rates on second and third class mail and is now reported giving serious consideration to asking pay raises for civil service and postal workers.

The decision on pay increases for Uncle Sam's 2.46 million civilian workers is one of the policy questions still facing Johnson in the final stages of his work on the federal budget.

Budget Director Kermit Gordonn said Wednesday that work on the budget was "over the hump." He steered clear of specific figures, but said the budget would be "very, very substantially below" the $108.5 billion originally asked by departments and agencies for the fiscal year which starts next July 1.

Asked if the total would be kept under $100 billion, Gordon said he couldn't give precise figures. Spending this fiscal year is estimated at $97.2 billion.

The President has been discussing the budget with various Cabinet officials here this week. He had no official appointments today and planned to spend a relaxing day-before-Christmas with his family at their ranch home.

One of Johnson's decisions Wednesday was to ask for the higher rates on second and third class mail. Second class mail includes newspapers and magazines, third class consists mainly of advertising matter.

In announcing the rate increase proposal at a news conference in Austin, Postmaster General John A. Gronouski said the requested increase would be modest.

Gronouski said Johnson also would ask for legislation to require volume users of first class mail to sort letters by ZIP code before mailing. He said this also would be required of second and third class volume mailers, but legislation is unnecessary.

Gronouski said the Post Office Department plans to hire more employes to cut down excessive overtime and increase efficiency. He did not say how big the increase would be.

The postmaster general also said the closing down of the smallest post offices — fourth class — would be stepped up. In recent years these offices have been closed at the rate of 400 to 500 a year.

Rolling Hotels Popular With Europe Traveler

Travelers leaving from Germany now can take their hotel along.

Five "Rotels" — short for "rolling hotel" — have been gaining increasing patronage there, primarily because of their low cost, the American Automobile Association reports. A trip from Munich through France, Italy, Spain, Portugal, Morocco, the Atlas Mountains and the Sahara Desert, for example costs about $6.15 a day, with all meals except dinner included.

Each rotel is made up of two units — the bus, where the travelers ride by day, and the trailer, where they sleep at night.

The 39-passenger buses are of modern construction, air-construction, air-conditioned and equipped with comfortable seats with head rests, electric outlets for razors and radios, and other amenities. Each trailer consists of 27 single-bed cabins and 6 double-bed cabins.

There are separate entrances for bachelors, spinsters and married couples. The beds are equipped with foam mattresses. A clothing rack runs the entire length of a 25-foot corridor. Each Rotel has a kitchen.

Total cost of the trip from Munich which includes the Sahara Desert is $185. This takes a month, from March 26 through April 26, ahd the price includes transportation, campground fees, sightseeing trips, overnight stay in the Rotel, breakfast, an afternoon snack and a light supper.

The traveler is advised to take along between $1.25 and $2.50 per day for dinner, admissions and incidentals. Dinner is served from the Rotel kitchen and ranges from 40 to 50 cents, with bread thrown in free.

An 11-day journey through France or Italy is priced at $65. A more ambitious run through Yugoslavia, Bulgaria, Turkey, Afghanistan, Iran, Syria and Iraq to India costs $650, and lasts 11 weeks.

The rotels are owned by Georg Holtl, who operates the sightseeing firm of Internationale Begegnungefahrten.

Holtl has the construction patented.

Last year, the rotels were patronized by 24,000 travelers. Holtl says problems so far have not been great. Principal ones are negotiating some of the narrower roads, and finding suitable campgrounds to set up for the night in some of the more remote areas.

Pinball Machines May Be Outlawed

ROME (AP) — The Italian government has asked Parliament to outlaw pinball machines both in public operation and in private clubs.

The government's request followed police seizure of machines in a Rome "social club" early this month after a young married man complained of losing his wife, home and job because he had lost thousands of dollars playing the machines.

IN MEMORIAM

In memory of my husband, Bert A. Robinson, who passed away one year ago on Christmas Eve, 1963.

Today recalls sad memories of a loved one laid to rest,
No one knows the silent heartache — only those who've lost can tell,
Of the grief I bear in silence
for the one I loved so well.

Sadly missed by his wife,
Letta V. Robinson

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of our dear one, James G. Odgers, who passed away 6 years ago December 24, 1958.

Many lonely heartaches and often a silent tear.
But always the beautiful memory of the one we loved so
dear.

Sadly missed by his wife and daughters,
Mrs. Violet M. Odgers
Mrs. Wm. Bruce & Family
Mrs. Robert Baldwin & Family

IN MEMORIAM

In memory of Carolyn Smith who passed away six years ago, December 24th. All the days she has been gone have been lonely, but today is the saddest day, for on this day, six years ago, she passed away; left me grieving for her presence in a home that will never see her pass through its rooms again. Many lonely heartaches and often silent tears for the one I loved so dearly.

Sadly missed by mother,
Mrs. Lillian Taylor

Yule Contest Ends in Sizeable Check

Christmas season is said to be "the time for giving"; but, as evidenced by the receipt of a sizeable check, as shown above, it is also the time for competing.

Recently, the home office of Silver State Savings and Loan Association opened a Christmas decorating contest among it's five branch offices. The decorating contest was started on Dec. 10th with a competent board of judges evaluating the various office decorations between Friday and Wednesday.

Competition for the cash prize was quite keen and certainly illustrates a knack and proficiency by the Silver State personnel for fields of endeavor other than the savings and loan business.

Arthur W. "Pete" Barr, the local branch manager for Silver State Savings and Loan Association, 430 N. Tejon St., is shown above as he accepts the well-deserved check in the name of his personnel and office from the all-time famed provider of gracious gifts and good tidings, Santa Claus himself.

"Barr and his personnel invite all to come by their office in the Finance Center, 430 N. Tejon St., to see their award-winning decorations and also to see their most modern office.

The office decorations as well as the building itself are night lighted with the multi-colored electric lights supplying additional holiday effects. Silver State Savings says "Merry Christmas to all and best wishes for a very successful New Year."

COMSAT Will Pay $3.5 Million For Launching

By STERLING F. GREEN

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Communications Satellite Corp. — Comsat — announced today it will pay the government about $3.5 million to launch its "Early Bird" commercial satellite as soon as possible after March 1.

The contract, signed by Comsat and the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, commits NASA to perform similar launchings at Comsat's option after July 1. Ultimately, the earth will be circled with satellites for a permanent system of telephone, message and television transmission.

The Early Bird will be placed in synchronous orbit — that is, "standing" at 22,300 miles altitude above a fixed spot in the Atlantic — with NASA providing the launch venicle and services, telemetry and tracking data.

Once successfully in orbit, the satellite will be turned over to Comsat. If tests are successful, commercial service should start about two months after the launching. The target date for permanent, full-scale commercial service is 1967.

The contract calls for Comsat to reimburse NASA for "actual governmental costs incurred for launches, whether or not successful," the corporation said, and the payment per launch "is on the order of $3.5 million."

"NASA will also provide a backup launch in the event 'Early Bird' is unsuccessful," the announcement said.

Technically, three satellites of the high-altitude, synchronous type would suffice for global communications service — one each over the Atlantic, Pacific and Indian oceans. Comsat has indicated it would also need three standby satellites, to be launched in case an orbiting satellite fails.

However, the corporation — manager of the system for communications agencies in 19 countries — also plans to test out a medium-altitude system. This would require more satellites, since each one would "see" a smaller area of the earth.

THE HAGUE — Mineral exploration rights in North Holland will be sold privately.

$200 Million Retail Business Listed in County

El Paso County's 1,293 retailers did a $212.3 million business in 1963 — an increase of 32 per cent from 1958 — reports the U. S. Census Bureau.

Retail trade in the county meant jobs for 7,618 persons, not including owners, and a yearly payroll of $25.8 million.

For all of Colorado, retail sales increased 26 per cent from 1958. The state's 17,294 retail establishments had $2,648.6 million in sales during 1963.

In volume of business, the county food stores had sales of $42.9 million, an increase of 32 per cent from 1958.

Other retailers did the following volume of business: eating and drinking places, $15.9 million; service stations, $19.8 million; auto and related businesses, $40.6; general merchandise stors, $23.5 million; and lumber, building materials, hardware and farm equipment dealers, $15.4 million.

The Census Bureau has just tabulated data gathered in the 1963 Census of Business. The last census conducted by the bureau was in 1963.

Census reports issued during the next few months will give state and county figures on wholesale and service business, manufacturing and mineral industries.

Appalachian Yule Season Shown on TV

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — Television's warmest Christmas story this season comes from the viewers.

On Monday night, CBS News, in a half-hour program, showed what Christmas —and every other day —is like in the bleak Appalachian region, where people are desperately poor and many are almost without hope.

The response to the program was immediate. CBS affiliate stations all over the country were flooded with calls from sympathetic people who wanted to know what they could do to help and where they could send help.

Neither the network nor its affiliates are equipped to handle such a situation. CBS quickly made arrangements with the Salvation Army, through its national headquarters in New York City —120 West 14th Street — to set up a special "Appalachia Fund. "The Salvation Army will see that the contributions help to brighten the lives of those unfortunate families and their children.

Most interesting mystery of Tuesday night's network schedule was how on earth could Red Skelton in his tramp role of Freddie the Freeloader possibly insert the very elegant and glamorous Greer Garson into the show.

It was a cinch for both Red and Greer — and they manged to toss in a lot of other things as well: "The Hillcrest Drive Elementary School Choir —the credits gave no further identification of the delightful children — singing Christmas songs; Miss Garson as an elderly Covent Garden flower girl; Miss Garson in gorgeous evening gown reading the "Dear Virginia" letter about Santa Claus, to mention only a few.

Skelton is a wonderful, ingratiating clown. He also is television's iron man and his average of good shows ia amazingly high after 14 years of weekly shows.

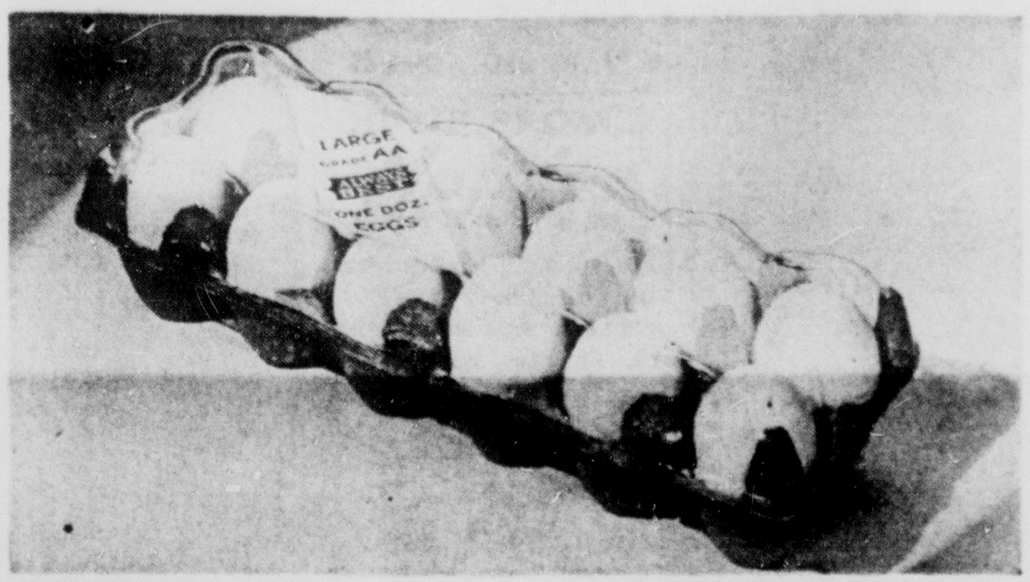
Over on NBC's "That Was the Week That Was," however, it turned out to be the show that wasn't — so good, that is. The sketches lay there as if embalmed, even the old standbys of kidding the commercials and Madison Avenue. The one-line gags sounded more like wise-guy slams in a high school paper than shrewd comment.

Finally, the group took off on the assorted children's "war games" now on the market. Alan King was much funnier — and infinitely more caustic —on the same subject in an Ed Sullivan show 10 days ago.

Nat King Cole Makes Excellent Progress

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) — Singer Nat (King) Cole is reported making excellent progress at St. John's Hospital in Santa Monica, Calif., where he has been receiving cobalt treatments for a lung tumor since Dec. 8.

Cole asked his doctors if he could spend Christmas with his family, but they said Wednesday they don't know yet when he will be released.



DOZ-N-VU—This new carrier is a new and revolutionary egg carton developed and being readied for the market by A & E Plastik Pak Co., Inc. of Los Angeles. This is a transparent package and it creates on exciting step forward in egg merchandising. The Doz-N-Vu features a crystal clear plastic top and a moulded pulp bottom. The top and bottom are joined together very easily by a positive locking system which insures safe transportation and handling. The package is just as easily opened by the simple means of quickly disengaging the locks. The mechanics are so uncomplicated that even a child can manage opening and closing with ease. Every egg contained in the Doz-N-Vu is fully visible through the transparent dome. Now the shopper can make his or her selection quickly and confidently as the product is in full view. The obvious hazards of the old fashioned egg cartons are immediately eliminated. Ease of handling and refrigerator inventory are only two of the advantages to the consumer.

Profit Sharing Shows Continued Growth in '64

Profit sharing continued to grow at its spectacular pace in 1964, according to Council of Profit Sharing Industries. Two thousand four hundred and fourteen new deferred plans were qualified the first six months in 1964, bringing the total to 40,963 in this country. From all indications, close to 5,000 will again be qualified by I.R.S. this year. Only five years ago, the nation had as few as 20,000 deferred profit sharing plans.

"Profit sharing helps the economy, and more and more executives are learning that fact," said Council President Stanley D. Noble, in announcing the new growth figures. "Studies have consistently shown that companies with profit sharing plans have a healthier profit picture than their competitors without plans.

Profit sharing can help reduce labor strife, increase productivity and improve profits. Profit sharing is, therefore, a bulwark to our Amefican system of competitive capitalism."

Council of Profit Sharing Industries, a non - profit organization, is the recognized "voice of profit sharing" in the United States.

Noble also pointed to a major trend discernible from the Council's 8th annual survey of its members. Nearly half of those reporting now have employe contributions as a part of their plan, whereas 10 years ago fewer than 20 per cent used employe contributions.

"Apparently our members feel that having the employe contribute gets him even more involved in the plan and the company's interest in profits," Noble said. "More and more employes seem to believe that when part of the money in a profit sharing trust is the employe's own, he often is more interested in growth of the fund than if all the money comes from the employer's contribution."

Other major trends, as estimated by the Council:

Employers contributed $1 2-3 billion to profit sharing in 1964, up several hundred million dollars from the amount contributed in 1963. This brings to $14 billion the estimated amount now in American profit sharing trusts.

Fifteen years ago, better than three - quarters of the Council's members had cast profit sharing plans only. Today, only 14 per cent of members have cash plans only.

In 1949, only 5 per cent of member companies had combination cash - deferred profit sharing plans. Today nearly 25 per cent have combination plans.

In the 35 years from 1929 to 1964, deferred plans have increased at a rate 15 times faster than the growth of pension plans.

In 1964 alone, employes of Council of Profit Sharing Industries members contributed some $91 million to deferred funds.

But profit sharing, Noble emphasized, is much more than a system for stimulating economic growth. "It has a human side," he said, "and that side is equally important."

He spoke of the major electric welding company that this year, in cash profit sharing, paid an average of nearly $10,000 per employe in profit sharing.

And he spoke of the long-service employee of a major mercantile company who retired and whose dividends from the profit sharing trust were higher than her salary had been.

"This is what profit sharing is all about," he concluded. "It's economic security and retirement security. It's our citizens being provided with the opportunity, through profit sharing, to help themselves, to provide for their own economic growth.

"It's our American free enterprise system in action."

LBJ May Seek Civil Service, Postal Pay Hike

By KARL R. BAUMAN

JOHNSON CITY, Tex. (AP) — President Johnson has decided to ask Congress for higher rates on second and third class mail and is now reported giving serious consideration to asking pay raises for civil service and postal workers.

The decision on pay increases for Uncle Sam's 2.46 million civilian workers is one of the policy questions still facing Johnson in the final stages of his work on the federal budget.

Budget Director Kermit Gordonn said Wednesday that work on the budget was "over the hump." He steered clear of specific figures, but said the budget would be "very, very substantially below" the $108.5 billion originally asked by departments and agencies for the fiscal year which starts next July 1.

Asked if the total would be kept under $100 billion, Gordon said he couldn't give precise figures. Spending this fiscal year is estimated at $97.2 billion.

The President has been discussing the budget with various Cabinet officials here this week. He had no official appointments today and planned to spend a relaxing day-before-Christmas with his family at their ranch home.

One of Johnson's decisions Wednesday was to ask for the higher rates on second and third class mail. Second class mail includes newspapers and magazines, third class consists mainly of advertising matter.

In announcing the rate increase proposal at a news conference in Austin, Postmaster General John A. Gronouski said the requested increase would be modest.

Gronouski said Johnson also would ask for legislation to require volume users of first class mail to sort letters by ZIP code before mailing. He said this also would be required of second and third class volume mailers, but legislation is unnecessary.

Gronouski said the Post Office Department plans to hire more employes to cut down excessive overtime and increase efficiency. He did not say how big the increase would be.

The postmaster general also said the closing down of the smallest post offices — fourth class — would be stepped up. In recent years these offices have been closed at the rate of 400 to 500 a year.

Rolling Hotels Popular With Europe Traveler

Travelers leaving from Germany now can take their hotel along.

Five "Rotels" — short for "rolling hotel" — have been gaining increasing patronage there, primarily because of their low cost, the American Automobile Association reports. A trip from Munich through France, Italy, Spain, Portugal, Morocco, the Atlas Mountains and the Sahara Desert, for example costs about $6.15 a day, with all meals except dinner included.

Each rotel is made up of two units — the bus, where the travelers ride by day, and the trailer, where they sleep at night.

The 39-passenger buses are of modern construction, air-construction, air-conditioned and equipped with comfortable seats with head rests, electric outlets for razors and radios, and other amenities. Each trailer consists of 27 single-bed cabins and 6 double-bed cabins.

There are separate entrances for bachelors, spinsters and married couples. The beds are equipped with foam mattresses. A clothing rack runs the entire length of a 25-foot corridor. Each Rotel has a kitchen.

Total cost of the trip from Munich which includes the Sahara Desert is $185. This takes a month, from March 26 through April 26, ahd the price includes transportation, campground fees, sightseeing trips, overnight stay in the Rotel, breakfast, an afternoon snack and a light supper.

The traveler is advised to take along between $1.25 and $2.50 per day for dinner, admissions and incidentals. Dinner is served from the Rotel kitchen and ranges from 40 to 50 cents, with bread thrown in free.

An 11-day journey through France or Italy is priced at $65. A more ambitious run through Yugoslavia, Bulgaria, Turkey, Afghanistan, Iran, Syria and Iraq to India costs $650, and lasts 11 weeks.

The rotels are owned by Georg Holtl, who operates the sightseeing firm of Internationale Begegnungefahrten.

Holtl has the construction patented.

Last year, the rotels were patronized by 24,000 travelers. Holtl says problems so far have not been great. Principal ones are negotiating some of the narrower roads, and finding suitable campgrounds to set up for the night in some of the more remote areas.

Senior Girl Scouts Have Party

The annual Girl Scout Christmas festival was presented in the all-purpose room, Fremont elementary school, at 2 p.m. on Sunday. The program was staged and narrated by the senior scouts, Troop 24 and they presented awards to girls who had earned them.

The program opened with a procession of all the girls, each with an ornament for the tree in the center of the floor, and as they progressed, hung their ornament, and moved on to their seats, they sang "Girl Scouts Together."

Christmas customs today, in history, and in times before Christ's birth (related customs) made up the subject of the program, with interspersed songs and readings.

Special numbers were also presented. Debbie Vitullo played a piano solo, "O Holy Night;" Karen Carestia played two accordian solos and Mary Parker played a piano solo. Karen Slack played a trumpet solo and Ida Williams did an acrobatic dance.

The program was closed with a personal appearance of Santa Claus, expertly portrayed by Peggy Fox, and the children received treats.

Opening lead: Six of ♠

When North heard his partner open the bidding with one no-trump, a small slam became assured inasmuch as he had 19 high card points and South is known to have at least 16. If the opening bidder held the maximum of 18, North wished to be in seven. He accordingly jumped to three clubs with the intention of bidding six no-trump on the next round. This invites the opener to go on if he has a maximum for, if the responder were content to settle for a small slam, he would bid six no trump directly, withnout bothering to show another feature.

West opened his fourth best spade and declarer won the first trick with the ace. With an even division in clubs, South has 12 top tricks; however, when West showed out on the first lead of that suit, declarer's total of winners was reduced to 10.

Inasmuch as East was marked with a double stopper in clubs, South switched his attention to the hearts. After putting up North's ace of clubs at trick two, he led the six of hearts and finessed the queen from his hand.

When West won the trick with the king, South's defeat became assured. He won the spade return in his hand and led a small heart out to the ten. East was in with the jack and exited with a heart. Declarer played the ace and, wewn the suit spilt evenly, he was able to claim the balance for a one trick setback.

Declarer's conviction that the success or failure of his contract hinged entirely on a successful heart finesse plus a three-three division in the suit was not quite accurate. The presence of the ten in dummy and the eight in his hand offered him an additional chance that could be attempted without risk.

It is suggested that South lead the ten of hearts at trick three with the intention of passing this card into the West hand if it is not covered. Inasmuch as one trick in the suit must be surrendered regardless of the distribution, the finesse of the queen can be conveniently deferred for one round.

When the ten of hearts is led, East is obliged to play the jack to protect his partner's holding in the suit. South covers with the queen and West is in with the king. When hearts are led the next time, East follows with the seven and declarer plays the eight which holds the trick. The ace now picks up the remaining hearts and South has his 12 tricks.

If the East - West heart holdings were reversed, the ten of hearts play would lose to the jack, but on the following round South can successfully finesse the queen and then pick up the king with his ace.

Day Nursery Tots Visited By St. Nick at Yule Party

The traditional Christmas party at the Colorado Springs Day Nursery, 104 E. Rio Grande St., was held on Tuesday. Parents, brothers and sisters of Day Nursery children, and members of the board of directors were invited to a program in the auditorium at 4:30 p.m.

The pre-school children, dressed as angels, sang well known Christmas carols under the direction of Mrs. Ann Davis and Mrs. Joan Cooper, teachers of the three to five year olds.

The older children presented a play, "Santa Takes a Holiday" written by a former nursery teacher, the late Miss Agnes Pace. The cast of characters included: John Lucardie, Anita Tofoya, Terry Earnest, Stacy Rhoads, Earnest Greenough, Colleen Hall, Garold Ashlock and David Martin.

Children and parents joined in singing "Jingle Bells" to greet Santa Claus, Harry Mallon, who distributed gifts to all the nursery children and their visiting brothers and sisters.

Preceding the program, refreshments furnished by friends of the nursery, were served in the dining room. George White and his mother gave the ice-cream, and George Swem gave the candy.

DEAR ABBY: Our daughter is 17 and a senior in high school. We have never had any trouble with her but we have never told her anything about the facts of life, either, so we can't be sure what she knows and what she doesn't know. She and her girl friend were invited to a university for a college weekend. It is about a two-hour ride on the bus from here. If you have a book on ALL the facts of life for girls that age, please send it C.O.D. right away because she is leaving Friday on the 4:00 bus. I thank you—WORRIED MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: I could send a book, but even if it were to arrive before the bus left, it would be approximately four years too late. You had better have a mother-daughter chat with her before she boards the bus.

DEAR ABBY: Lately my home has been like a public telephone booth. We seem to be the only ones in this neighborhood with a phone. For instance, this week we got three long - distance calls for people who live down the block. They gave our number as their contact without even asking us. Then a woman I never saw before rang our bell and asked if she could use our phone. I thought it was an emergency (car trouble or something) but it turned out she just wanted to confirm some plans with a friend. She sat and talked for half an hour while I felt like a stranger in my own home. Last night another woman came over around midnight to call a tavern to see if her husband was there. I hate to be unfriendly, but I don't like being taken advantage of. How can I get this across? Don't use my real name or it will be mud. —WAVERLY, OHIO

DEAR WAVERLY: Why anyone should apologize for guarding his privacy is beyond me. Helping a neighbor is friendliness. Letting people "use" you is foolishness. Let each presumptuous neighbor know how you feel the first time he oversteps his bounds, and don't worry about what your name will be.

HINTS FROM Heloise

Dear Heloise:

Last night I had to fix a hurried supper so I got out a packaged macaroni and cheese dinner.

One package of it makes twice as much as we can eat for one meal (and macaroni just isn't quite as good warmed over), so I decided to divide it.

I laid the foil package of cheese on the counter and flattened it with my hand. With a knife blade, I pushed down across the center of the package, and the cheese moved back from the center.

I cut the foil across this indentation, turned the cut edge foil over on one of the halves of the metal package, rolled it up as far as I could and set the package aside. I took the other half, plus half the macaroni and prepared it for dinner.

Now I have half the cheese and half the macaroni left over to be freshly prepared for another meal.

This method would also work on other foil wrapped items. . . such as French onion soup mix, when you only want to make half the recipe of soup or dip.

This is a good idea for small families or those who live alone.

I tried tape and sanding the soles of my baby's shoes, but they were still slippery. Then I bought some very thin foam rubber, (about one-eight-inch thick) and glued it to the soles of his shoes. Result — no more falls.

When this piece of foam rubber has worn off, take a razor blade and scrape off the remains and apply a new strip. Works beautifully.

Senior Girl Scouts Have Party

The annual Girl Scout Christmas festival was presented in the all-purpose room, Fremont elementary school, at 2 p.m. on Sunday. The program was staged and narrated by the senior scouts, Troop 24 and they presented awards to girls who had earned them.

The program opened with a procession of all the girls, each with an ornament for the tree in the center of the floor, and as they progressed, hung their ornament, and moved on to their seats, they sang "Girl Scouts Together."

Christmas customs today, in history, and in times before Christ's birth (related customs) made up the subject of the program, with interspersed songs and readings.

Special numbers were also presented. Debbie Vitullo played a piano solo, "O Holy Night;" Karen Carestia played two accordian solos and Mary Parker played a piano solo. Karen Slack played a trumpet solo and Ida Williams did an acrobatic dance.

The program was closed with a personal appearance of Santa Claus, expertly portrayed by Peggy Fox, and the children received treats.

Approximately 70 girl scouts participated in the festival and it was well attended by parents and friends.

CAPITOL STUFF

By MICHAEL O'NEILL

WASHINGTON — Like every good general, Rep Wilbur Mills knows when to retreat. And he is now galloping to the rear on medicare, leaving only the battered legions of the American Medical Association still carrying on the battle.

Word is that the redoubtable chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee gave the AMA the bad news even before he blew the bugle. But the doctors decided in Miami to go down like the Light Brigade, if necessary, rather than yield an inch.

Even a casual glance at President Johnson's legislative forces would be enough to rattle the teeth of a brave man. And political bravery isn't a Mills specialty. He takes more pride in being on the winning side in Congress than in squandering his power and risking his prestige in lost causes.

This veteran southern leader has always said he would go along if a majority of his committee decided to back medicare. And yesterday he made it official with a few pregnant comments delivered in his office back home among the voters in Little Rock, Ark.

"I could vote for a payroll tax to finance part of the cost of health care for the aged," said medicare's longtime roadblock. He had "no objection to Social Security administration of such a program" and, yes, he assumed that his committee would be able to agree on a bill.

It sounded like a sudden change of heart, but longtime Mills - watchers were not surprised. They had seen the chairman gradually altering his position ever since the final days of the 88th Congress. He was simply adjusting to the formidable new political power being weilded by Johson.

The President laid the groundwork for Mills' eventual retreat last fall when he made the bold decision, in the middle of the election campaing, to scuttle increased Social Security cash benefits if Mills refused to give him medicare.

THE ENEMY'S STRATEGY CRUMBLES

This surprise tactic knocked a hole in the whole strategy of the anti - medicare forces. They had hoped to hike taxes for the cash benefits so high that there wouldn't be any room for a costly new program for the aged.

The decision of a Senate-House conference to reject the cash benefits along with medicare was a victory for Johnson and a sharp personal rebuff for Mills — something he is not accustomed to. The chairman quickly began making noises about compromise.

When Johnson then rolled up the biggest popular election landslide in history, Mills could see the jig was up. Democratic leaders began talking about reforming the Rules Committee and adding new Democratic liberals to the committee to grease the ways for sure passage of medicare.

In a speech to the Lions Club in Little Rock Dec. 2, Mills confided: "I can support a payroll tax for financing health benefits just as I have supported a payroll tax for cash benefits." His only hedge on the financing was that there should be a separate aged care fund because of the fundamental difference between cash and service benefits.

DEPLORES STRESS ON HOSPITAL BENEFITS

While he was on the general subject, Mills delivered a rather eloquent commentary on the issues involved in the aged care problem. And in the process he put the spotlight on some of the main criticisms of the administration's King-Anderson bill.

One issue he raised is the measure's emphasis on hospital benefits. Mills noted that more than half the medical expenses of the hospitalized elderly in 1962 were for drugs, doctors' bills He also pointed out that hosand other non - hospital charges. He also pointed out that hospitalization is the most expensive form of health care.

"Do we want to spend limited funds," he asked, "mainly to further emphasize use of our most expensive services and in duplication of our most widely available private benefits?"

Mills also asked whether the government should be concerned only with the aged. What about the other groups in our society who might need care? Should there be separate kinds of government programs for the aged, for special diseases and for poverty?

But when all was said and done, however, Mills insisted, "We are not in a contest of wills among responsible persons or agencies about whether the the aged need adequate health benefits (because) they do." He predicted that "We can agree, I think, on the need for sound benefits responsibly rated."

Santa Claus Due At Ft. Carson Army Hospital

Christmas Eve will bring Santa Claus from the North Pole on Pikes Peak to distribute gifts at the Ft. Carson U. S. Army Hospital, a traditional visit, from hundreds of anonymous friends.

The military and dependents who welcome them will never meet the hunderds of givers involved in this annual project coordinated by the American Red Cross at Ft. Carson and in county chapters.

But the Christmas spirit they express will never be forgotten for those so unfortunate as to be spending this home holiday alone in a hospital.

Preparations have been underway throughout December with carolers hiking the miles of corridors from ward to ward. On Dec. 23 a group from Security Cub Pack 23 brought cookies and punch to share along with their songs.

Other recent carolers have included Girl Scout Troops 43 and 239. The second group made bed boards as a troop project to be given at Christmas.

On Christmas Day the Red Cross program director, Jane Curtis, will bring fruit cake from Pikes Peak Chapter in Colorado Springs and coffee to the patients along with greetings from Col. Martin Pfotenhauer, hospital commander. Staff of the hospital and 67th Evacuation Hospital will assist him..

At this point they will have received stationery, toys and booties (for Carsonmites) from the Salvation Army, men's gifts from the Pikes Peak Chapter, candy and cookies from the Pueblo Red Cros, ball point pens from the Ft. Carson Noncommissioned Officers Wives Club and Norcross Christmas cards to send to their friends.

Other gifts have come through the Fremont County Red Cross Chapter at Canon City and Kit Carson Chapter at Burlington.

Pueblo Chapter is supplying gifts for women and children and bedside tables will be decorated with miniature trees from the Pikes Peak, Fountain Valley and Airlane Garden Clubs with materials provided by the Manitou Springs Masons.

Youth services from all chapters have supplied tray mats and favors, mess hall decorations with decorations, stockings, nut cups, mobiles and plaques from Pikes Peak youth only.

School Groups In Special Yule Program

The program is one of a series presented during the holiday season featuring school and military vocal groups from throughout the Pikes Peak Region.

The Pepsi-Cola Bottling Co. and Mrs. and Mrs. Ross Lane are sponsoring the Wasson telecast in the public interest, and as their contribution toward a happy holiday season.

NORAD Flashes Annual Alert for Santa Claus

North American Air Defense Command headquarters flashed a continent - wide aerospace alert today.

"Santa's on his way" is the way the terse message read and it was destined for all children — grown-up and young — in Canada and the United States.

The giant Ballistic Missle Early Warning System grids located in Greenland had picked up some unusual air movement in the far north.

Immediate notations had automatically appeared on the huge continental map located in the NORAD Combat Operations Center in Colorado Springs. They indicated that a missile attack was in the offing.

The Ballistic Missile Early Warning System display at the Colorado Springs headquarters is an automatic device. The NORAD battle staff headed by Gen. John K. Gerhart, the Canadian-United States aerospace defense organization's commander in chief, was alerted.

The combat operations center staff, whose members electronically monitor space around the North American Continent, was given the go-ahead for a continental alert. Instructions to run down the unknown object playing havoc with the system were clear, concise and military.

Into complete operational readiness status went the full 200,000 man two-nation organization under the command of General Gerhart. But in the spirit of the season it was all make-believe.

If this activity would have been for real, the families of North America would have had a not-so-merry Christmas in store, but happily for the children., it was a NORAD holiday season ritual which has taken place for the last eight years.

That object picked up by NORAD was St. Nicholas, Santa Claus, Pere Noel, Father Christmas, or any of a myriad of other names by which the jolly old elf is known in the Christian world.

And what triggered the entire make-believe aerospace situation was the soft ring of a gong in a dimly lit room dominated by a hubge three-story grid map of North America. The display depicts among other things the aerospace and atmospheric approaches to North America over the polar regions.

The soft ring alerted the Canadian-United States staff of the COC, and the gleeful shout from the senior controller on duty, "Santa's on his way," echoed through the almost church-like atmosphere of the three-story command post.

After alerting NORAD Commander in Chief Gerhart, the COC staff during the next 36 hours would play a make-believe tracking game. St. Nick and his reindeer would be the object of their search.

"As much for themselves as the kiddies throughout the world," is the way Gen. Gerhart explains the annual tracking situation.

Admittedly he has always had the opinion that the long Christmas Eve shifts in his command post were the worst for a military man to pull.

The single airman thinks of home which can be thousands of miles away. He is usually young and relatively inexperienced in spite of his responsible job as a cog in the continental aerospace system.

A married man on duty in the command post probably has the toughest assignment. Normally, his family is celebrating the Yuletide season only city blocks away in the environs of Colorado Springs. He can speak to them on the phone but he can't see them.

The morale of the COC staff is only bolstered by the knowledge that they are protecting the continent from surprise attack by enemies who do not celebrate the birth of Christ.

Consequently, Santa is tracked. NORAD reports on his delivery of goodies and toys to kiddies all over the world regardless of race, creed or coior.

With one eye cocked toward the particularly sensitive northernmost approaches to North America, these NORAD men of freedom track and relay bulletins to the communications media of the world.

Everyone enjoys it and the children of our sophisticated, communications - saturated world add just one more year to their belief in Santa Claus and fantasy.

It all started here eight years ago when a local chain store invited calls to Santa Claus on duty in their toyland. Just one digit separated the number assigned their Santa from a NORAD COC telephone numbers.

The inevitable happened. The veteran military man on duty there — an air force colonel who had three young daughters — got the first call from a little piping voice.

Alertly remembering the Christmas season and his children, he quickly played the part of Santa. He then ordered his staff to track the jolly old man during his Christmas Eve travels.

Since then it has become an annual activity with the NORAD staff. Now the entire Canadian-United States group enters into the spirit of the occasion.

Nearly all of them fathers, many having been lonely military men away from home on Christmas, they have a special insight into what the news of St. Nick's travels does for the children of the world.

The electronic game goes on until it is certain that St. Nick has returned to his North Pole headquarters. Then the NORAD men wrap up their game with the satisfying knowledge that they have made Christmas a little more believable for citizens and children of the world.

The finish is recorded sometime Christmas morning when General Gerhart gets a telephonic notification from the duty controller at his command post. It is only a short, very military "Operation Santa Claus completed, sir," but it always brings a Christmas morning smile to the NORAD commander in chief.

School Board Plans for Construction

Plans for new construction projects were discussed Tuesday night by the Fountain - Ft. Carson District 8 School Board.

Board members had a question and answer session with Lusk and Wallace, architects who are designing an elementary school at Ft. Carson for approximately 300 youngsters; a classroom addition to Fountain Elementary School; and classroom and athletic facilities for Fountain - Ft. Carson High School.

Patrons of the district will go to the polls Jan. 19 to vote on a $600,000 bond issue to pay for the school projects.

Two Charged With Burglary

Victor Manueal Martinez, 19, 915 E. Cucharras St., and William Lee Martinez, 21, 215 E. Las Vegas St., were charged in District Court Wednesday with burglary.

They are alleged to have broken into the Farmer's Market, 2915 E. Highway 24, early Wednesday morning.

Judge Hunter D. Hardeman set bond in both cases at $2,500 each.

CHECK PRESENTED—A. C. Erickson (center) former president of Goodwill Industries of Colorado Springs is shown here as he presented a $7,000 check, the gift of an anonymous donor, to Ken Hall, his successor in office. Watching the presentation is Kenneth Olson, Goodwill executive director. Erickson, a board member, said the contribution will be used to reduce the organization's mortgage on the building at 2307 W. NORAD Flashes Annual Alert for Santa Claus

North American Air Defense Command headquarters flashed a continent - wide aerospace alert today.

"Santa's on his way" is the way the terse message read and it was destined for all children — grown-up and young — in Canada and the United States.

The giant Ballistic Missle Early Warning System grids located in Greenland had picked up some unusual air movement in the far north.

Immediate notations had automatically appeared on the huge continental map located in the NORAD Combat Operations Center in Colorado Springs. They indicated that a missile attack was in the offing.

The Ballistic Missile Early Warning System display at the Colorado Springs headquarters is an automatic device. The NORAD battle staff headed by Gen. John K. Gerhart, the Canadian-United States aerospace defense organization's commander in chief, was alerted.

The combat operations center staff, whose members electronically monitor space around the North American Continent, was given the go-ahead for a continental alert. Instructions to run down the unknown object playing havoc with the system were clear, concise and military.

Into complete operational readiness status went the full 200,000 man two-nation organization under the command of General Gerhart. But in the spirit of the season it was all make-believe.

If this activity would have been for real, the families of North America would have had a not-so-merry Christmas in store, but happily for the children., it was a NORAD holiday season ritual which has taken place for the last eight years.

That object picked up by NORAD was St. Nicholas, Santa Claus, Pere Noel, Father Christmas, or any of a myriad of other names by which the jolly old elf is known in the Christian world.

And what triggered the entire make-believe aerospace situation was the soft ring of a gong in a dimly lit room dominated by a hubge three-story grid map of North America. The display depicts among other things the aerospace and atmospheric approaches to North America over the polar regions.

The soft ring alerted the Canadian-United States staff of the COC, and the gleeful shout from the senior controller on duty, "Santa's on his way," echoed through the almost church-like atmosphere of the three-story command post.

After alerting NORAD Commander in Chief Gerhart, the COC staff during the next 36 hours would play a make-believe tracking game. St. Nick and his reindeer would be the object of their search.

"As much for themselves as the kiddies throughout the world," is the way Gen. Gerhart explains the annual tracking situation.

Admittedly he has always had the opinion that the long Christmas Eve shifts in his command post were the worst for a military man to pull.

The single airman thinks of home which can be thousands of miles away. He is usually young and relatively inexperienced in spite of his responsible job as a cog in the continental aerospace system.

A married man on duty in the command post probably has the toughest assignment. Normally, his family is celebrating the Yuletide season only city blocks away in the environs of Colorado Springs. He can speak to them on the phone but he can't see them.

The morale of the COC staff is only bolstered by the knowledge that they are protecting the continent from surprise attack by enemies who do not celebrate the birth of Christ.

Consequently, Santa is tracked. NORAD reports on his delivery of goodies and toys to kiddies all over the world regardless of race, creed or color.

With one eye cocked toward the particularly sensitive northernmost approaches to North America, these NORAD men of freedom track and relay bulletins to the communications media of the world.

Everyone enjoys it and the children of our sophisticated, communications - saturated world add just one more year to their belief in Santa Claus and fantasy.

It all started here eight years ago when a local chain store invited calls to Santa Claus on duty in their toyland. Just one digit separated the number assigned their Santa from a NORAD COC telephone numbers.

The inevitable happened. The veteran military man on duty there — an air force colonel who had three young daughters — got the first call from a little piping voice.

Alertly remembering the Christmas season and his children, he quickly played the part of Santa. He then ordered his staff to track the jolly old man during his Christmas Eve travels.

Since then it has become an annual activity with the NORAD staff. Now the entire Canadian-United States group enters into the spirit of the occasion.

Nearly all of them fathers, many having been lonely military men away from home on Christmas, they have a special insight into what the news of St. Nick's travels does for the children of the world.

The electronic game goes on until it is certain that St. Nick has returned to his North Pole headquarters. Then the NORAD men wrap up their game with the satisfying knowledge that they have made Christmas a little more believable for citizens and children of the world.

The finish is recorded sometime Christmas morning when General Gerhart gets a telephonic notification from the duty controller at his command post. I' is only a short, very military "Operation Santa Claus completed, sir," but it always brings a Christmas morning smile to the NORAD commander in chief.

Cheyenne Celebrates Holidays Undefeated

The holiday break came at the perfect time for Cheyenne Mountain's league-leading hockey team, but Palmer's "break" came a day too soon.

The Indians of coach Bill McDonald rapped Palmer, 5-1, Monday night to finish the first round of City Hockey League action with a perfect 4-0 mark. But Cheyenne played Palmer almost two-thirds of the game without wing Don Heyliger, the loop's top point-maker going into Monday's contest.

Heyliger suffered a pulled leg muscle earlier and aggravated the injury during the rough-and-tumble contest with the Terrors. The doctor ordered serveral days of rest, which the Christmas layoff can easily provide.

Palmer was about 24 hours too early with its injury. Greg Nelson, a defenseman shifted to wing in practices prior to the Cheyenne showdown, received a broken nose in a scrimmage and sat out the game.

Nelson is slated to return by Jan. 4, according to coach Tommy Brennan.

Palmer is the defending champion, but has taken losses from the Indians and Wasson to drop to third after the first four games.

Cheyenne is currently the best scoring outfit and the best defensive team in scoring and allowing goals. The Indians have put through 24 goals while allowing five. McDonald's first line is also is the top-scoring crew in the league.

Don's twin brother Doug Heyliger moved into a tie for leading scored with a pair of goals Monday and 11 points. Jeff Thatcher, Cheyenne center, contributed a pair of assists to place behind the twin wings with 10 points.

Newell Weed, Fountain Valley's rugged 6-4 winger, follows with eight points. Wasson's Bruce Mahanke has seven.

Sandy Dee, Cheyenne goalie, has allowed just five goals in four outings and has stopped 45 shots on goal. John Wendt, Wasson's part-time goalie, has allowed but one goal in one and two-thirds games. Wendt shares ice time with Rick Spencer, who has allowed six goals in 2 1-3 games.

Action resumes Jan. 4 at the Broadmoor World Arena as Palmer plays winless Widefield. Cheyenne gets its first competition of the new year in a second straight game for first place as Wasson meets the Indians Jan. 6.

CC Places Last in Tourney

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (UPI)—Colorado College had only a hole in its Christmas basketball stocking today as it relived its disastrous experience in the Cal Western Holiday Tournament and hoped for better things in the new year.

The Colorado Springs school was left winless and in last place in the eight-team tournament Wednesday after it was socked 75-69 by Hamilton Air Force Base. It was the third consecutive loss in as many days for the Coloradans.

Jim Fields scored 30 points to lead the airmen to victory. High man for Colorado College was Chris Grant who had 18 points.

Hamilton had a 38-34 halftime lead.

Tre University of San Diego led the entire way to defeat Navy's Phibpac team, 68-53, to win the tournament. Cal Western topped the Point Mugu, Calif., Navy team, 63-50, for third place, and College of Southern Utah captured fifth place by taking a 63-57 victory over the San Diego Marines.

PATS SIGN PASSER

BOSTON (UPI) — The Boston Patriots have signed their 12th draft choice, 6-1, 190-pound quarterback Charlie Green, who set 14 Ohio Conference records leading Wittenberg to four undefeated seasons.

Staubach, Huarte to Clash In North-South Struggle

By MURRAY CHASS
Associated Press Sports Writer

Wayne Hardin and Ara Parseghian have their Heisman Trophy winning quarterbacks — Roger Staubach and John Huarte — for one more game, but Hardin and the South have Bob Hayes and Jerry Rhome, too.

That added duo could provide the difference Friday in the North-South all-star college football game at Miami, one of three post-season contests scheduled for this holiday weekend.

Georgia and Texas Tech clash in the Sun Bowl at El Paso, Tex., Saturday while the Blue and the Gray all-star teams meet at Montgomery, Ala.

Hardin, who recently resigned as coach at Navy where he had Staubach for three years, is one of th coaches of the star-studded South squad.

Parseghian, who helped pull Huarte from the ranks of obscurity to the Heisman Trophy, coaches the North along with Paul Dietzel of Army, Hardin's archrival for three years.

Staubach, along with Tulsa's Rhome, will have an unusually speedy target in Hayes, the Florida A&M flash who is receiving his first crack at major competition.

The North spent 1½ hours Wednesday on ways of stopping the double gold medalist.

"They'll complete some passes on us, but our main concern is to stop them from getting the long bomb," Parseghian said.

Dietzel and Parseghian hope to offset Hayes' potential with Herman Johnson of Michigan State, a defensive specialist who has range, speed and size needed to stop the South end.

Georgia will have a problem of its own in the Sun Bowl. The Bulldogs must stop Donnie Anderson, third best rusher in the nation who also caught 32 passes for 396 yards. He ran for 966 yards, an average of 4.6 yards per carry.

Georgia has no one to match Anderson, but quarterback Preston Ridlehuber likes to run school record this season for yards gained rushing by a T formation signal-caller.

The Blue and Gray squads, meanwhile, finished up their workouts today with Blue Coach Murray Warmath of Minnesota and Gray Coach Paul Davis of Mississippi State both optimistic.

The big bowl weekend comes next week with the Rose, Cotton, Orange and Sugar Bowls set for Friday and the Gator Bowl and East-West game scheduled for Saturday.

Wilson Quits Coaching Job In Wake of Power Struggle

By BILL HALLS
Associated Press Writer

DETROIT (AP) — George Wilson quit as head coach of the Detroit Lions Wednesday in the wake of an apparent power struggle over the extent of his authority under millionaire owner William Clay Ford.

The resignation came less than 48 hours after Wilson was said to have agreed in a conference with Ford and General Manager Edwin J. Anderson to fire all five of his assistant coaches. The firings reportedly came despite strong objections from Wilson. They were announced in a Lions' news release.

Wilson walked hurriedly out of the Lions' offices without comment Wednesday.

"It's Wilson's decision," said Ford. "I'd rather the reasons came from him."

Wilson was not available for comment.

Ford said he was "surprised and disappointed" at Wilson's decision. He added: "We parted on friendly terms. He's a fine fellow, but in the long run we may both be better off."

Ford said the 51-year-old Wilson phoned him Wednesday and the two men met for an hour, apparently to work out a "mutually satisfactory" agreement on the remainder of Wilson's contract. The three-year pact, calling for a reported $47,000-a-year, still had a year to run.

Ford said Wilson indicated he did not have another job. There have been rumors Wilson would become head coach of the rival National Football League Chicago Bears but he has denied them.

The split between Ford and Wilson was generated last weekend by word that Wilson aides Bob Nussbaumer, Don Doll and Les Bingaman had been fired. The reports were confirmed Monday when Ford said two other assistants, Aldo Forte and Sonny Grandelius, also had been fired following the Ford-Wilson Anderson huddle.

Wilson had hired all the assistants except Forte.

The firings followed reports that some players had complained about a variety of problems to top Lions brass over Wilson's head.

Ford was asked by a newsman if Wilson, coach since 1957, had been stripped of his authority to make player trades and run his staff as he saw fit.

Ford replied: "The authority wasn't the same as before in Wilson's mind."

Ford said that no player had complained to him personally. He said some may have talked with other Lions officials. He asserted the firings of the Assistants was not designed to force Wilson out.

would remain as head coach for

Ford said he did not try to talk Wilson out of resigning.

"His mind was pretty well made up," the owner said.

Ford said he had no basic objection to Wilson's coaching methods but felt a "change in technique was necessary."

Ford declined to elaborate on the policy conflicts between him and Wilson.

He said he planned to "take my time" in looking for a new coach. "I have no preconceived notions," he said. "I'm looking for a winner — one that can bring me the championship."

Ford said no one had applied for the job. He termed "premature" reports that possible candidates for the job are former Bears' assistant Joe Stydahar, ex-Navy mentor Wayne Hardin, Lions' linebacker Joe Schmidt, former Oklahoma Coach Bud Wilkinson and others.

Russians End Tour Of Canada Unbeaten

TRAIL, B.C. (AP) —Russia's national hockey team defeated the Western International All-Stars 9-7 Wednesday night to end its eight-game tour of Canada undefeated. The Russians won seven and tied one.

The game was tight until the final period. The score was tied 4-4 at the end of the first period and 6-6 at the end of the second.

Bearcats Seem to Be On Way to Another Title

By TED MEIER
Associated Press Sports Writer

This will be a happy Christmas for Ed Jucker, the basketball coach at the University of Cincinnati.

His Bearcats, who won the national collegiate championship in 1961 and 1962 and just missed an unprecedented third straight crown in 1963, are on the way back. They didn't qualify for the NCAA championship tournament last season.

Jucker's boys won their fifth straight Wednesday night with a 71-56 home court victory over Oregon State. Five baskets in quick succession by sophomore Jerry Couzins broke a 41-41 tie and the Beavers never caught up.

The Bearcats now boast a 6-1 record. They beat George Washington in their opener, then lost to Miami of Ohio. Since then they have swept Louisville, Kansas, Centenary, Denver and Oregon State. Their next game is a first- round game against Temple Monday night in the Holiday Festival at New York, a tournament in which they might encounter top-ranked Michigan.

Michigan warmed up for its first round game against Manhattan by crushing Butler 99-81. A crowd of 8,000 packed the Yost Fieldhouse at Ann Arbor to watch the Wolverines chalk up their sixth victory in seven starts. Cazzie Russell scored 21 points and Bill Buntin 19.

The fifth-ranked San Francisco Dons, the only other team in The Associated Press Top Ten to see action, made it six straight against no defeats by defeating Utah State 86-71. Big Ollie Johnson, with 28 points and 22 rebounds, led the Dons in their easy victory at San Francisco.

Villanova and St. Joseph's of Philadelphia also stayed in the unbeaten class and upped their records to 7-0. Villanova crushed St. Francis, Pa. 101-58 at Altoona and the Hawks downed Bowling Green 60-54 in the opener of a doubleheader at Philadelphia. Temple whipped Pennsylvania 73-59 in the nightcap of the twin bill at the Palestra.

Army, on its way to next week's Far West Classic at Portland, Ore. was booed at Dayton, Ohio, in losing to the Flyers 41-33. The Cadets played a ball - control game that aroused the fans' ire.

Taylor Locke, the Army coach, said afterwards that he sympathized with the fans because "this type of game is no fun to watch." He explained he employed the ball control tactic to help protect the injured ankle of Mike Silliman, the Cadets' star.

The Murray State Thoroughbreds, beaten last week in the final of the Sun Devil Classic at Tempe, Ariz., won the Ohio Valley Conference holiday tournament by defeating Western Kentucky 77-68 at Louisville. The Akron Zipps won the Rubber City Classic at Akron by downing Westminster, Pa., 78-66 in the final.

DePaul won its fifth straight at home by taking Seattle 91-77. In other home court triumphs Southern Methodist overcame Missouri 78-73 and Xavier of Ohio outclassed St. Bonaventure 100-73.

Ohio University dealt Northwestern a 88-67 thumping at Evanston, Ill. and Arizona tounced Texas Western 77-40 at Tucson for the Miners' worst defeat in 60 games.

On the West Coast, Los Angeles State turned back touring Boston College 104-88 and Southern California downed Santa Clara 69-66 at Los Angeles.

Pirates Warn DPL Cagers With Excellent 4-1 Record

By CHARLIE DREUX
Gazette Telegraph Sports Writer

Dan Wright's Buccaneers have established themselves as contenders to the Denver Parochial League crown after the St. Mary's basketball team compiled a remarkable 4-1 won-loss record in non-league competition.

The Pirates are on a break for the holidays, but they resume action when they take on Salida, the defending State AA champion on Jan. 2, at the latter's home court.

After the Salida game, the Pirates launch their DPL campaign against Cathedral in a home contest the following night, Jan. 3.

In reviewing the Bucs' nonleague slate this young season, Wright's chargers have two impressive victories to their credit: a win over last year's Pikes Peak League champion Cheyenne Mountain and last weekend's upset of Pueblo Catholic.

The St. Mary's aggregation dumped the Shamrocks last Saturday, 61-50, and the decisive victory over the touted Pueblo aCtholic team put the Pirates in a challenger's role for DPL honors. The Shamrocks were rated as contenders for the State Paroke title and a solid choice to sew up the Southern Parochial League championship. But Wright's charges put the press on the Shamrocks and broke down their normally effective scoring game. The Pirates were paced by their ace gunner, Tom McCarthy, who tossed in 19 points.

McCarthy leads the Pirates in scoring with 97 points in five games for a 19.5 average. Sam Zavatti is second with 48 points, followed by Tom Socha with 38 and John Van Horn with 36 points.'

The Pirates' single loss was against the Will Rogers League favorite Harison, 75-72. In five games the Pirates have averaged 60.4 points per game while the pressing St. Mary's cagers have limited their opponents to 51.2 points per game.

Leafs Replace Seattle for Bosox

TORONTO (AP) —The Boston Red Sox have completed details for a working agreement with the Toronto Maple Leafs of the International League.

The new agreement makes Toronto the top club in Boston's baseball farm system, replacing Seattle of the Pacific Coast League.

Under the agreement described Wednesday by the Maple Leafs, Boston will stock the team and name the manager. Dick Williams, a veteran utility man for the Red Sox last year, is expected to be named manager at Toronto.

Cappelletti Led Assault On AFL Records in 1964

NEW YORK (AP) — Gino Cappelletti, Boston's premier pointmaker, and the supercharged Houston battery of George Blanda and Charley Hennigan led an assault on the American Football League record book in 1964.

Cappelletti, The Associated Press AFL Player of the Year, broke his own all-time scoring mark while Blandas pitching and Hennigans' catching established three single-season aerial records, final league figures reveal.

The Patriots' place kicker-pass receiver scored seven touchdowns, booted 25 field goals and accounted for 37 points after touchdown for a total of 155 points, eight more than his previous league high, set in 1961.

Hennigan's 101 pass receptions topped by one the all-pro mark set by Denver's Lionel Taylor three years ago. Blanda the Oilers' 36-year-old signal caller, smashed season records for pass attempts, 505, and completions, 262. Denver passer Frank Tripucka had set marks of 478 and 248 in 1960.

Kansas City's Len Dawson threw less than Blanda but made his tosses pay off in the league's efficiency ratings. Dawson received the top grade of 58 points, based on completion percentage, yards gained, touchdowns, etc., and won the passing crown for the second time in three seasons.

He paced the league with a 56.2 completion mark and flipped 30 scoring passes, one less than league-leader Babe Parilli of Boston.

Cookie Gilchrist of the Eastern champion Buffalo Bills, regained the rushing title he lost to Oakland's Clem Daniels last season. Cookie rambled for 981 yards, finishing 36 yards in front of New York rookie Matt Snell. Daniels came on after a slow start and wound up third with 823 yards.

Cheyenne Celebrates Holidays Undefeated

The holiday break came at the perfect time for Cheyenne Mountain's league-leading hockey team, but Palmer's "break" came a day too soon.

The Indians of coach Bill McDonald rapped Palmer, 5-1, Monday night to finish the first round of City Hockey League action with a perfect 4-0 mark. But Cheyenne played Palmer almost two-thirds of the game without wing Don Heyliger, the loop's top point-maker going into Monday's contest.

Heyliger suffered a pulled leg muscle earlier and aggravated the injury during the rough-and-tumble contest with the Terrors. The doctor ordered serveral days of rest, which the Christmas layoff can easily provide.

Palmer was about 24 hours too early with its injury. Greg Nelson, a defenseman shifted to wing in practices prior to the Cheyenne showdown, received a broken nose in a scrimmage and sat out the game.

Nelson is slated to return by Jan. 4, according to coach Tommy Brennan.

Palmer is the defending champion, but has taken losses from the Indians and Wasson to drop to third after the first four games.

Cheyenne is currently the best scoring outfit and the best defensive team in scoring and allowing goals. The Indians have put through 24 goals while allowing five. McDonald's first line is also is the top-scoring crew in the league.

Don's twin brother Doug Heyliger moved into a tie for leading scored with a pair of goals Monday and 11 points. Jeff Thatcher, Cheyenne center, contributed a pair of assists to place behind the twin wings with 10 points.

Newell Weed, Fountain Valley's rugged 6-4 winger, follows with eight points. Wasson's Bruce Mahanke has seven.

Sandy Dee, Cheyenne goalie, has allowed just five goals in four outings and has stopped 45 shots on goal. John Wendt, Wasson's part-time goalie, has allowed but one goal in one and two-thirds games. Wendt shares ice time with Rick Spencer, who has allowed six goals in 2 1-3 games.

Action resumes Jan. 4 at the Broadmoor World Arena as Palmer plays winless Widefield. Cheyenne gets its first competition of the new year in a second straight game for first place as Wasson meets the Indians Jan. 6.

CC Places Last in Tourney

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (UPI)—Colorado College had only a hole in its Christmas basketball stocking today as it relived its disastrous experience in the Cal Western Holiday Tournament and hoped for better things in the new year.

The Colorado Springs school was left winless and in last place in the eight-team tournament Wednesday after it was socked 75-69 by Hamilton Air Force Base. It was the third consecutive loss in as many days for the Coloradans.

Jim Fields scored 30 points to lead the airmen to victory. High man for Colorado College was Chris Grant who had 18 points.

Hamilton had a 38-34 halftime lead.

The University of San Diego led the entire way to defeat Navy's Phibpac team, 68-53, to win the tournament. Cal Western topped the Point Mugu, Calif., Navy team, 63-50, for third place, and College of Southern Utah captured fifth place by taking a 63-57 victory over the San Diego Marines.

Pirates Warn DPL Cagers With Excellent 4-1 Record

By CHARLIE DREUX
Gazette Telegraph Sports Writer

Dan Wright's Buccaneers have established themselves as contenders to the Denver Parochial League crown after the St. Mary's basketball team compiled a remarkable 4-1 won-loss record in non-league competition.

The Pirates are on a break for the holidays, but they resume action when they take on Salida, the defending State AA champion on Jan. 2, at the latter's home court.

After the Salida game, the Pirates launch their DPL campaign against Cathedral in a home contest the following night, Jan. 3.

In reviewing the Bucs' non-league slate this young season, Wright's chargers have two impressive victories to their credit: a win over last year's Pikes Peak League champion Cheyenne Mountain and last weekend's upset of Pueblo Catholic.

The St. Mary's aggregation dumped the Shamrocks last Saturday, 61-50, and the decisive victory over the touted Pueblo aCtholic team put the Pirates in a challenger's role for DPL honors. The Shamrocks were rated as contenders for the State Paroke title and a solid choice to sew up the Southern Parochial League championship. But Wright's charges put the press on the Shamrocks and broke down their normally effective scoring game. The Pirates were paced by their ace gunner, Tom McCarthy, who tossed in 19 points.

McCarthy leads the Pirates in scoring with 97 points in five games for a 19.5 average. Sam Zavatti is second with 48 points, followed by Tom Socha with 38 and John Van Horn with 36 points.'

The Pirates' single loss was against the Will Rogers League favorite Harison, 75-72. In five games the Pirates have averaged 60.4 points per game while the pressing St. Mary's cagers have limited their opponents to 51.2 points per game.

Leafs Replace Seattle for Bosox

TORONTO (AP) —The Boston Red Sox have completed details for a working agreement with the Toronto Maple Leafs of the International League.

The new agreement makes Toronto the top club in Boston's baseball farm system, replacing Seattle of the Pacific Coast League.

Under the agreement described Wednesday by the Maple Leafs, Boston will stock the team and name the manager. Dick Williams, a veteran utility man for the Red Sox last year, is expected to be named manager at Toronto.

Staubach, Huarte to Clash In North-South Struggle

By MURRAY CHASS
Associated Press Sports Writer

Wayne Hardin and Ara Parseghian have their Heisman Trophy winning quarterbacks — Roger Staubach and John Huarte — for one more game, but Hardin and the South have Bob Hayes and Jerry Rhome, too.

That added duo could provide the difference Friday in the North-South all-star college football game at Miami, one of three post-season contests scheduled for this holiday weekend.

Georgia and Texas Tech clash in the Sun Bowl at El Paso, Tex., Saturday while the Blue and the Gray all-star teams meet at Montgomery, Ala.

Hardin, who recently resigned as coach at Navy where he had Staubach for three years, is one of th coaches of the star-studded South squad.

Parseghian, who helped pull Huarte from the ranks of obscurity to the Heisman Trophy, coaches the North along with Paul Dietzel of Army, Hardin's archrival for three years.

Staubach, along with Tulsa's Rhome, will have an unusually speedy target in Hayes, the Florida A&M flash who is receiving his first crack at major competition.

The North spent 1½ hours Wednesday on ways of stopping the double gold medalist.

"They'll complete some passes on us, but our main concern is to stop them from getting the long bomb," Parseghian said.

Dietzel and Parseghian hope to offset Hayes' potential with Herman Johnson of Michigan State, a defensive specialist who has range, speed and size needed to stop the South end.

Georgia will have a problem of its own in the Sun Bowl. The Bulldogs must stop Donnie Anderson, third best rusher in the nation who also caught 32 passes for 396 yards. He ran for 966 yards, an average of 4.6 yards per carry.

Georgia has no one to match Anderson, but quarterback Preston Ridlehuber likes to run school record this season for yards gained rushing by a T formation signal-caller.

The Blue and Gray squads, meanwhile, finished up their workouts today with Blue Coach Murray Warmath of Minnesota and Gray Coach Paul Davis of Mississippi State both optimistic.

The big bowl weekend comes next week with the Rose, Cotton, Orange and Sugar Bowls set for Friday and the Gator Bowl and East-West game scheduled for Saturday.

Wilson Quits Coaching Job In Wake of Power Struggle

By BILL HALLS
Associated Press Writer

DETROIT (AP) — George Wilson quit as head coach of the Detroit Lions Wednesday in the wake of an apparent power struggle over the extent of his authority under millionaire owner William Clay Ford.

The resignation came less than 48 hours after Wilson was said to have agreed in a conference with Ford and General Manager Edwin J. Anderson to fire all five of his assistant coaches. The firings reportedly came despite strong objections from Wilson. They were announced in a Lions' news release.

Wilson walked hurriedly out of the Lions' offices without comment Wednesday.

"It's Wilson's decision," said Ford. "I'd rather the reasons came from him."

Wilson was not available for comment.

Ford said he was "surprised and disappointed" at Wilson's decision. He added: "We parted on friendly terms. He's a fine fellow, but in the long run we may both be better off."

Ford said the 51-year-old Wilson phoned him Wednesday and the two men met for an hour, apparently to work out a "mutually satisfactory" agreement on the remainder of Wilson's contract. The three-year pact, calling for a reported $47,000-a-year, still had a year to run.

Ford said Wilson indicated he did not have another job. There have been rumors Wilson would become head coach of the rival National Football League Chicago Bears but he has denied them.

The split between Ford and Wilson was generated last weekend by word that Wilson aides Bob Nussbaumer, Don Doll and Les Bingaman had been fired. The reports were confirmed Monday when Ford said two other assistants, Aldo Forte and Sonny Grandelius, also had been fired following the Ford-Wilson Anderson huddle.

Wilson had hired all the assistants except Forte.

The firings followed reports that some players had complained about a variety of problems to top Lions brass over Wilson's head.

Ford was asked by a newsman if Wilson, coach since 1957, had been stripped of his authority to make player trades and run his staff as he saw fit.

Ford replied: "The authority wasn't the same as before in Wilson's mind."

Ford said that no player had complained to him personally. He said some may have talked with other Lions officials. He asserted the firings of the Assistants was not designed to force Wilson out.

would remain as head coach for

Ford said he did not try to talk Wilson out of resigning.

"His mind was pretty well made up," the owner said.

Ford said he had no basic objection to Wilson's coaching methods but felt a "change in technique was necessary."

Ford declined to elaborate on the policy conflicts between him and Wilson.

He said he planned to "take my time" in looking for a new coach. "I have no preconceived notions," he said. "I'm looking for a winner — one that can bring me the championship."

Ford said no one had applied for the job. He termed "premature" reports that possible candidates for the job are former Bears' assistant Joe Stydahar, ex-Navy mentor Wayne Hardin, Lions' linebacker Joe Schmidt, former Oklahoma Coach Bud Wilkinson and others.

Russians End Tour Of Canada Unbeaten

TRAIL, B.C. (AP) —Russia's national hockey team defeated the Western International All-Stars 9-7 Wednesday night to end its eight-game tour of Canada undefeated. The Russians won seven and tied one.

The game was tight until the final period. The score was tied 4-4 at the end of the first period and 6-6 at the end of the second.

Cappelletti Led Assault On AFL Records in 1964

NEW YORK (AP) — Gino Cappelletti, Boston's premier pointmaker, and the supercharged Houston battery of George Blanda and Charley Hennigan led an assault on the American Football League record book in 1964.

Cappelletti, The Associated Press AFL Player of the Year, broke his own all-time scoring mark while Blandas pitching and Hennigans' catching established three single-season aerial records, final league figures reveal.

The Patriots' place kicker-pass receiver scored seven touchdowns, booted 25 field goals and accounted for 37 points after touchdown for a total of 155 points, eight more than his previous league high, set in 1961.

Hennigan's 101 pass receptions topped by one the all-pro mark set by Denver's Lionel Taylor three years ago. Blanda the Oilers' 36-year-old signal caller, smashed season records for pass attempts, 505, and completions, 262. Denver passer Frank Tripucka had set marks of 478 and 248 in 1960.

Kansas City's Len Dawson threw less than Blanda but made his tosses pay off in the league's efficiency ratings. Dawson received the top grade of 58 points, based on completion percentage, yards gained, touchdowns, etc., and won the passing crown for the second time in three seasons.

He paced the league with a 56.2 completion mark and flipped 30 scoring passes, one less than league-leader Babe Parilli of Boston.

Cookie Gilchrist of the Eastern champion Buffalo Bills, regained the rushing title he lost to Oakland's Clem Daniels last season. Cookie rambled for 981 yards, finishing 36 yards in front of New York rookie Matt Snell. Daniels came on after a slow start and wound up third with 823 yards.

Bearcats Seem to Be On Way to Another Title

By TED MEIER
Associated Press Sports Writer

This will be a happy Christmas for Ed Jucker, the basketball coach at the University of Cincinnati.

His Bearcats, who won the national collegiate championship in 1961 and 1962 and just missed an unprecedented third straight crown in 1963, are on the way back. They didn't qualify for the NCAA championship tournament last season.

Jucker's boys won their fifth straight Wednesday night with a 71-56 home court victory over Oregon State. Five baskets in quick succession by sophomore Jerry Couzins broke a 41-41 tie and the Beavers never caught up.

The Bearcats now boast a 6-1 record. They beat George Washington in their opener, then lost to Miami of Ohio. Since then they have swept Louisville, Kansas, Centenary, Denver and Oregon State. Their next game is a first- round game against Temple Monday night in the Holiday Festival at New York, a tournament in which they might encounter top-ranked Michigan.

Michigan warmed up for its first round game against Manhattan by crushing Butler 99-81. A crowd of 8,000 packed the Yost Fieldhouse at Ann Arbor to watch the Wolverines chalk up their sixth victory in seven starts. Cazzie Russell scored 21 points and Bill Buntin 19.

The fifth-ranked San Francisco Dons, the only other team in The Associated Press Top Ten to see action, made it six straight against no defeats by defeating Utah State 86-71. Big Ollie Johnson, with 28 points and 22 rebounds, led the Dons in their easy victory at San Francisco.

Villanova and St. Joseph's of Philadelphia also stayed in the unbeaten class and upped their records to 7-0. Villanova crushed St. Francis, Pa. 101-58 at Altoona and the Hawks downed Bowling Green 60-54 in the opener of a doubleheader at Philadelphia. Temple whipped Pennsylvania 73-59 in the nightcap of the twin bill at the Palestra.

Army, on its way to next week's Far West Classic at Portland, Ore. was booed at Dayton, Ohio, in losing to the Flyers 41-33. The Cadets played a ball - control game that aroused the fans' ire.

Taylor Locke, the Army coach, said afterwards that he sympathized with the fans because "this type of game is no fun to watch." He explained he employed the ball control tactic to help protect the injured ankle of Mike Silliman, the Cadets' star.

The Murray State Thoroughbreds, beaten last week in the final of the Sun Devil Classic at Tempe, Ariz., won the Ohio Valley Conference holiday tournament by defeating Western Kentucky 77-68 at Louisville. The Akron Zipps won the Rubber City Classic at Akron by downing Westminster, Pa., 78-66 in the final.

DePaul won its fifth straight at home by taking Seattle 91-77. In other home court triumphs Southern Methodist overcame Missouri 78-73 and Xavier of Ohio outclassed St. Bonaventure 100-73.

Ohio University dealt Northwestern a 88-67 thumping at Evanston, Ill. and Arizona tounced Texas Western 77-40 at Tucson for the Miners' worst defeat in 60 games.

On the West Coast, Los Angeles State turned back touring Boston College 104-88 and Southern California downed Santa Clara 69-66 at Los Angeles.

Humphrey Will Direct Civil Rights Work

By CARL P. LEUBSDORF

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, who will coordinate federal civil rights efforts after he becomes vice president next month, says he hopes to know within 10 days whether the job will require creation of a new supervisory agency.

Humphrey said in an interview that he is conducting "a very detailed study" of existing federal programs in an effort to see how best to "assure prompt and direction action to those whose civil rights have been denied."

He meets today with Justcie Department officials who have played a key role during the past few years in government efforts to bar discrimination in such areas as education and voting.

Humphrey said he met Monday with Sargent Shriver, director of the Office of Economic Opportunity, and earlier with officials of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, and a number of sub-Cabinet officials.

Shriver's office, which seeks to implement what President Johnson has called a "war on poverty," is closely related to civil rights, Humphrey said, because "the elimination of poverty will help greatly in relieving the social tensions that cause civil rights problems."

Since President Johnson designated him Dec. 10 to coordinate all administration programs in the civil rights field, Humphrey has been working mainly with his own staff in reviewing existing programs.

The Minnesota senator said he was "extremely pleased and gratified" that Burke Marshall, the retiring assistant attorney general for civil rights, thas agreed to be a consultant. Humphrey called Marshall "the outstanding expert in the country" in the civil rights field.

Marshall resigned as assistant attorney general last Friday, saying that the policy focus of federal civil rights efforts in general "should not in my judgment any longer rest in the Department of Justice."

Humphrey said he expects to report to President Johnson on his study by Jan. 1.

The agencies that he will coordinate include the Justice Department's civil rights division; the Civil Rights Commission; the President's Committee on Equal Opportunity in Employment and Housing; the Community Relations Service in the Commerce Department; and the soon-to-be created Equal Employment Opportunity Commission.

Besides coordinating federal agencies, Humphrey said he would work with state and local officials.

"We want to be sure we're doing all we can to improve the administration of the law and to make sure it's not arbitrary," Humphrey said. He said he was particularly concerned with the need for "uniformity of pattern, regulation and administration."

Humphrey said a close watch was under way on compliance with the 1964 rights law, which granted the government broad new powers to halt discrimination in education, voting, public accommodations and public facilities and employment.

Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen said Monday in a telephone interview from Debary, Fla., that he plans to discuss with other GOP congressional chiefs the need for a methodical check on civil rights enforcement.

Referring to the prediction by LeRoy Collins, director of the Community Relations Service, that more racial violence could be expected this summer, Humphrey said he hopes to avoid such situations by working in advance to relieve racial tensions.

"The time to worry about the summer is the winter," he said.

Humphrey said he plans to resign his Senate seat "before the first of the year." He said he would have to confer with Gov. Karl Rolvaag of Minnesota before he can give an exact date. Rolvaag has already named State Atty. Gen. Walter F. Mondale to fill the final two years of Humphrey's Senate term.

Four Orphans Get Run of Toys at Store

By JAMES RAGSDALE

ELK GARDEN, W.Va. (AP) — Four orphaned children, scampering through a department store's fairyland of toys, temporarily forgot Tuesday night that their parents were killed in a car wreck 15 days ago.

Thanks to donations from hundreds of residents in Shenandoah, Pa., the children of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Phares will have a lot to distract them.

Through a maze of playthings, Ronald Phares, 9, led his two younger sisters and brother on a tour of a shopping center's toyland in Maryland "just to have a look around."

The 40-mile trip to the toyland near Cumberland, Md., was a big event for the children and their grandparents. The trip, and a shopping spree, were financed by $1,616 collected in a community-wide drive at Shenandoah, where the children's parents were killed Dec. 8.

"We just thought it would be a good way to make the children and all those people happy," said the maternal grandfather, James H. Shillingburg.

The children were brought here from Shenandoah to live with their grandparents.

Shenandoah police, Boy Scouts and civic groups rallied to help the children. The first check arrived this week. There is more on the way.

The money came as a surprise to the Shillingburgs. They decided to turn some of it into a happy Christmas for the children.

Shillingburg said the plan was to follow the children around the store and find some of the things they wanted most for Christmas.

For Ron it's a bike, "something he's been talking about for a week," said Mrs. Shillingburg. For Diane, 8, it is a play stove and refrigerator. But Cherly Ann, 5, and Benjamin, 3, "really don't know much of what's going on," Mrs. Shillingburg said.

"It's all going to be a surprise from Santa," added Shillingburg. "We wouldn't want them to think otherwise. There just happens to be a lot of Santas in this case."

The ling, or mud hake, lays about 28 million eggs at a time. But fewer than one in a million hatch and live to grow up.

HAMBURG — Doctors here report an only child has greater difficulties.

Four Orphans Get Run of Toys at Store

By JAMES RAGSDALE

ELK GARDEN, W.Va. (AP) — Four orphaned children, scampering through a department store's fairyland of toys, temporarily forgot Tuesday night that their parents were killed in a car wreck 15 days ago.

Thanks to donations from hundreds of residents in Shenandoah, Pa. ,the children of My and Mrs. Benjamin Phares will have a lot to distract them.

Through a maze of playthings, Ronald Phares, 9, led his two younger sisters and brother on a tour of a shopping center's toyland in Maryland "just to have a look around."

The 40-mile trip to the toyland near Cumberland, Md., was a big event for the children and their grandparents. The trip, and a shopping spree, were financed by $1,616 collected in a community-wide drive at Shenandoah, where the children's parents were killed Dec. 8.

"We just thought it would be a good way to make the children and all those people happy," said the maternal grandfather, James H. Shillingburg.

The children were brought here from Shenandoah to live with their grandparents.

Shenandoah police, Boy Scouts and civic groups rallied to help the children. The first check arrived this week. There is more on the way.

The money came as a surprise to the Shillingburgs. They decided to turn some of it into a happy Christmas for the children.

Shillingburg said the plan was to follow the children around the store and find some of the things they wanted most for Christmas.

For Ron it's a bike, "something he's been talking about for a week," said Mrs. Shillingburg. For Diane, 8, it is a play stove and refrigerator. But Cherly Ann, 5, and Benjamin, 3, "really don't know much of what's going on," Mrs. Shillingburg said.

"It's all going to be a surprise from Santa," added Shillingburg. "We wouldn't want them to think otherwise. There just happens to be a lot of Santas in this case."

The ling, or mud hake, lays about 28 million eggs at a time. But fewer than one in a million hatch and live to grow up.

HAMBURG — Doctors here report an only child has greater difficulties.

Bethlehem Is Reliving Own Christmas

BETHLEHEM (UPI) — Nowhere in the world is Christmas a more joyous and reverent festival than here in the cradle of Christendom where it all began.

The ceremonies attendant on the occasion brings the faithful from many lands to join in the prayers and homage to the Christ Child at the Church of the Nativity.

In a service unchanging from year to year, a priest in gold and red robes at midnight on Christmas Eve lowers the wooden image of a child from the altar where it has rested since last Christmas, and takes it in his arms.

The priest moves slowly through the aisle of the church and makes his way through winding stone passages to a subterranean cave. Two rows of altar boys, carrying lighted candles, follow him.

When the priest arrives at the cave, bells begin pealing from above. They join in a message that has been sounded for centuries from this place to the world on Christmas night — "Peace on Earth, Good Will to All Men."

In the cave, the red-robed priest places the child's image on a marble slab over the hollow rock that guards the legendary place of birth. His chant mingles with the sound of the bells as he sings the Gospel of the birth of Christ, bringing the service to a triumphant climax.

Over the crib where the Bible says Christ was born, these sacred rites are celebrated as they have been every Christmas night in the memory of man. They actually begin as dusk settles over this little town, built of pale honey-coloured stone, and the sleepy Judean hills stir to life.

From the Tomb of Rachel, halfway on the road from Jerusalem, a procession winds its way to the hilltop.

The townspeople and visitors line the streets leading to the square of the church to receive it. Some are clad in much the same garb as the people who crowded the square on that first Christmas. A few women will be wearing high, white, Gothic coifs, a relic of crusader times. At the head of the pilgrimage is Mgr. Alberto Gori.

In the old town square, the choir of St. George's—the Anglican Cathedral in Jerusalem—sings the traditional carols. Then they wander on past the church to take in the view across the valley and the hills.

Some carolers go on to the Shepherds' Field where on the first Christmas Eve the shepherds heard the glad tidings. They can look upon the field of Boas next to it, dimly lit, where Ruth gleaned the field after the reapers.

The Latin Patriarch, having been received by King Hussein and the Guardian of the Franciscan Terra Sancta College, enters the church through the Needle Eye Door after first lighting a charcoal incense lamp and anointing himself wth holy water.

Followed by monks from the Latin monasteries, he makes his way through the dark and empty main nave of the great basilica to the Roman Catholic Church of St. Catherine which adjoins it.

Inside, a choir chants prayers. When the Patriarch is seated on the dias, the vesper service begins. Meditation lasts through - out the evening-building up to the midnight mass.

Nationalist Agents Are Killed in China

TAIPEI, Formosa (AP) — The Chinese Communists killed 103 Nationalist Chinese agents trying to stir up uprisings on the mainland this year and arrested 170, the Mainland Recovery Planning Board was told today.

But Lt. Gen. Yeh Hsiang-tse, chief of the intelligence section of the ruling Kuomintang party, said in his report that commando raids against the mainland had increased in scope and intensity.

THE FIRST CHRISTMAS

By Ralph Lane

And they came to a city called Nazareth, and lived there, which is why, as the prophets foretold, Jesus was called a Nazarene.
Long after this first Christmas, Dov, now a man, continued to marvel that, though he never owned another scarf, he had never been cold.
And, of all things, Trouble, the black sheep reformed. Dov always credited the fright produced by the flaming star on Christmas Eve with the improvement in Trouble's deportment.

Scandinavians Celebrate Big Yule Season

By A. E. PEDERSE

HELSINKI (UPI) — Once a year the Karlsens, Suominens, Svenssons and Hansens put aside thoughts of taxes and mortgage payments as the strains of "Jingle Bells" sound from street corners.

As November draws to a close, the first signs of another Christmas season appear in the form of a few lonely window displays.

But before long, Santa Clauses are holding court in department stores or alighting from advertising - festooned helicopters. The first carloads of flattened out Christmas trees begin moving out of the forests into towns and cities. Chambers of Commerce and Merchants' Associations string colored lights across street intersections. Post offices announce mailing deadlines. Department stores hire extra help. Cash registers ping continuously. Shoppers' tempers begin to wear a bit thin.

Soon 20 million inhabitants of northern Europe are caught in the machinery of a modern jet-powered, transistorized Christmas season.

But even as they race through December, they find time for the traditional aspects of Christmas. The Yuletide season means a return to the old joys of childhood for the Stockholm housewife airing her linen on a 15th floor balcony, a crane operator in a Finnish paper mill, a white-clad worker in a Danish cheese factory and an Oslo street car conductor.

Christmas begins early in the morning of Dec. 13 in Sweden, when a white-gowned "Lucia" walks slowly through the house, on her head a crown of lighted candles. Followed by "Star Boys," usually the brothers in the family, she distributes coffee and specially baked "Lucia bullar," or rolls.

Towns and cities choose their own "Lucia Maids" and crown them in impressive ceremonies. It's an honor to be chosen for the role. These official Lucia Maids visit children's homes and bring cheer to invalids.

On Christmas Eve, Swedish families gather for the festive meal of ham, "lutfisk"—a delicacy of fish fillets—and rice pudding.

On "First Christmas Day" Swedish churches are packed for morning services. Swedes warm themselves after a chilly Christmas stroll with a drink of "gloegg," which is pronounced something like the sound made by a gurgling bottle. Gloegg is made from heated red wine which contains sugar, spices, perhaps raisins and almonds, along with a liberal dose of cognac or snapps.

When it comes to decorating for Christmas, the shopkeepers of Copenhagen would win one of the top prizes. The main shopping area, the "Stroeg" from which traffic is banned, is a wonderland of window displays, each more imaginative then the next. A walk through the area is a must for every Copenhagen child.

Danish families go to church late on the afternoon of the 24th. Mother usually stays home, supervising the dinner of roast goose, red cabbage and rice pudding, which is about one-third rice and two-thirds whipped cream. After dinner the family troops into the living room to sing old songs as they march, hand-in-hand, around the tree. Danes scorn the modern electric lights for their trees. Their Christmas trees are decorated by lighted candles.

Danes spend "First and "Second" Christmas days visiting each other for lunch around a table laden with warm and cold delicacies. Perhaps more than other Nordic peoples, Danes like to eat their way through Christmas.

In Finland, post office volunteers write out thousands of replies to letters from children from many countries, who think that Santa Claus lives in Finnish Lapland.

Finnish "Little Christmas," the first Sunday in December, ushers in the season, with tiny trees in every home. At "Little Christmas," the heady beer that eh will start drinking on Thomas Day, Dec. 21.

Finns order their Christmas hams well in advance, and lay in supplies of cheese, fruit and drink. Christmas has for centuries been a time of celebrating the harvest of the past year and hoping for a better one to come.

Smoke rises from a multitude of bath houses during the afternoon on Dec. 24, as Finns take their Christmas sauna. Then, purified in body and at peace with the world, they gather around the table for the big meal.

After dinner, the "Joulupukki," or Santa Claus, comes to distribute gifts. A professional "joulupukki" may have a good number of calls to make during the evening, and can often count on a glass of gloegg when he makes his call. So towards the end of his round his behavior may be wondrous indeed, and father reminds himself that next year he will insist on a non-drinker.

Christmas morning is church time in Finland, also a time to honor the dead.

As in Denmark, Norwegians go to church on the 24th. Then they gather for their dinner, which may be cold pork roast, sausage and sauerkraut, or mutton. "Lutfish," here pronounced "Lutefisk," also is a staple Norwegian item.

Throughout Scandinavia, Christmas is a time for family celebrations, good food and drink, and getting away from the cares of everyday life.

Customs overlap from country to country, or turn up in slightly different forms. But a Dane or Norwegian would probably feel at home in a Swedish or Finnish family group during the holidays.

All agree that Christmas is too big an affair to be limited to one, or even two days. The Chrsitmas season isn't officially over until after Jan. 6, Twelfth Night, when the tree goes onto the trashpile.

Plants Bring Added Cheer To Christmas

NEW YORK (UPI) — Colorful Christmas plants in red clay pots abound this year. Florist and garden center windows are ablaze with a riot of blossom color — as sparkling as ornaments on a Christmas tree. For the millions of households where indoor gardening is a favorite hobby, flowering gift plants in porous clay pots are particularly welcome at Christmas because they provide such an ideal contrast to snow-covered ground outside the windowpane.

The brilliant Jerusalem cherry is one of the less expensive clay - potted holiday plants. Its round, red fruit is especially appropriate. It needs bright light and likes a cool temperature no higher than 55 degrees at night for best results, although it does admirably even with a 65 degree night temperature. If the plant is allowed to wilt or if cooking gas fumes fill the air, the fruit will drop.

The gay cyclamen enjoys rising popularity. It is a handsome plant even when not in bloom, but the blossoms are breathtaking in the shape of butterflies that are white, red, pink, lavender, rose, maroon. This needs a cool 55 degree night temperature too. Watering is safer from the base of the clay pot so the crown is not over-moistened.

Of course, the poinsettia is the traditional Christmas plant. Once the red - flowered forms held the spotlight — and they are still the most popular, but whites and pinks are also available. Keep it out of drafts, and away from hot radiators or hot-air vents. Use warm water of room temperature when applying moisture. Keep the air in the room a bit moist by setting the plant on a saucer of water full of pebbles so the base of the clay pot is kept above water level. This keeps water evaporating around the plant, and avoids constant immersion in water.

Azaleas are much in evidence at Christmas, along with primroses whose blossoms look like pastel Christmas candles. Select primrose plants with lots of buds so you will have a profusion of bloom over many weeks. New buds will continue to develop for a long time if primroses are watered and fed regularly and if the temperature in the room is below 65 degrees at night.

Such smaller pot plants, flowering African violet in a red clay pot, dressed up with a bright red bow, seems ideally suited for Christmas. And the red blossoms sparkle like tree lights. Both plants fit easily on a window sill.

First Christmas Card Created By Britisher

By MARIS ROSS

LONDON (UPI) — In 1843, a British artist named John C. Horsley penned the words "A MERRY CHRISTMAS AND A HAPPY NEW YEAR TO YOU" to the design in front of him and sat back to look. He had invented the Christmas card.

Now Christmas wouldn't seem the same without it.

Britons are the biggest Christmas card senders in Europe and are second in the world only to Americans.

"Last year we delivered one billion cards and letters in the last half of December and the figures have shown a progressive increase each year," said a Post Office spokesman.

Horsley began it all by designing the first card at the suggestion of Sir Henry Cole, a leading figure in the Victorian world of art.

Around the inscription Horsley designed three panels, the center one showing a Victorian family party and the other two depicting the feeding and clothing of the needy.

A few people immediately attacked Horsley for "encouraging alcoholism" because the family was drinking a toast.

The Christmas card method of expressing goodwill and greetings caught on despite this opposition and was a nationwide habit by the 1870s, aided by the introduction of good and cheap postal services.

Religious scenes, Santa Claus, robins, logs and Christmas trees all figure in the quite early cards, as they do today. The signs of change can be seen in Santa Claus' form of transport. Once confined to a reindeer sleigh, he now travels as well by plane and rocket, train and car.

Victorians also loved cards decorated with frosting, lace and other scraps of material, and these were plentiful at a time of cheap labor. The idea still survives, but decorations are less elaborate.

A spokesman for one of the major British greetings card manufacturers (Hallmark) said at present there is no definite trend in the popularity of styles of cards.

"There is no swing toward or away from religious cards or toward or away from humorous cards, for example," the spokesman said. "But this year there are two slight tendencies. The first is a small increase in the three-dimension cards for children—the ones with flaps that open up. There is also a tendency for more specialized inscriptions, such as 'To Mother From All Four Of Us.' "

The card industry's profit is hard to estimate.

"A recent survey estimated the total revenue at between 30 and 80 million pounds ($84-224 million)," the spokesman said. "That's pretty wide because although there are only eight or nine well-known greeting card manufacturers, there are so many charities who print Christmas cards to raise money that it is difficult to pin down."

Because Britons send so many cards, one of the best known slogans in the country is the one publicized by the Post Office regularly each year—"Post Early for Christmas."

Festive Spirit Seen in Russia Despite Atheism

By JAY AXELBANK

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet Union has two Christmases — both officially ignored by the Kremlin's heistic rulers.

Except for a few thousand practicing Roman Catholics and Lutherans and the Western colony in Moscow, Dec. 25 is just another working day in Russia.

The Catholics and Lutherans observe Christmas Dec. 25, following the Gregorian calendar as most of the Western world does.

But Russia's Orthodox church as well as other small Christian faiths—such as the Baptists — celebrates Christmas Jan. 7 — the Nativity date fixed in the Julian calendar.

Despite the official policy, the Christmas festive spirit from bygone religious days dies hard in this country.

At Christmas time the streets are filled with decorated trees, colored lights and there is a holiday gaiety in the frosty capital. People scurry for holiday gifts.

But instead of the Star of Bethlehem, the Red Star of Communism tops the trees.

There's even Santa Claus, only he is known as Ded Moroz (Grandfather Frost).

The gaiety builds up for New Year's eve. New Year's has officially replaced Christmas under Soviet communism.

For children it is the night when Grandfather Frost travels with his reindeer-drawn sleigh through the snow with his granddaughter, Snegurochka (The Snowmaiden).

The yolka or fir trees fill Soviet homes. The biggest yolka in town is at the Palace of Congresses where the Kremlin leaders host a New Year's banquet for the foreign diplomatic corps and a few Western correspondents.

For those Russians, however, to whom fir trees, Grandfather Frost and gifts are the celebration of the birth of Christ, there is no official bar to church attendance. But at the normal Russian Christmas-tide (Jan. 7th) the Soviet press generally steps up its anti-religious propaganda campaign.

On Christmas Eve and day, the 24th and 25th, the Western diplomatic colony will attend small, privately held masses in the apartment of Father Joseph Richard, of New York City, the American Catholic chaplain.

The Rev. Donald Roberts of Pelham, N.Y., also will conduct Christmas services in his apartment.

Some diplomats, however, will attend mass with the handful of Soviet Catholics at the city's only Roman Catholic Church, St. Louis de France—built by a French businessman before the Russian revolution.

MACY'S EXPANDING

SAN FRANSICO (UPI) — Macy's California, Inc., said Wednesday it has leased ground for an $8 million department store building in the Del Monte Shopping Center at Monterey, Calif.

Thousands Are Drawn to Taos Miracle Picture

By ROBERT E. HUBER
United Press International

TAOS, N.M. (UPI) — The miracle of the mystery painting inside the old mission church of San Francisco de Asis at Rancho de Taos attracts thousands of Roman Catholics each Christmas.

Painted by Henri Ault more than 60 years ago, it is a portrait of Jesus standing on the banks of the Seas of Galilee. In darkness, the picture becomes self-illuminated, and the shadow of a cross appears over the left shoulder of Jesus and a halo over the head.

This painting, plus the dozens of other old religious items has turned the mission church into a kind of shrine. Built in 1772, the old mission was one of 48 missions constructed by Spanish priests across New Mexico. One of the latest, the Ranchos de Taos mission has been in use continually since it was built.

The sanctuary contains three pieces of handcrafted silver from 17th Century-Spain. They include a recessional cross, an aspergiale, or holy water sprinkler, and a set of three chime bells. The bells are still used to announce the entry of the priest at Mass.

Two ancient santos and a silver candelabra are in the sanctuary. An old lamp hangs overhead, and there are two rare statues of St. Francis at either side. One dates back to the 16th Century.

Behind the altar is a handcarved and painted crucifixion scenes with figures clothed in deerskin. The value of all the church's items has been set at almost $1 million, but to the priests at the church they are beyond value.

Construction of the church took almost a half century. Designed in Spain, as were all the Spanish mission churches, only native materials — dried adobe bricks and wooden beams —were used. It is 108 feet long with walls five and a half feet thick.

By tradition the church is annually replastered with adobe stucco. Only the women may touch the church walls, while the men mix and carry the mud for them. It takes nine days to re-stucco the mission, and a celebration is held after the annual chore.

The roof of the church is supported by huge hand-hewed rafters hauled from the nearby Taos Mountains. The supporting corbels were handcarved and painted with vegetable dyes by native artists.

As time passed, additions were made to the church, but tourists still feel the mood of old New Mexico when they enter the mission doors. Like so many of New Mexico's missions, the church will remain a lasting monument to the first Christians in the New World for many years to come.

Hike in University Enrollment Forecast

NEW YORK (UPI) — The number of students in American universities and colleges is expected to increase by 36 per cent in the next four years.

But such is the education trend that the number of new books needed for college libraries is expected to increase by 67 per cent.

During the same four-year period, the amount spent on new library buildings on campuses is expected to rise 74 per cent, nearly three times as fast as the estimated 28 per cent jump in total college construction.

Robert J. Keir, president of C.I.T. Educational Buildings, Inc., and Tuition Plan, Inc., says the higher ratio of books to students reflects the increasing complexity of the educational process and need for more reference works.

"This is especially true," Keir says, "in the physical sciences where man's knowledge is increasing so fast that more new books are constantly needed to keep pace with new developments."

"THE CHRISMON TREE" — Christian symbols used by the church for many centuries decorate a "Chrismon Tree," which literally is a contraction of Christ and Monogram. Sgt. Alden Birkelo (left) explains one of the symbolism of tree on display at the Mt. Calvary Lutheran Church to Mrs. Wilfred Reese and the Rev. Armand Asper, pastor.

'Chrismon Tree' At Mt. Calvery Lutheran Church

Christmas trees in many churches and homes are undergoing a transition in appearance as many Christian groups attempt to make the tree more meaningful. Rapidly spreading across the Country is the practice of using "Chrismons" for decorating the Church tree. Pictured above is the "Chrismon Tree" at Mt. Calvary Lutheran Church. Shown examining one of the symbols on the tree are Mrs. Wilfred Reese, and Sgt. Alden Birkelo, leaders in the Sunday School of the congregation, together with Armand Asper, Pastor. The tree formed a central theme in Mt. Calvary's Sunday School family Christmas Festival last Sunday evening.

The word "Chrismon" is a contraction of the words "Christ" and "monogram." Chrismons are Christian symbols which the Church has used for many centuries. They represent hours of painstaking work by members of the congregation, and are usually made out of white styrofoam, glitter, sequins, beads, etc.

Each of the Chrismons have significant meaning. Many were used by early Christians to identify themselves to each other and witness of their faith in times of persecuiton and martyrdom.

The Chrismon Tree pictured is also covered with small white lights that symbolize Christ as the Light of the World.

Light will be the theme of Mt. Calvary's Christmas Eve Candlelight service at 10:00 p.m., Thursday. Youth of the congregation will assist the Pastor at this festival service and the Junior Choir will sing under the direction of Mrs. Myrtle Asper with Capt. Don Stensrud at the organ. Sgt. Paul Krycho will accompany the singing of "Silent Night" on the guitar as it was originally accompanied decades ago when the organ broke down in the church where Franz Gruber was organist in Oberdorf, Germany.

On Christmas Day, Mt. Calvary will observe Holy Communior at Family Worship Services at 10:00 a.m. The Senior Choir will sing the carol "What Child Is This?" under the direction of Capt. Jerry Hansort. Mrs. Howard Sensing will be at the organ.

Flower Gift Can Be Sent Around Globe

NEW YORK (UPI) — A gift of flowers is the one Christmas present that can go around the globe without the risk of shipping loss or the red tape of customs regulations.

Flowers can be wired anywhere in the world in a matter of hours, just as you would send bouquets in America through Florists' Telegraph Delivery (FTD).

All of the FTD shops are members of an international network of florists called Interflora. Members around the world relay your Christmas flower list from one country to another in as little time as it takes to send a cable.

There's even a catalog of flower arrangements so that you can see exactly what you're sending and be sure the flowers you select are in season in foreign places.

The FTD reports that holly grows in nearly all countries, and is a Christmas floral tradition around the world.

In an ancient Christmas carol, holly and ivy vied for the place of honor in the home. The holly won the contest, and it is said that whoever is first to bring holly into the house during the Yuletide will rule the home for the following year.

The flower of Nativity, the poinsettia, came to America from Mexico and has become a favorite symbol of the season.

The legend of the Christmas rose: a group of peasants was driven far into the forest where they had no Christmas preparations for the children.

During the night the entire forest took on a whitish glow. By morning, the ground was covered with red roses.

Many Guises Are Seen for Yule Spirit

NEW YORK (UPI) — Santa Claus doesn't stop in every country.

The children in Germany, for example, receive their Christmas gifts from Kris Kringle, a young girl wearing a golden crown and carrying a tiny Yule tree.

In Denmark the elf, Julenissen, is the bearer of holiday gifts. Legend holds that throughout the year the elf lives in the attic to keep a sharp eye on the household.

In Poland gifts come from the stars. In Hungary, the angels are the bearers of presents. In Syria, children wait for the "gentle camel."

The legend is that the youngest camel carrying the Wise Men to Bethlehem lay exhausted from the long journey, and children brought water and wheat to revive him. Ever since, the camel travels over the desert each Christmas with gifts for the young.

The Russian gift - giver is an old woman named Baboushka who misdirected the Wise Men in their journey on the first Christmas. Now, according to the legend, Baboushka travels through the country during the holiday season, knocking at every door with her staff.

She enters each home to hold a candle close by the faces of sleeping children. Then she places a toy under the child's pillow and rushes away on her unending search for the Christ Child.

Colored Pencils Tree Decorations

NEW YORK (UPI)—Colored tree decorations. Give the children the job of tieing thread to the eraser ends of multi-colored pencils and attaching them to the tree on Christmas Eve. Small fry will get a great kick out of hanging pencils as well as ornaments.

In the Christmas colors of red and green, pencils may be taped on to wrappings or inserted in the ribbon bows on packages for added gay touches.

As holiday gift items, there are about 350 kinds of pencils to choose from. A set of water-soluble colored pencils may start someone on a water-colorist's hobby. Grade school students will delight in shiny pencil cases. Dad may like a pencil cady filled with pencils for his desk at the office, and Mom may enjoy gardening pencils which are weather-resistant or china marking pencils for freezer packages.

Bethlehem Is Reliving Own Christmas

BETHLEHEM (UPI) — Nowhere in the world is Christmas a more joyous and reverent festival than here in the cradle of Christendom where it all began.

The ceremonies attendant on the occasion brings the faithful from many lands to join in the prayers and homage to the Christ Child at the Church of the Nativity.

In a service unchanging from year to year, a priest in gold and red robes at midnight on Christmas Eve lowers the wooden image of a child from the altar where it has rested since last Christmas, and takes it in his arms.

The priest moves slowly through the aisle of the church and makes his way through winding stone passages to a subterranean cave. Two rows of altar boys, carrying lighted candles, follow him.

When the priest arrives at the cave, bells begin pealing from above. They join in a message that has been sounded for centuries from this place to the world on Christmas night — "Peace on Earth, Good Will to All Men."

In the cave, the red-robed priest places the child's image on a marble slab over the hollow rock that guards the legendary place of birth. His chant mingles with the sound of the bells as he sings the Gospel of the birth of Christ, bringing the service to a triumphant climax.

Over the crib where the Bible says Christ was born, these sacred rites are celebrated as they have been every Christmas night in the memory of man. They actually begin as dusk settles over this little town, built of pale honey-coloured stone, and the sleepy Judean hills stir to life.

From the Tomb of Rachel, halfway on the road from Jerusalem, a procession winds its way to the hilltop.

The townspeople and visitors line the streets leading to the square of the church to receive it. Some are clad in much the same garb as the people who crowded the square on that first Christmas. A few women will be wearing high, white, Gothic coifs, a relic of crusader times. At the head of the pilgrimage is Mgr. Alberto Gori.

In the old town square, the choir of St. George's—the Anglican Cathedral in Jerusalem—sings the traditional carols. Then they wander on past the church to take in the view across the valley and the hills.

Some carolers go on to the Shepherds' Field where on the first Christmas Eve the shepherds heard the glad tidings. They can look upon the field of Boas next to it, dimly lit, where Ruth gleaned the field after the reapers.

The Latin Patriarch, having been received by King Hussein and the Guardian of the Franciscan Terra Sancta College, enters the church through the Needle Eye Door after first lighting a charcoal incense lamp and anointing himself wth holy water.

Followed by monks from the Latin monasteries, he makes his way through the dark and empty main nave of the great basilica to the Roman Catholic Church of St. Catherine which adjoins it.

Inside, a choir chants prayers. When the Patriarch is seated on the dias, the vesper service begins. Meditation lasts through - out the evening-building up to the midnight mass.

Nationalist Agents Are Killed in China

TAIPEI, Formosa (AP) — The Chinese Communists killed 103 Nationalist Chinese agents trying to stir up uprisings on the mainland this year and arrested 170, the Mainland Recovery Planning Board was told today.

But Lt. Gen. Yeh Hsiang-tse, chief of the intelligence section of the ruling Kuomintang party, said in his report that commando raids against the mainland had increased in scope and intensity.

THE FIRST CHRISTMAS

By Ralph Lane

And they came to a city called Nazareth, and lived there, which is why, as the prophets foretold, Jesus was called a Nazarene.
Long after this first Christmas, Dov, now a man, continued to marvel that, though he never owned another scarf, he had never been cold.
And, of all things, Trouble, the black sheep reformed. Dov always credited the fright produced by the flaming star on Christmas Eve with the improvement in Trouble's department.

Scandinavians Celebrate Big Yule Season

By A. E. PEDERSE

HELSINKI (UPI) — Once a year the Karlsens, Suominens, Svenssons and Hansens put aside thoughts of taxes and mortgage payments as the strains of "Jingle Bells" sound from street corners.

As November draws to a close, the first signs of another Christmas season appear in the form of a few lonely window displays.

But before long, Santa Clauses are holding court in department stores or alighting from advertising - festooned helicopters. The first carloads of flattened out Christmas trees begin moving out of the forests into towns and cities. Chambers of Commerce and Merchants' Associations string colored lights across street intersections. Post offices announce mailing deadlines. Department stores hire extra help. Cash registers ping continuously. Shoppers' tempers begin to wear a bit thin.

Soon 20 million inhabitants of northern Europe are caught in the machinery of a modern jet-powered, transistorized Christmas season.

But even as they race through December, they find time for the traditional aspects of Christmas. The Yuletide season means a return to the old joys of childhood for the Stockholm housewife airing her linen on a 15th floor balcony, a crane operator in a Finnish paper mill, a white-clad worker in a Danish cheese factory and an Oslo street car conductor.

Christmas begins early in the morning of Dec. 13 in Sweden, when a white-gowned "Lucia" walks slowly through the house, on her head a crown of lighted candles. Followed by "Star Boys," usually the brothers in the family, she distributes coffee and specially baked "Lucia bullar," or rolls.

Towns and cities choose their own "Lucia Maids" and crown them in impressive ceremonies. It's an honor to be chosen for the role. These official Lucia Maids visit children's homes and bring cheer to invalids.

On Christmas Eve, Swedish families gather for the festive meal of ham, "lutfisk"—a delicacy of fish fillets—and rice pudding.

On "First Christmas Day" Swedish churches are packed for morning services. Swedes warm themselves after a chilly Christmas stroll with a drink of "gloegg," which is pronounced something like the sound made by a gurgling bottle. Gloegg is made from heated red wine which contains sugar, spices, perhaps raisins and almonds, along with a liberal dose of cognac or snapps.

When it comes to decorating for Christmas, the shopkeepers of Copenhagen would win one of the top prizes. The main shopping area, the "Stroeg" from which traffic is banned, is a wonderland of window displays, each more imaginative then the next. A walk through the area is a must for every Copenhagen child.

Danish families go to church late on the afternoon of the 24th. Mother usually stays home, supervising the dinner of roast goose, red cabbage and rice pudding, which is about one-third rice and two-thirds whipped cream. After dinner the family troops into the living room to sing old songs as they march, hand-in-hand, around the tree. Danes scorn the modern electric lights for their trees. Their Christmas trees are decorated by lighted candles.

Danes spend "First and "Second" Christmas days visiting each other for lunch around a table laden with warm and cold delicacies. Perhaps more than other Nordic peoples, Danes like to eat their way through Christmas.

In Finland, post office volunteers write out thousands of replies to letters from children from many countries, who think that Santa Claus lives in Finnish Lapland.

Finnish "Little Christmas," the first Sunday in December, ushers in the season, with tiny trees in every home. At "Little Christmas," the heady beer that eh will start drinking on Thomas Day, Dec. 21.

Finns order their Christmas hams well in advance, and lay in supplies of cheese, fruit and drink. Christmas has for centuries been a time of celebrating the harvest of the past year and hoping for a better one to come.

Smoke rises from a multitude of bath houses during the afternoon on Dec. 24, as Finns take their Christmas sauna. Then, purified in body and at peace with the world, they gather around the table for the big meal.

After dinner, the "Joulupukki," or Santa Claus, comes to distribute gifts. A professional "joulupukki" may have a good number of calls to make during the evening, and can often count on a glass of gloegg when he makes his call. So towards the end of his round his behavior may be wondrous indeed, and father reminds himself that next year he will insist on a non-drinker.

Christmas morning is church time in Finland, also a time to honor the dead.

As in Denmark, Norwegians go to church on the 24th. Then they gather for their dinner, which may be cold pork roast, sausage and sauerkraut, or mutton. "Lutfish," here pronounced "Lutefisk," also is a staple Norwegian item.

In some parts of Norway people—now mostly children — still observe the old custom of dressing up in odd attire and going calling on their neighbors during the days between Christmas and New Year's.

Throughout Scandinavia, Christmas is a time for family celebrations, good food and drink, and getting away from the cares of everyday life.

Customs overlap from country to country, or turn up in slightly different forms. But a Dane or Norwegian would probably feel at home in a Swedish or Finnish family group during the holidays.

All agree that Christmas is too big an affair to be limited to one, or even two days. The Chrsitmas season isn't officially over until after Jan. 6, Twelfth Night, when the tree goes onto the trashpile.

Plants Bring Added Cheer To Christmas

NEW YORK (UPI) — Colorful Christmas plants in red clay pots abound this year. Florist and garden center windows are ablaze with a riot of blossom color — as sparkling as ornaments on a Christmas tree. For the millions of households where indoor gardening is a favorite hobby, flowering gift plants in porous clay pots are particularly welcome at Christmas because they provide such an ideal contrast to snow-covered ground outside the windowpane.

The brilliant Jerusalem cherry is one of the less expensive clay - potted holiday plants. Its round, red fruit is especially appropriate. It needs bright light and likes a cool temperature no higher than 55 degrees at night for best results, although it does admirably even with a 65 degree night temperature. If the plant is allowed to wilt or if cooking gas fumes fill the air, the fruit will drop.

The gay cyclamen enjoys rising popularity. It is a handsome plant even when not in bloom, but the blossoms are breathtaking in the shape of butterflies that are white, red, pink, lavender, rose, maroon. This needs a cool 55 degree night temperature too. Watering is safer from the base of the clay pot so the crown is not over-moistened.

Of course, the poinsettia is the traditional Christmas plant. Once the red - flowered forms held the spotlight — and they are still the most popular, but whites and pinks are also available. Keep it out of drafts, and away from hot radiators or hot-air vents. Use warm water of room temperature when applying moisture. Keep the air in the room a bit moist by setting the plant on a saucer of water full of pebbles so the base of the clay pot is kept above water level. This keeps water evaporating around the plant, and avoids constant immersion in water.

Azaleas are much in evidence at Christmas, along with primroses whose blossoms look like pastel Christmas candles. Select primrose plants with lots of buds so you will have a profusion of bloom over many weeks. New buds will continue to develop for a long time if primroses are watered and fed regularly and if the temperature in the room is below 65 degrees at night.

The Christmas pepper likes good light and a cool temperature. It fits in well with the holiday decorations bearing red and partially ripened fruit for contrast. It should be adequately watered.

Such smaller pot plants, flowering African violet in a red clay pot, dressed up with a bright red bow, seems ideally suited for Christmas. And the red blossoms sparkle like tree lights. Both plants fit easily on a window sill.

First Christmas Card Created By Britisher

By MARIS ROSS

LONDON (UPI) — In 1843, a British artist named John C. Horsley penned the words "A MERRY CHRISTMAS AND A HAPPY NEW YEAR TO YOU" to the design in front of him and sat back to look. He had invented the Christmas card.

Now Christmas wouldn't seem the same without it.

Britons are the biggest Christmas card senders in Europe and are second in the world only to Americans.

"Last year we delivered one billion cards and letters in the last half of December and the figures have shown a progressive increase each year," said a Post Office spokesman.

Horsley began it all by designing the first card at the suggestion of Sir Henry Cole, a leading figure in the Victorian world of art.

Around the inscription Horsley designed three panels, the center one showing a Victorian family party and the other two depicting the feeding and clothing of the needy.

A few people immediately attacked Horsley for "encouraging alcoholism" because the family was drinking a toast.

The Christmas card method of expressing goodwill and greetings caught on despite this opposition and was a nationwide habit by the 1870s, aided by the introduction of good and cheap postal services.

Religious scenes, Santa Claus, robins, logs and Christmas trees all figure in the quite early cards, as they do today. The signs of change can be seen in Santa Claus' form of transport. Once confined to a reindeer sleigh, he now travels as well by plane and rocket, train and car.

Victorians also loved cards decorated with frosting, lace and other scraps of material, and these were plentiful at a time of cheap labor. The idea still survives, but decorations are less elaborate.

A spokesman for one of the major British greetings card manufacturers (Hallmark) said at present there is no definite trend in the popularity of styles of cards.

"There is no swing toward or away from religious cards or toward or away from humorous cards, for example," the spokesman said. "But this year there are two slight tendencies. The first is a small increase in the three-dimension cards for children—the ones with flaps that open up. There is also a tendency for more specialized inscriptions, such as 'To Mother From All Four Of Us.' "

The card industry's profit is hard to estimate.

"A recent survey estimated the total revenue at between 30 and 80 million pounds ($84-224 million)," the spokesman said. "That's pretty wide because although there are only eight or nine well-known greeting card manufacturers, there are so many charities who print Christmas cards to raise money that it is difficult to pin down."

Because Britons send so many cards, one of the best known slogans in the country is the one publicized by the Post Office regularly each year—"Post Early for Christmas."

Festive Spirit Seen in Russia Despite Atheism

By JAY AXELBANK

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet Union has two Christmases — both officially ignored by the Kremlin's heistic rulers.

Except for a few thousand practicing Roman Catholics and Lutherans and the Western colony in Moscow, Dec. 25 is just another working day in Russia.

The Catholics and Lutherans observe Christmas Dec. 25, following the Gregorian calendar as most of the Western world does.

But Russia's Orthodox church as well as other small Christian faiths—such as the Baptists — celebrates Christmas Jan. 7 — the Nativity date fixed in the Julian calendar.

Despite the official policy, the Christmas festive spirit from bygone religious days dies hard in this country.

At Christmas time the streets are filled with decorated trees, colored lights and there is a holiday gaiety in the frosty capital. People scurry for holiday gifts.

But instead of the Star of Bethlehem, the Red Star of Communism tops the trees.

There's even Santa Claus, only he is known as Ded Moroz (Grandfather Frost).

The gaiety builds up for New Year's eve. New Year's has officially replaced Christmas under Soviet communism.

For adults New Year's is a time of parties, lavish feasts, champagne, vodka and exchange of gifts.

For children it is the night when Grandfather Frost travels with his reindeer-drawn sleigh through the snow with his granddaughter, Snegurochka (The Snowmaiden).

The yolka or fir trees fill Soviet homes. The biggest yolka in town is at the Palace of Congresses where the Kremlin leaders host a New Year's banquet for the foreign diplomatic corps and a few Western correspondents.

For those Russians, however, to whom fir trees, Grandfather Frost and gifts are the celebration of the birth of Christ, there is no official bar to church attendance. But at the normal Russian Christmas-tide (Jan. 7th) the Soviet press generally steps up its anti-religious propaganda campaign.

On Christmas Eve and day, the 24th and 25th, the Western diplomatic colony will attend small, privately held masses in the apartment of Father Joseph Richard, of New York City, the American Catholic chaplain.

The Rev. Donald Roberts of Pelham, N.Y., also will conduct Christmas services in his apartment.

Some diplomats, however, will attend mass with the handful of Soviet Catholics at the city's only Roman Catholic Church, St. Louis de France—built by a French businessman before the Russian revolution.

Thousands Are Drawn to Taos Miracle Picture

By ROBERT E. HUBER
United Press International

TAOS, N.M. (UPI) — The miracle of the mystery painting inside the old mission church of San Francisco de Asis at Rancho de Taos attracts thousands of Roman Catholics each Christmas.

Painted by Henri Ault more than 60 years ago, it is a portrait of Jesus standing on the banks of the Seas of Galilee. In darkness, the picture becomes self-illuminated, and the shadow of a cross appears over the left shoulder of Jesus and a halo over the head.

This painting, plus the dozens of other old religious items has turned the mission church into a kind of shrine. Built in 1772, the old mission was one of 48 missions constructed by Spanish priests across New Mexico. One of the latest, the Ranchos de Taos mission has been in use continually since it was built.

The sanctuary contains three pieces of handcrafted silver from 17th Century-Spain. They include a recessional cross, an aspergiale, or holy water sprinkler, and a set of three chime bells. The bells are still used to announce the entry of the priest at Mass.

Two ancient santos and a silver candelabra are in the sanctuary. An old lamp hangs overhead, and there are two rare statues of St. Francis at either side. One dates back to the 16th Century.

Behind the altar is a handcarved and painted crucifixion scenes with figures clothed in deerskin. The value of all the church's items has been set at almost $1 million, but to the priests at the church they are beyond value.

Construction of the church took almost a half century. Designed in Spain, as were all the Spanish mission churches, only native materials — dried adobe bricks and wooden beams —were used. It is 108 feet long with walls five and a half feet thick.

By tradition the church is annually replastered with adobe stucco. Only the women may touch the church walls, while the men mix and carry the mud for them. It takes nine days to re-stucco the mission, and a celebration is held after the annual chore.

The roof of the church is supported by huge hand-hewed rafters hauled from the nearby Taos Mountains. The supporting corbels were handcarved and painted with vegetable dyes by native artists.

As time passed, additions were made to the church, but tourists still feel the mood of old New Mexico when they enter the mission doors. Like so many of New Mexico's missions, the church will remain a lasting monument to the first Christians in the New World for many years to come.

Hike in University Enrollment Forecast

NEW YORK (UPI) — The number of students in American universities and colleges is expected to increase by 36 per cent in the next four years.

But such is the education trend that the number of new books needed for college libraries is expected to increase by 67 per cent.

During the same four-year period, the amount spent on new library buildings on campuses is expected to rise 74 per cent, nearly three times as fast as the estimated 28 per cent jump in total college construction.

Robert J. Keir, president of C.I.T. Educational Buildings, Inc., and Tuition Plan, Inc., says the higher ratio of books to students reflects the increasing complexity of the educational process and need for more reference works.

"This is especially true," Keir says, "in the physical sciences where man's knowledge is increasing so fast that more new books are constantly needed to keep pace with new developments."

Fulbright Will Stop Steering Foreign Aid

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., says he will no longer steer the administration's foreign-aid bills through the Senate, The Washington Post reported today.

Fulbright, as chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, has borne the major responsibility in the Senate for legislation on the nation's international undertakings, including military and economic aid to other countries.

The Arkansas Democrat said in an interview in the Post that he is out of sympathy with the way foreign-aid bills are handled.

"If they want to pursue that same kind (of legislation), they ought to turn it over to someone else, someone who is fresher and more enthusiastic than I am," he said.

If Fulbright should relinquish the floor managership of the always controversial foreign-aid bill, the next senators in line would be Sen. Mike Mansfield, D-Mont., who already has his hands full as majority leader, and Sen. Wayne Morse, D-Ore., who has contributed his share of criticism of recent foreign-aid legislation.

Fulbright indicated he does not oppose the general principle of foreign aid and has no complaint about the administration of the program.

But he said he thinks the administration should separate the aid bill into functions — military, economic, loan, grant, humanitarian and so on.

"Why should it all be in one big conglomerate mass?" he asked.

He said he is not afraid of skyrocketing costs if the Pentagon were given responsibility for military aid — "The military eats all it wants anyway."

There have been suggestions in the past that the military part of foreign aid should be handled in connection with the defense budget.

Fulbright said he had notified Secretary of State Dean Rusk by letter of his feelings.

Bob Hope Gets Big Welcome In Viet Nam

BIEN HOA, South Viet Nam (AP) — American GIs and airmen gave a wildly enthusiastic welcome to Bob Hope today as the star gave a surprise Christmas show on a baseball field only 400 yards from where the Viet Cong shelled American jet bombers seven weeks ago.

The troops were informed of Hope's arrival only two hours before his troupe stepped onto a hastily erected stage. More than 100 military policemen formed a bodyguard.

"This is the fifth time I've seen Bob Hope overseas at Christmas," said Staff Sgt. Otto McKibban, 35, San Antonio, Tex.

"I've seen him in Korea during the Korean war, and in Okinawa, Greenland, Alaska, and now here. He's Santa Claus to me. I think its wonderful that he would come to a place like this."

Hope had planned to bring his troupe to Viet Nam last Christmas but the trip was ruled out by Gen. Paul D. Harkins, then commander of U.S. forces here, who said the large crowds would be easy targets for the Viet Cong.

Even after Hope's arrival, his itinerary here was not disclosed. He was expected to make most of his stops at field detachments and possibly skip Saigon.

Fulbright Will Stop Steering Foreign Aid

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., says he will no longer steer the administration's foreign-aid bills through the Senate, The Washington Post reported today.

Fulbright, as chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, has borne the major responsibility in the Senate for legislation on the nation's international undertakings, including military and economic aid to other countries.

The Arkansas Democrat said in an interview in the Post that he is out of sympathy with the way foreign-aid bills are handled.

"If they want to pursue that same kind (of legislation), they ought to turn it over to someone else, someone who is fresher and more enthusiastic than I am," he said.

If Fulbright should relinquish the floor managership of the always controversial foreign-aid bill, the next senators in line would be Sen. Mike Mansfield, D-Mont., who already has his hands full as majority leader, and Sen. Wayne Morse, D-Ore., who has contributed his share of criticism of recent foreign-aid legislation.

Fulbright indicated he does not oppose the general principle of foreign aid and has no complaint about the administration of the program.

But he said he thinks the administration should separate the aid bill into functions — military, economic, loan, grant, humanitarian and so on.

"Why should it all be in one big conglomerate mass?" he asked.

He said he is not afraid of skyrocketing costs if the Pentagon were given responsibility for military aid — "The military eats all it wants anyway." There have been suggestions in the past that the military part of foreign aid should be handled in connection with the defense budget.

Fulbright said he had notified Secretary of State Dean Rusk by letter of his feelings.

Bob Hope Gets Big Welcome In Viet Nam

BIEN HOA, South Viet Nam (AP) — American GIs and airmen gave a wildly enthusiastic welcome to Bob Hope today as the star gave a surprise Christmas show on a baseball field only 400 yards from where the Viet Cong shelled American jet bombers seven weeks ago.

The troops were informed of Hope's arrival only two hours before his troupe stepped onto a hastily erected stage. More than 100 military policemen formed a bodyguard.

"This is the fifth time I've seen Bob Hope overseas at Christmas," said Staff Sgt. Otto McKibban, 35, San Antonio, Tex.

"I've seen him in Korea during the Korean war, and in Okinawa, Greenland, Alaska, and now here. He's Santa Claus to me. I think its wonderful that he would come to a place like this."

Hope had planned to bring his troupe to Viet Nam last Christmas but the trip was ruled out by Gen. Paul D. Harkins, then commander of U.S. forces here, who said the large crowds would be easy targets for the Viet Cong.

Gen. William C. Westmoreland, Harkins' successor, gave the green light this year, but security and secrecy precautions are greater even than those exercised during visits by U.S. Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara.

Even after Hope's arrival, his itinerary here was not disclosed. He was expected to make most of his stops at field detachments and possibly skip Saigon.

SMOKING AND AIR POLLUTION IN CANCER

Cancer of the lung is the most common cause of death from malignancies among men. Fifty years ago the disease was rare, whereas 43,000 Americans died of it last year. Fewer than 6,000 victims were women.

Smoking and air pollution are incriminated most of ten as playing causative roles. Both are capable of irritating the lining of the air passageways and chronic bronchitis develops after years of exposure. Some authorities blame everything on smoking; others on air pollution.

The public may be confused by these conflicting opinions, not realizing that both are factors. They are not as philosophical as a 67-year-old New Yorker who stopped smoking 25 years ago, following a heart attack. His chronic bronchitis disappeared.

A few weeks ago he read an article quoting a physician who said the urban resident inhales daily the equivalent in toxic substances of two packs of cigarets, regardless of whether he smokes. This did not confure our reader who commented: "If air pollution is a link to cancer, then cigaret inhalation adds another link that brings on this dreadful disease years sooner." This is not a new idea because the medical profession has known for some time that two cancer agents produce tumors faster than one.

In all probability there is more to lung cancer than inhaling chemical agents. The chronic bronchitis that stems from infections must be considered. The same applies to heredity, as some individuals are move susceptible to chemicals and gases that pollute the air we breathe and inhale when smoking. This may explain why some light smokers develop lung cancer after smoking the same number of years as a heavy smoker.

The public has an insight into how difficult it is to pinpoint the cause of a fatal disease when the suspected material is enjoyed by millions of voters or is closely associated with large industries, agriculture, and politics.

Dr. Van Dellen will answer questions on medical topics if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request.

MILD SPINAL ARTHRITS

Mrs. T. P. writes: X-rays of my spine show minimal hypertrophic osteoarthritic changes in the lumbar spine and sacroiliac joints. How is this condition treated?

REPLY

No treatment is needed if pain is not present. Heat, massage, and bending exercises will keep the spine flexible and strengthen the back muscles. A corset may be needed when there is pain.

ABDOMINAL SWELLING

Mrs. D. G. writes: How can a woman tell whether a swelling in the abdomen is a gas pocket or a hernia?

REPLY

By consulting her physician. Most abdominal hernias protrude when standing or straining and disappear when lying down. Gas is not constant; it makes the entire abdomen protrude and, when tapped with fingers, gives off drumlike sounds.

DEPRESSED CHEST

Mrs. G. writes: What is the chance of a normal life for a child with a funnel chest, if operation is not done?

REPLY

Excellent, provided the chest wall does not squeeze or press upon the heart or important blood vessels.

IT WON'T GO AWAY

A. P. writes: Will a fungus infection in the ear disappear with age?

REPLY

No. Fungal infections in the ear call for treatment. Even then, it may be difficult to clear up the condition.

RANGE RIDERS PARTY — The Pikes Peak Range Riders recently held their sixteenth annual Christmas party for their children with about one hundred attending. Baskets of Food Are Given to Needy

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Baskets of food have been given to more than 100 needy families who live along Columbia Avenue, scene of Negro rioting and looting last August.

Each Christmas basket contained a 10-pound turkey, several vegetables, cranberry sauce, fruit cocktail and bread.

"We are hopeful that some of the people (in the riots) received the baskets," said Si Picker, president of the Columbia Avenue Businessmen's Association. "This is our way of showing that there's no more ill will.

"This isn't the answer to what happened on Aug. 28 but maybe it's a beginning."

PEDRO HAS TWO GLOVES

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Pedro Gonzalez has two gloves. He uses one for playing third base, shortstop and second base. And the other he uses for playing first base.

"He'll be around for a long time," says Hector Lopez, his Yankee roomate for the World Series games in St. Louis. "He is a good boy and always ready to jump into any infield position."

Gonzalez, 24, is a Dominican Republic native who hit .277 in 80 games as a Yankee rookie.

WORRY CLINIC

By George W. Crane, M.D.,Ph.D.

Sue should have surgery at once both to keep her left eye from going blind, and also to nip in the bud any social inferiority complexes that almost inevitably afflict such vicitms. Scrapbook this case or send it to relatives who need eye surgery!

CASE U-462: Sue G., aged 5, has a very common problem.

"So she ignores the images that fall on that eye and uses just her right eye.

"But the eye surgeon says her crossed eye should be straightened or it will grow almost blind from disuse.

"Yet I shudder at any operation affecting the eyes. Suppose something should go wrong, Dr. Crane?"

Unless a doctor is inebriated, nothing should go wrong with such eye surgery.

Correcting crossed eyes should certainly be done before the victim enters school, for that helps produce two good eyes.

Otherwise, the unused eye will grow relatively blind just from disuse.

The eye surgeon will simply take out the slack in the stretched muscle that now lets the crossed eye deviate to one side.

The operation is somewhat like the sewing process which you wives employ when you wish to narrow a waistling that is too large.

You then take a tuck in the fabric to tighten the waistline.

The eye surgeon likewise shortens the stretched eye muscle so it pulls the crossed eye back into proper alignment.

The eye surgeon doesn't enter the eyeball itself to correct squint (crossed eye).

His surgery is neat, precise and sight-saving.

Not only does the eye surgeon thus save the vision of that crossed eye.

But he also prevents many social inferiority complexes that almost inevitably develop in the child with a crossed eye.

Many parents, like Sue's mother, mistake the correction of a crossed eye with the operation for cataract.

In the latter, it is the milky lens inside the eyeball which must be removed, for it acts like a frosted pane of glass and thus prevents its victim from seeing much more than a blur of white light.

But a cataract operation can also be performed under local anesthesia, just like that used by your dental surgeon.

There is also not even a single drop of blood loss!

And within a few days the victim now can look out through that eye that formerly was milky due to a whitish lens.

Lacking the lens, however, the patient will need eye glasses to focus on this newspaper print or thread a needle.

But if the cataract has not been present too long (meaning that the retina is still sensitive), then such a patient may regain excellent vision.

SMOKING AND AIR POLLUTION IN CANCER

Cancer of the lung is the most common cause of death from malignancies among men. Fifty years ago the disease was rare, whereas 43,000 Americans died of it last year. Fewer than 6,000 victims were women.

Smoking and air pollution are incriminated most of ten as playing causative roles. Both are capable of irritating the lining of the air passageways and chronic bronchitis develops after years of exposure. Some authorities blame everything on smoking; others on air pollution.

The public may be confused by these conflicting opinions, not realizing that both are factors. They are not as philosophical as a 67-year-old New Yorker who stopped smoking 25 years ago, following a heart attack. His chronic bronchitis disappeared.

A few weeks ago he read an article quoting a physician who said the urban resident inhales daily the equivalent in toxic substances of two packs of cigarets, regardless of whether he smokes. This did not confure our reader who commented: "If air pollution is a link to cancer, then cigaret inhalation adds another link that brings on this dreadful disease years sooner." This is not a new idea because the medical profession has known for some time that two cancer agents produce tumors faster than one.

In all probability there is more to lung cancer than inhaling chemical agents. The chronic bronchitis that stems from infections must be considered. The same applies to heredity, as some individuals are move susceptible to chemicals and gases that pollute the air we breathe and inhale when smoking. This may explain why some light smokers develop lung cancer after smoking the same number of years as a heavy smoker.

The public has an insight into how difficult it is to pinpoint the cause of a fatal disease when the suspected material is enjoyed by millions of voters or is closely associated with large industries, agriculture, and politics.

Dr. Van Dellen will answer questions on medical topics if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request.

MILD SPINAL ARTHRITS

Mrs. T. P. writes: X-rays of my spine show minimal hypertrophic osteoarthritic changes in the lumbar spine and sacroiliac joints. How is this condition treated?

REPLY

No treatment is needed if pain is not present. Heat, massage, and bending exercises will keep the spine flexible and strengthen the back muscles. A corset may be needed when there is pain.

ABDOMINAL SWELLING

Mrs. D. G. writes: How can a woman tell whether a swelling in the abdomen is a gas pocket or a hernia?

REPLY

By consulting her physician. Most abdominal hernias protrude when standing or straining and disappear when lying down. Gas is not constant; it makes the entire abdomen protrude and, when tapped with fingers, gives off drumlike sounds.

DEPRESSED CHEST

Mrs. G. writes: What is the chance of a normal life for a child with a funnel chest, if operation is not done?

REPLY

Excellent, provided the chest wall does not squeeze or press upon the heart or important blood vessels.

IT WON'T GO AWAY

A. P. writes: Will a fungus infection in the ear disappear with age?

REPLY

No. Fungal infections in the ear call for treatment. Even then, it may be difficult to clear up the condition.

WORRY CLINIC

By George W. Crane, M.D., Ph.D.

Sue should have surgery at once both to keep her left eye from going blind, and also to nip in the bud any social inferiority complexes that almost inevitably afflict such vicitms. Scrapbook this case or send it to relatives who need eye surgery!

CASE U-462: Sue G., aged 5, has a very common problem.

"So she ignores the images that fall on that eye and uses just her right eye.

"But the eye surgeon says her crossed eye should be straightened or it will grow almost blind from disuse.

"Yet I shudder at any operation affecting the eyes. Suppose something should go wrong, Dr. Crane?"

Unless a doctor is inebriated, nothing should go wrong with such eye surgery.

Correcting crossed eyes should certainly be done before the victim enters school, for that helps produce two good eyes.

Otherwise, the unused eye will grow relatively blind just from disuse.

And the operation is neither bloody nor painful, so you parents should not fret or shudder at any preconceived horrendous picture.

The eye surgeon will simply take out the slack in the stretched muscle that now lets the crossed eye deviate to one side.

The operation is somewhat like the sewing process which you wives employ when you wish to narrow a waistling that is too large.

You then take a tuck in the fabric to tighten the waistline.

The eye surgeon likewise shortens the stretched eye muscle so it pulls the crossed eye back into proper alignment.

The operation is painless and the child loses hardly a drop of blood.

All the operating, too, is done OUTSIDE the eyeball, so you parents can quit shuddering about possible loss of vision in that eye.

Baskets of Food Are Given to Needy

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Baskets of food have been given to more than 100 needy families who live along Columbia Avenue, scene of Negro rioting and looting last August.

Each Christmas basket contained a 10-pound turkey, several vegetables, cranberry sauce, fruit cocktail and bread.

"We are hopeful that some of the people (in the riots) received the baskets," said Si Picker, president of the Columbia Avenue Businessmen's Association. "This is our way of showing that there's no more ill will.

"This isn't the answer to what happened on Aug. 28 but maybe it's a beginning."

PEDRO HAS TWO GLOVES

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Pedro Gonzalez has two gloves. He uses one for playing third base, shortstop and second base. And the other he uses for playing first base.

"He'll be around for a long time," says Hector Lopez, his Yankee roomate for the World Series games in St. Louis. "He is a good boy and always ready to jump into any infield position."

Gonzalez, 24, is a Dominican Republic native who hit .277 in 80 games as a Yankee rookie.
